WET, DRY ISSUE RASKOB APPEAL STIRS HIS PARTY

Hull Is Opposed to Chairman's Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Chairman John J. Raskob's appeal to the members of the Democratic national committee for support of his plan to bring the prohibition question into the open stirred up a flock of statements today from among Democratic members of congress.

"Chairman Raskob's letter," said Senator Cordell Hull [Dem., Tenn.] "is with slight variations, a repetition of his so-called articles of party faith proposed at the recent Democratic national committee meeting, in which it is strenuously attempted to make prohibition not only a partisan issue but a paramount partisan issue, which automatically would, for an indefinite number of years, exclude serious or deliberate consideration of all other issues and problems by party agencies, no matter how vital and pressing. Chairman Raskob's references to other questions impress one as being minor and parenthetical."

SENATOR CORDELL HULL.

Sticks to Old Issues.

Hull declared he would "only accept or seek debate and controversy from our Republican adversaries relative to questions and problems which have heretofore fundamentally divided the two political parties."

Even Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], an avowed wet, was noncommittal in his comment, though he thought it within Mr. Raskob's rights to poll the national committee as their prohibition views and their opinion of the Raskob home rule plan.

Democratic wets, a wet senator explained, are afraid of making prohibition the issue. The Anti-Saloon league, they argue, would distort the Democratic policy, claim the Democrats sought the return of the saloon, and so would drive voters into the Republican ranks.

Referendum Discussed.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], considered a modificationist, said the implications of the Raskob plan ought to be understood.

"The referendum idea is one which makes a strong appeal," he explained. "But the tactful legislator will have in mind the unlimited sums of money which would be available, on one side at least, and be expended in such a contest, the corrupting influence of which would be beyond measure."

Senator Marcus Coolidge [Dem., Mass.] expressed himself against making prohibition the 1932 issue and urged that his party concentrate on returning workers to their jobs and creating better times. Representative W. A. Ayers [Dem., Kas.] remarked that Mr. Raskob had been chosen to conduct the 1928 campaign and not to mark out the Democratic party's policies for 1932.

Tax Increase Opposed.

In addition to the prohibition question, the Democrats discussed taxation, brought to the fore in Republican circles by the suggestion of Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] that the line of income tax exemption be lowered and nuisance taxes restored.

As to the financial situation, both Senator Claude A. Swanson [Dem., Va.] and Senator William J. Harris [Dem., Ga.] came out as the administration has done, against a tax increase. Senator Harris said he was against Senator Bingham's plan "in toto."

Senator Swanson declared that federal, state, and local taxation are already as heavy as the country can bear. He imitated the Republican position, by saying:

Says Public Debt Can Wait.

"We can well afford to desist from paying toward the retirement of the public debt and use these funds for governmental expenditures. The government can very easily float short term bonds during this fiscal year and the excess revenue that will come with the return of normal times can be used to retire them and provide additional funds for further governmental expenses.

"It would be unwise to retard the return of prosperity by the imposition of any additional tax burdens at this time. The increase taxation of

CHICAGO YOUTH SENTENCED TO DIE GETS NEW TRIAL

Phoenix, Ariz., April 6.—(AP)—Richard Nash Burrows, 19 year old Chicago youth under sentence of death in the Arizona state prison, was granted a new trial by the Arizona state Supreme court today. Burrows was convicted of first degree murder for the slaying of Jack Martin, Mesa, Ariz., salesman.

The new trial was ordered on the grounds George T. Wilson, Maricopa county attorney, used language in his argument to the jury that was "highly prejudicial" to the defendant.

Young Burrows, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burrows of Chicago, was hitch-hiking from Phoenix to Denver in February of 1929. The salesman's body was found in a dry gulch near Wickenburg. He had been shot to death.

Burrows was arrested in Denver while attempting to sell Martin's automobile. Denver police said he told them he had killed a man in Arizona and described the place where the body was hidden.

The youth, returned to Phoenix, testified Martin plied him with alcohol until he did not know what he was doing.

Voters Reject Death Penalty for Michigan

BULLETIN.

Detroit, Mich., April 7, 1 a. m.—(Special.)—With returns from approximately one-half of the state received capital punishment has been beaten by a decisive majority. In a total vote of approximately 600,000 the majority against the bill will be about 60,000.

Detroit, Mich., April 6.—[Special.]—With nearly one-fifth of the vote counted tonight, advocates of capital punishment in Michigan appeared to have been defeated in today's statewide referendum on the subject.

A total of 657 precincts out of 3,467 in the state gave: For capital punishment, 42,706; against, 58,382.

The capital punishment issue drew an unexpected number of voters to the polls. In Detroit a vote of close to 200,000 was cast.

The measure submitted to the voters proposed that all murders perpetrated "by means of poison, lying in wait, or any other kind of willful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, or which shall be committed in the perpetration, or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, burglary, or kidnaping for ransom, or which shall be committed in escaping or attempting to escape from any penal institution of this state, or while being transported to or from such institution," shall be punished by death in the electric chair at the Michigan state prison at Jackson.

It was provided, however, that no person under 17 years of age at the time of commission of the crime shall be sentenced to death; but if convicted of murder in the first degree shall be imprisoned in the state's prison at hard labor for the rest of his life.

FRED H. BARTLETT IS REPORTED ILL IN CALIFORNIA

Frederick H. Bartlett, 58 years old, veteran Chicago real estate dealer, was reported critically ill yesterday in the Huntington hotel at Pasadena, Cal. His physician, Dr. Ray Davies, declined to discuss the nature of his ailment, but said his condition had taken an alarming turn on Sunday.

Mr. Bartlett has been in California for several months. When he left Chicago he took with him Pietro Ricci, a former bandmaster, Mrs. Ricci, and their seven children; two of whom are regarded as musical geniuses. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett are paying for the musical education of this pair, Ringiero, 10 years old, and Giorgio, 9 years old, and are also assisting the other Riccis.

BUTLER'S COLLAR LEADS BANDITS TO WAYLAY HIM

Three bandits in search of gold ccast prey pounced upon a butler and his wife, a maid, by mistake in front of 1301 Astor street last night. The error occurred when the robbers mistook the butler's service wing collar and how tie for indications of affluency.

The couple robbed are Eric and Louise Farrar, employed as domestics in the home of Frank Hibbard, chairman of the board of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., of 1301 Astor street. Farrar lost a watch, a cigaret lighter, and 20 cents. His wife lost a $250 coat.

Farrar and his wife were strolling down Astor street when the bandit car drew alongside them. Three armed men stepped out. They took Mrs. Farrar's fur coat, and chased her into the apartment building. Farrar was forced into their machine. He was driven to the west side before he could convince them his habiliments were those merely of a butler and not of the moneyed gentry. The 20 cents in his pockets proved the final convincer, and he was ousted from the car with the remark from one of the gunmen: "Our mistake, buddy, we thought you were a high hat."

A time bomb, set off by an alarm clock, was exploded last night in the filling room of the Capitol Dairy company at 4328 Wabash avenue. The blast shattered several windows, and other minor damage estimated at $50. Keaton Melgen of 1305 South Fairfield avenue, an employe, was in the building.

Kidnap Cermak Aid

Richard Fishman, 831 Maxwell street Democratic precinct captain in the 22d precinct of the 20th ward, was kidnaped last night by two gunmen as he was sitting in a restaurant at 1361 Newberry avenue with a group of Cermak workers. During the primary campaign Fishman was a Lyle supporter.

The group, composed mainly of Democrats and Republican precinct leaders who have supported Cermak in the ward against the orders of Morris Eller, 20th ward boss and Thompson lieutenant, were discussing the election when the two gunmen entered. "We want you," they said, pointing to Fishman. "The rest of you stand against the wall."

Louis Wise, captain of the 5th precinct, immediately ordered all workers to stay indoors for the night. Fishman had received orders from Eller workers to stay out of the ward. The matter was not reported to the police, he said, because of Eller's control of the district.

CLASH OVER POLICE

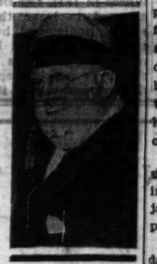
Acting Police Commissioner Alcock had several clashes yesterday with the special grand jury and the state's attorney's office as a result of orders issued by him which were believed to have political motives concerned with today's election.



CAPT. GREGORY MORAN.

One order by Alcock recalled five police automobiles loaned to the state's attorney's office several weeks ago. Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury said he regarded this as a deliberate move to hamper the prosecutor's office in its effort to prevent fraud and violence at the polls today.

Preparations were made to resist any attempt by Alcock to take away the staff of policemen assigned to the state's attorney's office through authority of the city council. Members of the police staff, numbering 50, were advised to report at once to Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller if they received any communication from Alcock attempting to assign them to duties other than designated by the state's attorney.

Transfer 130 Policemen.

A surprise move by Alcock was the order sending 130 policemen from the detective bureau to the Marquette station. The commissioner would give no statement on the purpose of this move. The Marquette station is in the 21st ward, of which the Republican leader is Charles V. Barrett, who is anti-Thompson.

The station is also within the section that comprises what is known as the Cermak group of wards, the 21st, 22d, 23d, and 24th, a territory in which Cermak has been the recognized leader for a score of years, and which is now regarded as almost unanimous for Cermak for mayor. Just what these 130 policemen are expected to do today was not known to Capt. Thomas Pilkington, who is in charge at Marquette, the captain declared last night.

Strong Cermak Territory.

Capt. Pilkington said he didn't know whether an equal number of men were to be taken from him. Democratic leaders said that both the police and the voters of this southwest side territory are ardent supporters of Cermak and that an obvious purpose of the transfer is to scatter policemen unfriendly to Cermak around these wards to use their power against Cermak. These observers guessed that the policemen assigned to plain clothes duty at the detective bureau would be exceptionally zealous for Thompson in order to retain their jobs.

Thirty sergeants from the detective bureau were assigned by Alcock to report to the election commissioners' office this morning. Two sergeants—Harry Miller and Harry Lang, who have openly advocated the cause of Cermak—were ordered to remain inside at the detective bureau today. Three squads, each commanded by a

Jail for Fall If He Fails to Make Appeal

Three Rivers, N. M., April 6.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, said tonight it was "remotely possible, but not probable," he would appeal to the Supreme court from today's decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals affirming his conviction of accepting a bribe.

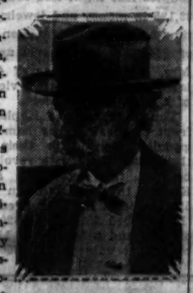
Mr. Fall said he held no animosity toward any of the government prosecutors and mentioned especially Owen Roberts, now a justice of the Supreme court.

"I am an old man and for the last eight years I have known little but trouble," he said. "In many respects, the decision is a welcome relief for the weight of suspense has been heavy. Some of my friends have urged me to fight to the last ditch but I don't know. I am a poor man and I have no money for further legal defense. Certainly I cannot pay the heavy fine assessed against me. My only income is from a small herd of beef cattle. My wife sells some butter and milk in El Paso. This ranch is not mine, but rented.

"I want every one to understand that this prosecution was instigated and carried forward by the United States senate, and not by the department of justice. I am not guilty."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior during the Harding administration, will be incarcerated in jail within the next fifteen days unless an appeal is taken from a decision rendered today by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.



ALBERT B. FALL.

This court, in a unanimous decision, upheld the action of the lower court in ordering Fall to serve one year in jail and pay a fine of $100,000 for his part in the Teapot Dome oil scandals.

The Court of Appeals has fifteen days in which to invoke the mandate sending Mr. Fall to jail. Before the end of that time Frank J. Hogan, the former cabinet member's attorney, must decide whether to seek a writ of certiorari from the Supreme court. Mr. Hogan is in Europe.

Blackmer Fine Upheld.

Another echo of the oil scandals was heard today when the Court of Appeals handed down a decision in the Blackmer contempt case. The court upheld the action of the lower court in fining Harry Blackmer, now an exile in France, $66,000 for contempt of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia, in refusing to return to the United States to testify in the Fall-Sinclair criminal case.

Mr. Fall is at the Three Rivers ranch near Almagordo, N. M., which ranch some months ago was bought in by Mr. Doheny in a mortgage foreclosure proceeding.

Health Reported Better.

While Mr. Fall's health has been reported as much improved, he is said to be still far from being the robust man he was when he was directing the oil policies of the Harding administration as secretary of the interior.

The appeal of Mr. Fall from the Supreme court of the District of Columbia was largely based on the admission by Associate Justice Hitz of the facts in the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada case as evidence in support of the bribery charge based on the Doheny "loan" of $100,000 for the acceptance of which the jury convicted Mr. Fall and Justice Hitz sentenced him to a year in jail and imposed a fine of $100,000.

Defense Charges Error.

The contention of the defense was that Justice Hitz erred in admitting the Continental transaction because, they argued, the Doheny transaction had no bearing on the delivery by Mr. Sinclair of Liberty bonds to Mr. Fall, which bonds were purchased with Continental Trading company money. Justice Hitz ruled the evidence admissible as showing the "motives Fall had in mind" when he was making the leases of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills naval oil reserves to Sinclair and Doheny.

In sustaining the Blackmer contempt fines Associate Justice Siddons said:

"It is inconceivable that a citizen may clog the wheels of justice by crossing the international border and, that the government should be powerless to summon him to return and subject him to a penalty if, without excuse, he fails to respond to the summons."

Among the forces backing A. J. Cermak for mayor there was an immense increase of confidence last night, the eve of today's election. All leaders and workers raised their estimates of the margin of victory, Cermak himself saying in his final speeches that the majority may pile up to 500,000.

The opposite was true in the Thompson camp. Gloom prevailed there. The closest approach to an official estimate was that the present mayor will win by 65,000, and that was based on a belief that Thompson will be given a lead of 50,000 in the black belt alone. Even this is considered high, but the forecast almost conceded the rest of the city to Cermak.

City Hall Leaders Wrangle.

But even more indicative of conditions in the Thompson camp headquarters were well defined reports of internal dissension, of wrangles over money matters, of ward leaders walking out in anger, and of others ignoring calls to come in.

These facts, supported by efforts of some of the Thompson ward leaders to open negotiations with the Democrats, were translated to mean that in addition to having public sentiment against him as indicated without exception by straw votes in all parts of the city, Thompson goes to the polls with a partly disrupted organization.

There also was a marked contrast in the last minute conduct of the two opponents. Cermak, still confining himself almost entirely to the major issues, was smiling and cheerful. He jested in his speeches and received hundreds of visitors. Thompson was more vituperative than ever in his speeches, and his followers said he was refusing to see any one.

Democrats Raise Estimates.

Several of the big Democrats raised their private estimates of Cermak's majority to 300,000. They said they based such changes upon a sudden increase in the enthusiasm for Cermak that began with his meetings Saturday night and upon the weather forecaster's promise of a fair and a warmer day today.

Some of the experts said that a day of that type would bring out 1,200,000 voters between 6 o'clock this morning and 4 o'clock this afternoon. If there is such an outpouring, the analysts said, the added vote would be almost entirely for Cermak.

The experts' predictions were said to be reflected in the betting. The day opened with odds of 5 to 3 being offered on La Salle street, but early in the afternoon it was reported that a board of trade offer of $3,000 to $1,000 went begging and finally was raised to $3,250 to $1,000 with no Thompson money to cover the short end.

Cermak Tells Confidence.

In these circumstances, most of what betting there was took the form of wagers on the size of the Cermak majority—even money being offered on 200,000, wagers on the number of wards Thompson will carry or bets on individual wards. There was one bet of $1,000 to $1,000—8 to 5—that Thompson will not carry eight wards.

Cermak's own confidence was brought out clearly in his evening speeches at two meetings and over the radio.

"On the eve of tomorrow's election," he said, "I can confidently give you this message: 'We have won!'

"The question that remains to be decided is by how large a majority the people of Chicago will repudiate the regime responsible for the city's loss of prestige.

"My appeal to you now is to make that majority as great a one as possible, not because of any danger that exists at the present time, but as a lesson for all time to those tempted to follow in the footsteps of the men responsible for the present deplorable conditions in the city.

"The greater the majority the longer it will be before another demagogue attempts to exploit the people of Chicago. A majority of 500,000 can be rolled up if every man and woman opposed to the present administration goes to the polls tomorrow and expresses his or her opinion at the ballot box.

"I appeal to the Democrats to manifest the same zeal they always have shown when I have been a candidate. To the Republicans and Independents I present the request that they should not be deterred from going to the polls simply because they know the result of the election is a foregone conclusion. Their votes are needed to make the lesson of the election more effective.

"Stanch Republicans recognize that in voting for me they are really serving their own party by driving from power the men who have used that party for selfish and wicked purposes."

Assails Racial Issue.

Cermak referred briefly to the appeals to racial and religious prejudice used in the Thompson campaign.

"As the day of election comes upon us," said the nominee, "it is more and more apparent that canards and falsehoods may deceive the voters for a time, but that the voters cannot be fooled all the time. Even the short period covered by a mayoralty campaign is generally sufficient to nail the lies circulated and to cause them to serve the purpose of bringing out the truth and giving it an importance it would not otherwise have."

Cermak's biggest meeting of the day was the service men's rally for him at the Apollo theater which was preceded by a parade through the loop. The overflow in Randolph street was the largest and most enthusiastic of the campaign. The street was blocked solidly in front of this theater while before the Garrick, a short distance away, where Thompson was speaking, there was only a small crowd as long as the Cermak meeting lasted.

Fracas Over Music.

While the Cermak crowd was the densest Thompson trucks playing "canned music" started to force their way through Randolph street. Under pressure from the musicians' union the Democrats had agreed not to use mechanical music devices, but they have been used generally by Thompson. As one of the trucks stopped before the Apollo Cermak union followers tore the signs from its sides, and a fight followed. But nobody was hurt seriously.

This was taken as an indication of the high feeling among the Cermak followers, which was demonstrated a little later when a crowd followed Cermak from the theater to the Hotel Sherman, jamming the lobbies, cheering and shouting, until Cermak good naturedly told them to save their voices for tonight and let him have a sandwich.

There were four Thompson meetings in the loop, the last one being at the Cort, where he opened his campaign. Here his vituperation was once more directed chiefly at THE TRIBUNE.

Rabbi Talks for Cermak.

One of the final radio speeches for Cermak was made by Dr. Louis Mann, rabbi of Sinai temple.

"No citizen," he said, "can do more harm to his fellow men than by injecting racial and religious prejudice into a political campaign. This Thompson has done. He has attempted to stir up the Catholics by false charges against Cermak. He has injected the issue of anti-Semitism into the campaign. I, as a Jew and a rabbi, have investigated these charges and have satisfied myself that they are false.

"He has attacked Chicago's foremost and most beloved citizen [Julius Rosenwald] and called him a 'fake philanthropist.' No man living in all the world has done as much for the Negro. He not only gives huge sums of money but the best of his thought to help the underprivileged people. Any one who can sink so low as to call so great a man a fake philanthropist should not be trusted with any position of responsibility."

Two ballots carrying the names of city officials will be handed to the Chicago voters today. In addition to the larger ballot with the names of the candidates for mayor, city treasurer, and city clerk, they will receive a small ballot bearing the names of the two candidates for the Burke vacancy on the Municipal court bench, A. M. Smietanka, Democrat, and Edward B. Casey, Republican.

Smietanka has been selected as the better qualified candidate by the Chicago Bar association, which in a primary gave him 1,121 votes to 656 for Casey. Casey has emphasized the fact in his campaign that he is an assistant corporation counsel under the present city administration and "always has been a Thompson man."

GUNMEN KIDNAP 2 COUPLES, ROB THEM OF $3,125

A pair of gunmen kidnaped two couples last night and robbed them of $3,125 in money and jewelry. The victims are Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Kaplan of 5441 Eastwood park, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fletcher of 4456 Woodlawn avenue. Kaplan is vice president of a scrap iron concern.

The Fletchers and Kaplans were in front of the Fletcher home when the gunmen stepped to their car and threatened them with revolvers. They boarded the automobile and forced Kaplan to drive into an alley near 51st street and Ellis avenue. There they robbed Kaplan of $200, Fletcher of $100 and a $350 ring, Mrs. Kaplan of a ring valued at $2,500, and Mrs. Fletcher of $75.

KING NURSES HIS COLD; BRITAIN IS SOAKED BY RAIN

WINDSOR, England, April 6.—(AP)—While rain dripped monotonously outside the gray walls of Windsor castle, King George remained by his fireside tonight and nursed a slight cold which beset him last Friday night.

Remembering his majesty's grave illness in 1928, the British people were alarmed to learn that he was even slightly indisposed, but they were considerably reassured by the fact that no official bulletins had been issued and by unofficial reports that his affliction was taking its normal course.

HOT CAMPAIGNS IN OAK PARK AND EVANSTON CLOSE

Predict Record Votes in Two Suburbs.

Strong campaigns for mayor in Evanston and for president of the village board in Oak Park came to a close last night and predictions were made in both suburbs that the balloting today will break records for local elections.

In Evanston Charles H. Bartlett, the incumbent, is opposed by John F. Hahn, realty dealer, who served for thirty years as city clerk. Both candidates closed their campaigns with a series of small meetings in the evening.

Oak Park has three candidates for village president. They are Louis L. Jones, who carries the support of Charles H. Crysler, holder of the presidency; Willis McFeely, former president of the board, and Conrad J. Kalbfell, who was Crysler's campaign manager when he was elected.

Charges Crowe-Galpin Link.

Crysler spoke last night to an audience of more than 700 in the Circle Masonic temple at Euclid and Garfield avenues, asserting that McFeely, if elected, would bring Crowe-Galpin politics back into Oak Park. He also declared that McFeely during his administrations had paid high prices for paving.

McFeely in his speeches has charged that Jones is inexperienced and that Chrysler's administration has been inefficient.

In addition to the village president Oak Park will elect three trustees. Those seeking places are Mrs. Marion Graves Bird, Charles C. Curry, Thos. H. Murray, Mrs. Dorothy C. Kerr, C. P. Duncan Jr., and George Schmidt.

One of the propositions to be voted on involves the question whether residents of Oak Park can legally play miniature golf on Sundays.

Other Suburbs Elect.

Of the minor candidates in Evanston, Edward W. Bell is unopposed for city clerk. Candidates for city treasurer are Henry D. Penfield, Ald. William H. Knapp, Fred Shaw, and John W. Moore. Eight candidates are seeking the office of justice of the peace, a place made vacant by the transfer of Harry Porter to police magistrate.

There are contests for alderman in five of the eight wards.

Other suburbs which will hold elections are Winnetka, Glencoe, River Forest, Berwyn, Cicero, and Aurora. Many of the candidates in these communities are unopposed. In Aurora the voters will have to write in the names of candidates for the Kane county board and for township school trustee, the ballots being blank because all candidates filed petitions too late.

Bind Maid and Loot Home While 2 Children Sleep

A bandit entered the home of John E. Steinhart at 2264 West 115th street yesterday, menaced Mrs. Martha Dietz, the maid, with a revolver, and tied her. Steinhart's children, John Jr., 21 months old, and James, 5 years old, slept throughout the robbery. The thief searched the house and stole loot valued at $1,000. Steinhart is a general contractor and president of a Blue Island finance company.

GIVE DEPOSITORS EQUAL CLAIMS IN 17 CLOSED BANKS

More than 100,000 depositors of seventeen closed banks in Lake county, Indiana, will be entitled to equal pro rata shares in liquidation of the institutions' assets as a result of a ruling yesterday by five judges sitting en banc in the Lake county Superior court at Hammond.

The ruling adjudicated pleas that more than $2,000,000 of state, county, and city funds on deposit in the banks be considered for preferred claims. The judges held that the funds should not be so considered. According to attorneys, this means the depositors will not have to share the "leavings" after the refunding of government money from the ruins, but will have equal shares with the various government bodies.

CITY HALL TRIES NEW TRICKS TO WIN TEACHERS

Special Delivery Letters Are Mailed.

Two eleventh hour efforts by the city hall forces to swing the votes of Chicago public school teachers to their candidates were exposed last night. Both were denounced by the managers of the Cermak campaign as political tricks.

Miss Margaret Haley, president of the Chicago Teachers' federation, said that her attention had been called to teachers declaring that she had "withdrawn her indorsement of Cermak for mayor and was indorsing Thompson." These letters, she was told, were delivered to principals and teachers at the schools during the afternoon.

The only letter she has signed, Miss Haley said, was a communication "thoroughly indorsing Mr. Cermak" and declaring Cermak to be "the only hope and salvation for the Chicago teachers and the public school system."

A Pay Roll Letter.

The second attempt to influence the teacher vote also was in the form of a special delivery letter, address to "The Principal and the Teacher." It was on the official stationery of the board of education and signed by James A. Hemingway, chairman of the committee on finance. The letter said:

"Arrangements are underway whereby the pay rolls for teachers and civil service employés will be taken care of. Any statements to the contrary coming from any source other than the board of education are entirely false and misleading. During the period of more than two years, when no taxes were collected on account of the reassessment of real estate and the board of education had no income, you received every penny of your salary. This was accomplished under the present school administration."

The alleged Hemingway letter was sent to 14,000 teachers and principals at a cost of $1,680 to the taxpayers for stamps alone.

Other Efforts Recalled.

According to the Cermak leaders, the distribution of the letters yesterday was the last of a series of efforts by the city hall forces to use the schools as a medium of distributing political campaign propaganda. A few days ago the school children were handed thousands of copies of a "report" by the school board to the parents and taxpayers. The "report" praised the present city administration.

Mr. Cermak has promised that when he becomes mayor he will investigate expenditures for these and other pieces of political propaganda distributed at the taxpayers' expense and to prosecute the offenders.

Yashio Muto, second secretary of the Japanese embassy in London, will take the post here.

JACK WALTON ASKS OKLAHOMA CITY TO ELECT HIM MAYOR

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 6.—(AP)—Another Oklahoma election day finds the name of John Calloway Walton on the ballot tomorrow. "Jack" wants back the Oklahoma City mayoralty he held 13 years ago.

J. C. WALTON.. [Wharton Photo.]

The man who was governor, only to be impeached; who was senatorial nominee, only to lose, closed a brief post primary campaign of biting personalities against C. J. Blinn, his opponent, and more particularly against leaders of Blinn's adherents.

Both men are opposed to the administration of Mayor Walter Dean and both favor cheap gas, so campaign interest focused largely on the war of words between the three newspapers and "Rarin' Jack."

The city's electorate has been reminded by the daily press of stirring times which led to Walton's impeachment; when martial law ruled part of the state following a Ku Klux Klan disorder, and machine guns frowned from courthouse and city hall to prevent grand jury assemblage. "Rarin' Jack" has countered with charges that his foes are insincere and has promised to remove both police chief and city manager if elected.

ROB CIGAR SHOP OF $43.

A lone gunman held up Murray G. Redmond, 936 Wilson avenue, clerk in the United Cigar store at 43 West Adams street, last night and stole $43. The robber waited outside until several patrons left the store and then entered.

Operate on Baby

In an emergency operation late yesterday, an open safety pin, which Richard Paul Fortin, 7 months old, swallowed Saturday morning, was removed from his stomach. The infant showed immediate signs of recovery following the operation.

The operation was performed by Dr. S. L. Koch at the county hospital when it became evident that the obstruction could not be removed otherwise. When the infant was taken to the hospital Saturday evening examination revealed the pin was lodged point upward in the throat. It was forced into the stomach. X-Ray photographs yesterday disclosed the pin had not moved since Sunday and the operation was ordered.

Baby Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fortin, 16959 Bulger avenue, Hazelcrest.

Physician Slugged with Blackjack Near Hospital

An unidentified man beat Dr. George Abello, 735 Junior terrace, with a blackjack last night in front of the Grant hospital, Grant place and Geneva terrace. The physician was reaching into his car for his instrument bag when the slugger stepped from another machine and attacked him. Dr. Abello received medical attention in the hospital. He could ascribe no motive for the assault, and said it might have been a case of mistaken identity.

WOMEN WORK FOR CERMAK UP TO THE FINISH

Make Pleas on Radio for City Cleanup.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Sundown last night revealed no cessation of activity in the ranks of the women supporters of Anton J. Cermak. On the radio and in their own precincts the women who will cast their ballots today for the Democratic nominee were continuing their campaign.

MRS. KELLOGG FAIRBANK. [De Guidre Photo.]

Seasoned campaigners in charge of the various groups saw to it that the women were impressed with the pitfalls of overconfidence. While acknowledging their firm faith in the election today of their candidate, the women's final watchword was: "Get out the vote."

Many Women Make Appeals.

Radio pleas were made by Mrs. George Bass, who was a Democratic national committeewoman when women were curiosities in the political field; by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, the present national committeewoman; by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, who has gained wisdom in successive local and national campaigns; by Mrs. Margaret Jackson Cross and Miss Marion Lee Marshall.

"A mayor now and then has left office here with some cloud of criticism and discontent hanging over his departure," said Mrs. Bass in her broadcast, "but I venture to say no mayor of Chicago until the present one has ever struck our city's reputation, both financial and moral, such staggering blows that she lost her place among the communities of good repute.

"Our police department is discredited; we are regarded as the world's safest harbor for criminals. Do you realize what it would mean to have Mr. Cermak, with his splendid record in the office of president of the county board, take over that office in the city hall where cobwebs now cover the mayor's chair? It simply must come to pass, and it will if every loyal citizen casts a vote."

Urges a "Clean Sweep."

Mrs. Conkey stressed the "unsavory reputation" of the city under Mayor Thompson, and in her concluding remarks urged once more "a clean sweep" in today's balloting.

All workers regularly employed both at the women's independent headquarters in the Hotel La Salle and in the regular Democratic headquarters in the Ashland block will lock their offices during the time the polls are open and concentrate on getting voters to exercise their franchise. The Ashland block offices will be a gathering place tonight to hear the returns, and the staff in the independent headquarters will be entertained at a dinner in the La Salle and hear the returns at their tables.

PRIZE BEAUTY TURNS BOOTLEGGER; CAUGHT, SHE GETS 18 MONTHS

Towanda, Pa., April 6.—(AP)—A beauty contest winner who said she turned bootlegger when unable to find other employment was sentenced today to 18 months in jail and fined $500.

When sentence was pronounced in Bradford county court, the defendant, Irene Knight, 28, of Tonawana, N. Y., who was "Miss Buffalo" in the 1925 Atlantic City beauty pageant, collapsed.

She was arrested in North Towanda last Dec. 16, while getting gasoline for an automobile she was driving. Police found 319 quarts of liquor concealed in the car. She told police she had pawned her jewelry in Brooklyn to buy liquor which she said she was taking to Buffalo.

FOUR FAMILIES FLEE FIRE.

ROBBERS RIFLE FINE OLD TRUNK IN ROONEY HOUSE

Lester Kennedy, superintendent of the Wauconda estate of J. R. Rooney, retired Chicago and north shore chain grocery magnate, reported yesterday to Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county that burglars had broken into the Rooney residence over the week-end.

"It was an unusual theft," observed Superintendent Kennedy in notifying the sheriff.

Sheriff Tiffany drove to the Rooney home. He discovered the thieves had forced open a rear window. They had next broken into an upper storeroom. And in the storeroom they had broken into Mr. Rooney's steamer trunk. Elsewhere, incidentally, they had picked up clothes, a shotgun, and a clock, all valued at $1,000. But the unusual theft was committed on the steamer trunk, the sheriff learned.

The burglars had emptied it of two cases of Scotch whisky; one and one-half cases of Three-Star Hennessy, two cases of imported brandy; one case of wine; one case of Bicardi rum, and two cases of Benedictine. It was all pre-war stuff.

LAW ENFORCERS ARE PREPARED TO PROTECT POLLS

Preparedness was the motto of Chicago's law enforcement agencies last night as they completed arrangements to cope with threatened violence and fraud at today's mayoralty election.

Last minute rumors that the city hall forces plan to take desperate measures in an effort to stave off the defeat of their candidates brought forth statements from the offices of the board of election commissioners, the sheriff, and the state's attorney that they are ready to put down lawlessness wherever it may appear.

County Judge Jarecki said that he will sit in his court all day to handle offenders brought before him by 200 officers and investigators from his office, who will patrol the polling places. Sheriff Meyerling will have his entire force stationed in wards where violence is expected and in reserve at his office. State's Attorney Swanson will send his squads of policemen and special assistants through the colored and river wards. One or two city policemen will be on hand in every precinct.

"Nothing has been left undone to guarantee peace and order at the election," Judge Jarecki said. "We realize that the situation is tense, but I believe we are ready for any emergency. It is going to go hard with anybody who attempts anything unlawful."

More than 1,000 special watchers of the Voters' Nonpartisan association, carrying credentials from Judge Jarecki, will reinforce the regular law enforcement officials at the polls. These special officers, many of them ex-service men, will be stationed in the precincts where trouble is anticipated.

Ballots Are Distributed.

Most of the 8,000,000 ballots were distributed to the judges of the election yesterday, but as a special precaution those to be used in 121 precincts in the 42d, 20th, 27th, 26th, 2d, and 3d wards, where trouble is usually experienced, were withheld. These will be delivered at 5 a. m. today by the election commissioners. By withholding these ballots until the hour before the polls open, the election board officials believe, the chances for fraud will be reduced to a minimum.

Final instructions to judges and clerks of election were dispatched last night by Judge Jarecki to the officials of the city's 2,981 polling places.

Judges alone must initial the ballots, hand them to the voter and receive them from the voter and no one but the clerks shall officially tally the ballots, Judge Jarecki explained. He warned that the judges and clerks will be "summarily responsible to the county court for any misconduct in their offices and for any violation of the election law."

"The count of the ballots must be commenced promptly at 4 o'clock when the polls close with no adjournment or unnecessary delay and must be continued until all ballots are counted and all returns signed," said his message. "Proclamation of the results of the election shall be made in every precinct immediately upon the completion of the count of the ballots."

More than 1,000,000 citizens will cast their votes during the day, according to the estimates of Judge Jarecki and John Rusch, clerk of the election board. The polls will open at 6 a. m. and close at 4 p. m.

ODDS THREE TO ONE ON CERMAK IN BETS AT BOARD OF TRADE

The odds averaged three to one on Cermak in election wagers made around the Board of Trade yesterday. Thompson money was scarce.

One trader offered $85,000 against $25,000 that Cermak would be Chicago's next mayor, but found neither individuals nor a pool to cover his wager. Another Cermak supporter placed $3,250 against $1,000.

Many small wagers were placed, but betting in big figures was less active than usual. One Cermak supporter, despairing of getting his money placed any other way, offered even money up to $10,000 that the Democratic candidate would carry the Twentieth ward. He found no takers.

Three Bandits Raid Realty Offices on Michigan Ave.

ATTACK ALCOCK POLICE SHIFT AS POLITICAL MOVE

lieutenant, were to be at the detective bureau ready to go to any sector where trouble is reported.

Acting Commissioner Alcock, according to one report, defied the special grand jury yesterday when asked why he removed Capt. Richard Gill from command of the Des Plaines street district. Capt. Gill had followed the orders of the grand jury to raid all disreputable places in his district. This district takes in the Twenty-seventh ward, of which Homer K. Galpin is the Thompson boss. After being complimented by the jurors for his work in cleaning out dens of vice Gill was put on the inactive duty list by Alcock.

According to one source of information Alcock told the jurors he had made the change in order to save Gill's life, because threats to kill the captain had been made. The foreman of the jury, J. A. Farmar, said, however, that Alcock refused to reveal the real reason until tomorrow—the day after the election.

The grand jury subpoenaed Capt. William Killeen, who was sent to the Des Plaines street district to replace Gill. The jurors told him they wanted him to continue Gill's policy of raiding without warrants, which is contrary to Alcock's order. The reason given by the grand jurors was that if police are required to get warrants before raiding, they would be prevented from accomplishing beneficial results, inasmuch as illegal activity would cease after police obtained evidence and while they were seeking a judge to authorize them to stop such activity.

Question Alcock on Transfer.

The grand jurors also inquired into the reasons why Alcock took away the commands of three captains known to be Democrats—John Placek, Gregory Moran and Joseph Goldberg—putting them "on the bench." Alcock is reported to have refused an explanation.

Mayor Thompson, however, had this to say in a noonday speech:

"If the special grand jury would call me I'd tell them why those five police captains were transferred. It was because we had inside information that tomorrow Tony Cermak had arranged that every Thompson ward worker was to be arrested."

Cermak made the statement that after he is elected the first thing he will have done when he takes office will be the return of these captains to their commands.

PAN-AMERICAN CHIEF PREDICTS CHICAGO BOOM

John Barrett, former director general of the Pan-American union, wired to A. J. Cermak yesterday that during a speech in New York upon the outlook for American trade in Latin America he had referred to the Chicago election situation.

"I stated," he wired, "that if you are elected Chicago is going to make such unprecedented progress as a world center of commerce that New York will have to look to its laurels. While my audience was not enthusiastic over the prophecy of rivalry for New York it enthusiastically applauded my reference to your probable election.

"When I come to Chicago to address the Chicago Woman's club at its notable Pan-American day celebration April 14 I hope to have the honor of personally congratulating you not only upon your election but as one who has a broad vision of Chicago as a Pan-American and world center of commerce and good will."

The "coming" of Electrolux has put other automatic refrigerators in a class with the old high-wheel bicycle.

In Electrolux a tiny gas flame and a tiny trickle of water are the whole "works"

OLD FATHER TIME moves fast, despite his years. Now, with the coming of Electrolux, he's made other automatic refrigerators obsolete—put them in a class with high-wheel bikes.

For this new kind of automatic refrigerator makes cold and freezes ice cubes without using any machinery at all. It's marvelously simple. A tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water take the place of all moving parts. They act on a liquid refrigerant which is hermetically sealed in rigid steel. The refrigerant itself is ordinary ammonia, little stronger than household ammonia. The tiny gas flame is completely protected by an automatic shut-off.

Contrast other refrigerators with the simplicity of Electrolux. It never makes a sound, because there is no machinery to make sound. It doesn't alternately stop and start, but works continuously. Therefore the cold is constant, steady.

Even the installation of this refrigerator is a simple matter. Connections for gas and water are through flexible copper tubing, and are quickly and easily made for you by your gas company. And should you ever need service on Electrolux, you get the prompt, efficient kind of service for which your gas company is famous.

With all these advantages, the operating cost of Electrolux is less than that of any other refrigerator—no more than 5 to 10 cents a day.

That is why Electrolux is rapidly becoming standard equipment in the finest homes and apartments all over the country. Over 130,000 have already been installed. During the first nine months of 1930, eight out of every ten new apartment houses in the Bronx were Electrolux-equipped.

A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts

COSTS LESS TO OPERATE
Electrolux is the world's most economical refrigerator. It operates for only 5 to 10 cents a day—less than the cost of ice—less than any other automatic refrigerator.

It will pay you to see this new sensation at your gas company's showrooms before buying any automatic refrigerator—to look for it in the apartment you rent. Despite its many advantages, Electrolux prices are no higher. Made in 10 household models, ranging from 3 cu. ft. to 20 cu. ft. capacity. LINK NAMES OF MAYOR WALKER, BETTY COMPTON

Wife Says She Is Coming Home to Him.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—The private life of Mayor James J. Walker is rapidly becoming public property. New York's suave playboy of Tammany hall arrived at his office shortly before noon today after a California vacation, to find that he was in for a political fight that promises to uncover his friendship for Betty Compton, the actress, as well as his colorful political past.

Hardly had the first chapter of "The Life Story of Jimmy Walker" found its way into print than word came from Florida that Mrs. James J. Walker was planning to quit Miami Beach for New York City this week, to be with her husband while he answers charges against his administration. Mrs. Walker has been in Florida since early this year. Previously, she had passed several months at Hot Springs, Ark., where she had wintered in previous years.

Place "By His Side."

"Jim can win without my help," press dispatches quoted her as saying, "but my place during the fight is by his side. That's where I'll be when he starts answering charges against his administration."

For several months this city has been gossiping about Mayor Walker and Betty Compton, one of his friends. Miss Compton's unheralded marriage to Eddie Dowling, an assistant motion picture director, and her almost as sudden Mexican divorce, all within thirty days, failed to still the talk. Broadway began to whisper out loud. Then the Daily News began printing the life story of the mayor and turned the spotlight on his private affairs.

Previous to her statement today Mrs. Walker has made no comment on the political charges filed against the mayor with Gov. F. D. Roosevelt. In an interview two years ago she came to the defense of her husband against the "playboy" accusations that were made against him.

Owns Farm in Iowa.

"Jimmy," she said at that time, "is admirably fitted for politics and works at it." She also revealed that he has a 160 acre farm at Clinton, Ia., to which she was quoted as suggesting he might some day retire.

Edward Doherty, writing in the Daily News, says:

"The private life of a man, even the mayor of New York, should be kept private. At least that is how it seems to me. But when awhole city goes crazy with excitement over what it knows and what it doesn't know about that man's private life—that is a yarn. . . . Jimmy Walker made no secret of his friendship for Miss Compton; yet that friendship set all the tongues wagging, malicious tongues, little tongues. Miss Compton married Eddie Dowling, and the tongues wagged more furiously. She divorced Dowling, and there was a babel of voices crying out, trying to solve a mystery that didn't exist. And Jimmy has come from California to answer his enemies, and to learn at last who his real friends are."

Both in Bermuda.

Last winter Mayor Walker went to Bermuda for a holiday. Miss Compton was there at the same time, and their names were coupled in news dispatches. Their names have been similarly linked with crowds got together at prize fights, first nights, and on other occasions when Broadway makes merry. Mayor Walker never has made any secret of this friendship and until recently there never has been any published comment on the friendship between the happy going mayor and the beautiful girl who, it is reported, turned down a Hollywood film contract after a couple of weeks there, to return to New York.

Mayor Walker has a home in Greenwich Village, but in recent months he has lived in an apartment in the Mayfair hotel. The Walker domicile has been deserted in recent weeks as far as the Walker family is concerned. When the mayor's vacation was under discussion in the newspapers, Mrs. Walker was quoted in Florida dispatches as saying he probably would spend several weeks in Florida. Mayor Walker, as the entire world now knows, went to the California desert country quite a piece across the continent.

The mayor said he was going out there to "sit in the sun" and "get fit for my job."

Her Name Gets in Papers.

On his return, the Daily News story said:

"And then Betty's name got into the papers and with her the name of Tammany Hall, and references to 'mysterious forces' and all kinds of hush-hush nonsense, nobody saying exactly what he meant, nobody asking Jimmy plain, blunt questions, but everybody going behind the doors and asking each other questions. Betty's name is on the lips of every New Yorker today, and Jimmy's, too. And Jimmy will get down to the business of telling Gov. Roosevelt what he has done for New York. And what is going to come out of the affair and the Betty Compton mystery—he doesn't know, and I don't know, and neither do you."

Meanwhile, Jimmy Walker, a little less thin than when he went away, a little more drawn of face, and considerably more subdued of manner, went to work around noon today. The mayor promptly announced he would write his own answer to the charges filed against him—that he wanted no help from legal experts or boards of strategy.

"My Answer," He Says.

"What do they know about it," said Jimmy. "I am going to do this job myself. It is my answer and no one else's."

The mayor said he planned no shakeups and refused to discuss the self-starting Tammany private housecleaning which began more than a week ago.

Tammany, apparently, is not as "excited and thrilled" as some of the newspapers and a part of the public over the drama in which Mayor Walker is involved. The Democratic leaders of the city stand ready to back the mayor to the limit and are betting 3 to 1 that the charges filed by the city affairs committee will be dismissed by the governor.

STORY OF HUNT FOR THE LINGLE SLAYER STARTS

Third Installment of 'The Solution of Murder.'

Following is the third installment of "The Solution of the Lingle Murder":

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

CHAPTER IV.

Who killed Alfred Lingle, and what was the motive?

Gangsters? Why should they take the reporter's life? It seemed likely that even the ruthless mind of a gang chief would foresee the storm rising out of such a crime.

Was there a woman in the background? Lingle had never been known to cherish any other women than his wife and his mother.

Perhaps some crank with a real or fancied grievance against Lingle had killed him. The crime was such a bold, almost foolhardy act, committed as it was in the view of a crowd of witnesses. Was it logical that a disordered mind had planned it?

Lingle Had Made Enemies.

Lingle had made enemies of a personal sort. It was possible that one of these, acting for himself, had shot the reporter.

Somewhere ahead lay the true path to the murderer, but how many wrong paths would be trod by those now standing on the threshold before they struck the right one?

On the day of the Lingle murder, even while the reporter's body still lay on the floor of the tunnel, a theory was evolved that the members of the "North Side gang" had schemed for Lingle's death.

Among the detectives who were rushed to the murder scene were Lieut. William Cusack and his squad from the detective bureau. As they approached to the point where Commissioner Russell and Detective Commissioner Stege were issuing orders, they were halted in their progress by the press of spectators.

Police Discuss a Raid.

Cusack called out to Stege from where he stood:

"Shall we hit that spot now?"

"No, wait a little while to give them time to get back there," Stege replied.

Newspaper men overheard the conversation, and reached the conclusion that Cusack and Stege had a theory as to the whereabouts of the killer and his possible accomplices. Reports of the conversation became garbled, and for a time the report was that it had been between Stege and Russell, and this gave rise to rumors that Russell might have had some advance information of the peril in which his closest friend, Lingle, was living.

But this inference was dispelled, and the information impelling the conversation was not so direct as was thought by the newspaper men.

Hangout Under Police Eye.

Stege explained later that Cusack had several days before brought information to him concerning a hangout of the "North Side gang," and the hangout had been under surveillance.

"We thought," said Stege, "that if the killing of Jake Lingle was a gang slaying, then it must have been plotted by the north siders. We knew that Lingle hated Zuta and the Aiellos, and we believed they might also have hated him.

"If they planned Lingle's murder, it was likely they would be found in that hangout, but I wanted to give them opportunity to return to it in the event they had come out to aid in the crime."

Aiellos "Know Nothing."

The place was raided, and among the prisoners was Dominick Aiello. Near his hand were two revolvers and a shotgun, all loaded. He was known as the sharpshooter of the Aiello clan. Later his brother, Carl Aiello, was arrested, but the most notorious of the Aiellos, Joe, the chieftain of this murderous tribe, was not found.

The two Aiellos, questioned at the detective bureau, presented the same stolid, stupid attitude that all their Sicilian brothers in gangdom have exhibited when in the hands of the police. They "knew nothing," gesticulated negatively with their hands, shrugged their shoulders, and no end of questioning could elicit a shred of information from them.

"BOSS" M'LAUGHLIN

But another clew, much more significant, was supplied by Chief Investigator Roche, and its importance was amplified by other information.

This concerned John J. [Boss] McLaughlin, a former member of the state legislature, who had, some time before the Lingle murder, essayed to branch out in the gambling racket.

Gaming Houses Planned.

He was reported to have established himself as a potential political fixer for the Aiello-Zuta-Moran gang, and his plans, it was said, were to set up gambling houses in the territory of the north siders.

It may be pointed out, parenthetically, that for some time prior to this, by agreement among the gang leaders of Chicago, the entire city was laid out into territories. A definite area was allocated to each of the "recognized" gangs, and to the north side gang went that territory located north of Madison street. For the north side gang to locate any of their vice or gambling dives, or liquor stations and speakeasies, at any site south of Madison street was to be considered an act of violence comparable to the invasion of an agreed boundary line by a foreign nation.

Gambling Supposedly Shut Down.

During the Russell régime in the police department all organized gambling was supposed to be shut down, with the exception of bookmaking. The latter form of gambling, in the contention of Russell and some other police authorities, cannot be suppressed.

Boss McLaughlin proposed to break down the edict against gambling, and thought himself the man who could do it. His first step, apparently, was to see State's Attorney Swanson, whom he had known in their days together in the legislature.

He complained to Mr. Swanson about the gambling racket situation, asserting that some cliques, with political backing, were able to operate gaming houses, and he asked permission to open up one or two places on his own account—just modest little spots, as he put it.

The state's attorney had no intention of giving anybody sanction to violate the law, but he did not put it bluntly to this man he had known so many years, in better days, and Boss McLaughlin went away without what he considered a definite refusal.

Tells Editor of Conversation.

Next he appears to have gone to see Lingle. One night late in May, in the corridor outside the local room of THE TRIBUNE, the city editor, passing by, happened to notice Lingle in a heated conversation with another man.

The city editor walked by and entered the local room, where he was approached a few minutes later by Lingle.

"Did you know who that was I was talking to?" he asked.

"No."

"That was Boss McLaughlin, and he wants me to get Russell to let him open some gambling joints. I don't see why these chumps come to see me. They seem to think I'm the chief of police instead of Russell. I tell them that I haven't got anything to do with that. 'Go on and see Russell.' I tell them, and the chumps think I'm fooling or something. I tell them that Russell has shut up the town and it'll stay shut, and they don't believe me."

Opens His First Joint.

McLaughlin opened his first gambling house at 606 West Madison street and it was promptly raided by a squad from Commissioner Russell's office. "The Boss" went to see Russell and protested against the raid, saying that State's Attorney Swanson had given him permission to go.

Russell discussed the incident with his friend, Lingle, and the latter went to see Pat Roche.

"I hear the state's attorney is giving the right of way to gambling joints," he told Roche.

"First I've heard of it," the chief investigator replied. "What are you driving at?"

"Why, Boss McLaughlin told Russell that Swanson had given him the okay to open gambling joints."

"Don't make me laugh. I hadn't heard of this, but if that bird tries any of that kind of business I'll knock him off so quick he'll think he's in a Kansas cyclone."

"Okay," said Lingle.

McLaughlin Calls Office.

That night, again in the office of THE TRIBUNE, Lingle was called to the telephone. He recognized the voice of McLaughlin and asked him to hold the wire a moment. Lingle glanced quickly about and his eye fell upon the reporter who covers the state's attorney's office and Criminal court building.

"Say, George," he said, "listen in on an extension of this wire, will you? I want you to hear what this bird is going to tell me."

The conversation, as repeated by the reporter after the murder of Lingle had made it appear significant, opened with McLaughlin complaining about the police raid on his gambling house.

"Swanson told me it was all right to go ahead and I don't see why Russell is buttin' in," said "The Boss."

"I don't believe Swanson told you any such thing," replied Lingle, "but if it is true, you get Swanson to write a letter to Russell, notifying him that it is all right for you to go ahead."

Says Swanson Won't Write.

"Do you think Swanson is crazy?" McLaughlin demanded. "He wouldn't write such a letter."

"Well, Russell can't let you run, that's final," Lingle replied.

McLaughlin cursed and said, "I'll catch up with you, and it won't be long, either," and hung up the receiver.

This was but a few days before the murder of Lingle. When the facts had been obtained on the same day as that of the crime McLaughlin was arrested and was questioned by Roche, Russell, and Stege. He protested that he had meant no threat to Lingle.

"Why, I wouldn't hurt a hair on his head," he said. "I liked Jake. I might have asked him to do me a favor or two, but I certainly never wished him any harm."

No evidence implicating McLaughlin in the murder could be obtained, and he was released while the investigation went on.

FACTORS IN EFFORTS TO SOLVE LINGLE MURDER

TRACE MURDER GUN

Col. Goddard and his staff had worked far into night on the weapon discarded by the Lingle slayer. An examination of the bullet recovered from the victim's head revealed that it had been fired from the weapon in question.

A search for finger prints on the gun had been made, and a faint trace of what appeared to be a finger or thumb or palm print was found. Finger print experts retained by the coroner examined the print and declared it would be impossible to identify it with the person who had left the mark. Thus the hope for finger print evidence had to be abandoned.

Of most vital importance, however, was the identification of the weapon itself. Col. Goddard discovered by his process the manufacturer's number, which had been filed off the gun, and he communicated his finding to Coroner Bundesen.

The coroner, on the day following the murder of Lingle, telephoned to the Colt factory in Connecticut. He gave the Colt officials the number of the weapon and within an hour received a telegraphic report that the gun had been sold in June, 1928, with five others of the same description, to Peter Von Frantzius, a sporting goods dealer on the north side of Chicago.

Gun Is Real Clew.

Here was a real clew, for Von Frantzius had become notorious as the procurer of weapons—machine guns, shotguns, rifles and revolvers—for the gangsters of Chicago.

Von Frantzius' activities were exposed during the investigation of the St. Valentine's day massacre in 1929. Machine guns and revolvers used that day by the men who lined seven henchmen of the "north side gang" against the wall of a garage in North Clark street and mowed them all down, were found to have been sold by Von Frantzius.

The dealer was questioned, and after days of inquiry he admitted that he had sold firearms and ammunition to many gangsters, including members of the Capone gang, and of the north side gang.

Efforts to prosecute Von Frantzius at the time were unsuccessful, for there was no provision in law making it a crime to sell weapons.

Gun Seller Is Arrested.

Now here was another infamous crime committed with a gun from the shop of Von Frantzius. Coroner Bundesen, who had directed the investigation of the St. Valentine's day massacre, ordered that Von Frantzius be arrested, and that same afternoon—this was still the 10th of June, the day after the Lingle murder—the sporting goods dealer was brought to the county building by the coroner's detectives.

In a secret office maintained by the coroner, Von Frantzius was submitted to the questioning of Dr. Bundesen, Russell, and a TRIBUNE reporter.

"Now I want you to get this straight, Von Frantzius," began the coroner. "Another terrible crime has resulted from your devilish practice of selling guns to gangsters. This one so far overshadows any other murder that has ever been committed in this town that the others, yes, even the St. Valentine's day massacre, fades beside it.

"I think we dealt too easily with you last time, and I want to tell you now that if you lie to us it will go hard with you. You're in serious trouble, Von Frantzius. There are people in this city who will never rest until this Lingle mystery is solved, and if you don't do your part you'll find your way to the penitentiary."

Trying to Atone for Errors.

Von Frantzius, a slight man of sallow countenance, protested that he had discontinued the sale of weapons to gangsters, and that he was trying to atone for his past errors. He promised vehemently and volubly that he would tell the truth in this case.

All of his books and records had been seized by the coroner's detectives, and Von Frantzius was directed to determine to whom he had sold the weapon which killed Lingle.

He delved into the records. Hours passed and still he asserted he was unable to find the entries identifying the transaction. Finally he announced that there was no record of it. More hours went by, as the investigators persisted in their questioning of Von Frantzius, and finally they began a search of the records on their own account.

On a date in June, 1928, corresponding with the date on which the Colt factory sold the weapons to Von Frantzius, an entry was found in the dealer's journal showing the receipt of $165 in cash. The entry showed no explanation for the transaction and it was the only entry in the entire journal which did not carry an explanation.

NAMES FOSTER AS BUYER

Confronted with this, Von Frantzius admitted that it was undoubtedly the record made when the six revolvers were sold. All the other entries showed the numbers of the weapons sold and nowhere did the number of the weapon in the Lingle case appear.

At length Von Frantzius said he recalled the transaction, and he asserted that he had received an order for the weapons from Frank Foster, a gunman then associated with the north side gang, whom he declared he had known only as "Mr. Williams." He identified photographs of Foster as those of the man who had ordered the weapons.

He also stated that Foster had frequently come to the shop, sometimes in company with Ted Newberry, another hoodlum of the north side mob.

Lie Detector Is Used.

The questioning of Von Frantzius was continued for days, and at one time the lie detector was employed operated by Leonard Keeler, who is connected with the Scientific Crime Detection laboratory. But Von Frantzius held fast to his story.

A secret search for Foster was put under way. Several witnesses to the murder of Lingle were shown pictures of Foster, and they said that, while Foster bore a slight resemblance to the murderer, they were quite sure he was not the man.

The theory on which the search was ordered was that Foster, who purchased the gun with which the reporter was slain, must be made to tell to whom he delivered the weapon. It was then believed that Foster knew details of the killing, since he was a member of the north side gang then under suspicion.

Coroner's Inquest Postponed.

The coroner's inquest had been opened, but after routine medical testimony had been taken it was indefinitely postponed. It was decided that the taking of testimony at a coroner's inquest, particularly of the eye witnesses to the crime, would only serve to aid the criminal when he was caught and assist his attorneys in framing a defense.

At the very outset it was agreed by Dr. Bundesen, Russell, and Stege that no pains should be spared to prevent the developments of the investigation from becoming known to the underworld. So many criminal investigations in the past had been ruined by premature exposure of facts and by the practice of the police and legal investigators of spreading their evidence in the newspapers as quickly as they received it and even before they had opportunity to act upon it.

This procedure had often been condemned, and it was hoped that the Lingle case might be made an exception; that the investigation might proceed in an efficient, modern and scientific manner.

Round Up Notorious Criminals.

Immediately after the murder Russell and Stege directed their men to round up notorious criminals and police characters, and within 24 hours 664 prisoners, some of whom had prison records, were seized by the police.

Gangsters fled from the city and the heat of the investigation, and almost overnight all the worst of the hoodlums had disappeared.

Civic and religious organizations took up a cry for reform and demanded that the murder of Lingle be made the fulcrum by which gang rule might be broken. The president of the Chicago Association of Commerce named a committee of sixty prominent business leaders to meet and consider ways and means of warfare against the gangs.

(Tomorrow's installment will describe the organization of the investigation force which took full charge of the Lingle murder inquiry.)

OTHER BROTHERS JURORS TELL OF VERDICT IN CASE

Blame Lone Holdout for Light Penalty.

Five jurors in the Leo Brothers murder trial gave their views yesterday on the verdict of guilty and penalty of 14 years' imprisonment meted out to the St. Louis gunman. They joined five other jurors, whose opinions were published in THE TRIBUNE on Sunday, in stating that a much heavier punishment would have been given Brothers if it had not been for the resistance of the twelfth juror, Philip Hagerman, a street car motorman.

"Stubborn," "illogical," "irritating," "unreasoning," were some of the adjectives applied by ten jurors to the attitude of Hagerman in the juryroom throughout the 27 hours of debate.

Edward J. Brown, 541 North Troy street, of the advertising department of the Standard Oil company, discussed the verdict.

"There was never a more fair verdict given," he said. "But Hagerman's statement that he was forced into voting guilty and that he still believes in Brothers' innocence was most unfair. I would have voted for 40 years' imprisonment for Brothers if we had not been forced to compromise with Hagerman.

Saved from Life Term.

"I think a penalty of life imprisonment would have been extremely probable if it were not for Hagerman. As it was, the penalty of 14 years upon which we had to compromise constituted an insult to the intelligence of the jury. There was not a doubt of Brothers' guilt.

"The trial was most fair and the judge could not have been more just. He leaned, if anything, towards the defense in making his decisions. He was fairer than I believe I could have been.

"Hagerman's statement that conditions in the jury room and lack of good food affected his verdict aggravated me. It was a plain lie. The food was most excellent and we were treated as if we were living in an excellent hotel. We had everything we wanted.

"The evidence proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Brothers was guilty.

"Hagerman told us during the argument that he would hold out until a mistrial was declared. He gave no reason for this stand. He wouldn't argue, just looked out the window."

Convinced of Guilt.

Jacob M. Schlosser, 3750 Sunnyside avenue, an employé of the Autopoint Pencil company, was next interviewed.

"The longer the balloting went on, the more convinced I became of Brothers' guilt," he said. "Another week wouldn't have changed me. The only reason the electric chair was not considered for Brothers was the testimony of a defense witness that she saw the man who fired the gun and that it was not Brothers. There was no doubt that Brothers was at the scene of the slaying and was an accessory to the murder.

"He should have been given at least 25 years imprisonment and Hagerman's stand was the reason he didn't get it. Hagerman's statement about food and conditions was ridiculous. I gained six pounds while on the jury."

Walter W. Graff, 1847 South Wenonah avenue, Berwyn, a foreman at the Western Electric company, agreed that Hagerman prevented a heavier penalty for Brothers and that the juror irritated the others by his refusal to argue about the case, merely insisting that Brothers was innocent.

Kelsie Stone, 943 S. Lathrop avenue, Forest Park, a glass cutter, declared the trial and verdict had been just and fair.

David Tateel, 2031 Summerdale avenue, an accountant, was reluctant to discuss the verdict. "It was most certainly fair," he declared.

Other Jurors' Statements.

The statements of the other jurors, published in THE TRIBUNE last Sunday, follow:

Herbert Thompson, 1368 East 52d street: "The worst part of the long debate was the refusal of Hagerman to talk about the case. He would say: 'I have my own ideas' and walk away. He spent half the time in the washroom, isolated from the rest of us. He would look out the window for long periods with his back to the rest.

"He never gave a logical reason for his attitude. We pleaded, cajoled, kidded and stormed at him at intervals. He said he had had some trouble with policemen and thought all policemen were crooks. He hated policemen, he said.

"If it were not for Hagerman, a much heavier penalty would have been fixed."

Herman W. Crotzer, 1517 East 67th place, foreman of the jury: "Not a single witness was produced to show that Brothers was a man of good character, as the defense said they would show. Hagerman's attitude was most irritating. He would not talk about the case at all."

Frank Edgeworth, 6843 Anthony avenue: "The jury started to hear the evidence with the presumption of innocence in Brothers' favor. But that was gradually dissipated by strong evidence. It is certain that Brothers' had at least guilty knowledge of the murder."

Lars S. Andnesen, 1451 North Luna avenue: "I wanted to give Brothers a life sentence. The evidence showed beyond a doubt that he was guilty. Because of Hagerman's stand, it was necessary finally to compromise on 14 years. Hagerman, at no time, could be reasoned with."

Herman Isaacson, 3562 Palmer street: "The verdict was fair and the jury impartial."

RAID ELKS CLUB AND FIND BOOZE IN 65 BOTTLES

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—A raid based on a complaint that the Jersey City Elks club in Journal square was "no more than an exalted speakeasy" was made late this afternoon by six detectives of the Hudson county prosecutor's office. Although a quantity of what was alleged to be intoxicating liquor was seized, no arrests were made.

Former Gov. Harry A. Moore, Mayor Frank Hague and many other men prominent in New Jersey politics are members of this lodge of Elks.

The raid was made on a search warrant issued by Common Pleas Judge Daniel T. O'Regan on complaint of Daniel Powers, a former exalted ruler of the lodge. The raiding party was led by Captain of Detectives Peter J. Devine, who said sixty-five bottles of assorted liquors had been found behind a bar in the clubhouse basement.

He explained that no arrests were made because no one, apparently, was in possession of the liquor.

TRANSIT ISSUES GIVEN HEARINGS IN TWO COURTS

Judge Removes Self as Security Owner.

Transit litigation was given a brief airing yesterday in the Federal and County courts in actions brought by parties interested in the securities of the various local transportation companies which are to be consolidated under the comprehensive transit ordinance approved by the voters last July.

In the Superior court Judge Denis E. Sullivan decided not to hear the petition of two taxpayers and security holders for an injunction to restrain the city from spending any money from the transit fund. He announced that because he holds bonds of the Chicago Railways company he will assign the case to another judge on Thursday.

Ask Appraisers Be Named.

In the federal court Attorney Francis X. Busch, on behalf of the Chicago Title and Trust company, filed a motion to appoint appraisers to fix an upset price for some $30,000,000 of Chicago City and Connecting railways collateral trust inventures, for which the trust company is trustee.

Objections to the filing of the motion were raised by Attorney Bruce Johnstone, representing the First Union Trust and Savings bank, which is trustee for securities outstanding against the inventures. His objections were overruled by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, and a hearing on the motion will be held tomorrow or Thursday.

In stating his objections, Attorney Johnstone said that on tomorrow or Thursday a final decree will be presented to Judge Wilkerson ordering the sale of the Surface Lines, which are now in receivership, and also setting a date for the sale. The sale when ordered will culminate in the submission of the reorganization plan to the court for its approval.

Test Legality of Ordinance.

The petition before Judge Sullivan for a temporary injunction was the first move in the suit brought by Attorney Stephen A. Foster in behalf of Mrs. Elisabeth Bass and Augustus Olson, owners of transit securities, to determine the validity of the ordinance and the enabling legislation on which it was founded. Attorney Foster contends that the ordinance and the legislation are unconstitutional.

Attorney Foster argued that the suit is in the nature of a test case and should be settled before the transit program is carried out. He said that there is an immediate emergency in that "large sums" are being expended every day from the fund.

The issuance of an injunction, according to Attorney Walter L. Fisher, representing the city, would halt payments from the transit fund and keep the city from paying expenses in the State street widening and subway assessment hearings. He said that the questions raised in the suit are also at issue in the objections to the State street widening, which is ready for trial tomorrow before Judge Mangan.

EX-KING AMANULLAH OF AFGHANISTAN ON VOYAGE TO ARABIA

ROME, April 6.—(AP)—Former King Amanullah of Afghanistan left Naples yesterday aboard the Japanese steamer Kteri, bound for Arabia. The former king was accompanied by two secretaries and was traveling under the name of Abid Amin Maru. His departure caused considerable speculation in political circles here inasmuch as recent reports have intimated he is planning a coup d'état to recover the throne, now held by Nadir Khan. Amanullah has been residing in Italy ever since he lost the crown.

KIRKLAND GIVEN A NEW TRIAL ON SLAYING CHARGE

State May Concentrate on Death Penalty.

JUDGE CRUMPACKER.

Upholding Kirkland's counsel in their contention that the verdict of first degree murder perpetrated by a blow of the fist was not justified by the evidence, Judge Crumpacker set the second trial for April 29. Although once again in jeopardy of the electric chair, the 20 year old defendant was jubilant.

"Will I go free this time?" he chortled, repeating a reporter's sober question. "I hope to tell you I will."

Poses Happily for Pictures.

Later in the office of Sheriff Burney Maxwell on the floor below the courtroom he gave vent to his elation by prancing about the floor, shadow boxing with one of his deputized guards. Photographers were setting up their cameras.

"A big smile now, Virgil," counseled one of his lawyers, Darrait O'Hara of Chicago. Kirkland spread his mouth in a wide smile as the cameras clicked.

Judge Crumpacker prefaced his ruling with a half an hour discourse, expounding the law in the case, marveling at the widespread and intense public interest in the trial, and expressing his sympathy to the family of the dead girl who, according to the state's evidence, had been taken to a liquor revel by Kirkland, ravished by himself and four others now awaiting trial, and left dead at a physician's home.

Explains Law Involved.

For conviction on a first degree murder charge, the judge pointed out, the statute and the Indiana Supreme court require strong evidence of malice and premeditation. Moreover, the judge said, he had given consideration to the line of Illinois Supreme court decisions cited by Mr. O'Hara and holding that death inflicted by a fist could not be construed as any more than manslaughter.

"If Virgil Kirkland intended killing Arlene Draves he chose a very bungling way to accomplish his purpose," the judge reasoned.

"It is hardly conceivable," he added, "that if he was indeed guilty of premeditated murder he would immediately have rushed to the home of her family, informed them of her death, and waited there until the police arrived to arrest him."

Prosecutor Underwood made evident his disappointment at the ruling. He had been confident the jury's verdict would be upheld.

Following the ruling he announced the state would probably dismiss the first two counts of the indictment, which charge murder by a blow of a fist or blunt instrument, thus narrowing the issue to the charge of murder by rape, or attempted rape, offenses with a mandatory death penalty. This course became a certainty when the judge declared that if the first two counts were retained he would instruct the jury to disregard them.

Contrary to some reports, restriction of the indictment will not limit the new jury to only two alternatives—death or acquittal. Under the last two counts, Mr. Underwood said, the jury may convict Kirkland of rape alone, or attempted rape or assault in the attempt to commit rape. All three offenses carry penalties less than life imprisonment.

During the trial, Judge Crumpacker revealed, he had received hundreds of letters, "90 per cent of the writers being women and a majority Chicagoans, who, in the violence of their opinions, betrayed the spirit of the mob."

Resents Public Clamor.

"It is passing strange," he observed in his placid voice, "that the principals in this tragedy—if it may be called such—two humble persons, possessing neither wealth nor social position, should be the instruments through which so much public interest has been aroused."

"I cannot and will not be influenced by public clamor in this case," and here he grew a little vehement. "I am answerable only to my own conscience, and I propose to decide this in accordance with legal principles properly applied."

He regretted the necessity for again dragging forth the evidence in its revolting detail and sustained the new trial motion only because he was convinced that the Supreme court would otherwise have done so, the judge said.

WIDOW OF STANFORD HISTORY PROFESSOR TO MARRY STEPSON

San Francisco, Cal., April 6.—(A?)—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ober announced here today their daughter, Mrs. Florence Ober Adams, widow of Dr. E. D. Adams, former head of the history department of Stanford university, will marry her stepson, Sidney Francis Adams here next Saturday. Adams, a son of Prof. Adams by a previous marriage, is two or three years younger than his prospective bride and will become stepfather to three of his half brothers. The couple will live in Gilman, Colo., where Adams is a mining engineer.

DECLARES W-G-N THE RESCUER OF HIS DYING SON

Credit for saving the life of his 6 year old son, Dennis, was given to W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station, yesterday by Georg Walker, Negro postal clerk, of 343 East 55th place.

On Saturday night Walker telephoned W-G-N requesting an emergency appeal broadcast for a volunteer to give a blood transfusion. A five weeks' effort to locate a donor with blood the same type as that of the child had failed. Immediately after the broadcast several offers were received at Cook county hospital where the child has been ill with progressive anemia since Dec. 1.

"I owe my son's life to THE TRIBUNE's radio station," Walker declared yesterday. "We had given up hope because the blood offered by our neighbors and friends did not seem to be the right type. Saturday we didn't know what to do. We were scheduled to have some one at the hospital for a transfusion Sunday morning. Finally my wife decided to call W-G-N. Volunteers went to the hospital right away after the broadcast.

"Our boy is getting along wonderfully well now. The man who gave the blood wasn't of our race, but it made no difference to him. He stood right by my son and gave his blood. And he is willing to give more."

Rum Running Costs Canada Million Per Year in Duties

QUEBEC, April 6.—(A?)—The Canadian government, it was estimated today, is losing $1,000,000 a year in excise taxes on liquor through smuggling operations between Quebec and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon. The cabinet has appointed Justice Gibsone of the Supreme court as a commissioner to make a formal investigation.

101 RANCH SUES CIRCUS COMBINE FOR $1,040,000

Suit for $1,040,000, charging conspiracy in restraint of trade, was filed against the circus combine of Ringling Brothers, Sells Floto, Hagenbach Wallace, Barnum Bailey, and other shows, in the federal district court yesterday on behalf of Zack T. Miller and the Miller Brothers' 101 Ranch circus of Ponca City, Okla.

The bill charges that the alleged conspirators induced Tom Mix, movie cowboy, to break his contract with the 101 Ranch circus by paying him $12,000 a week. It is also charged that the combine circulated false propaganda as to the plaintiff's financial status, mutilated posters, and interfered with the schedules of the Oklohamo show, causing an actual loss of $350,000 in 1930.

The plaintiff asks $400,000 for the loss of Mix, $350,000 for the alleged actual loss, $90,000 for property damage, and $200,000 for impaired credit.

HUSBAND, WIFE DIE AS TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Aged Couple Victims in Zion City Crash.

An aged man and his wife were instantly killed yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a northbound Chicago and North Western railroad train at the 29th street crossing in Zion City. The dead were Lewis Ostermann, 73 years old, 31 South Victory street, Waukegan, and his wife, Anna, 63 years old.

The Ostermanns left their home yesterday afternoon to go to a Zion City bakery. On their way they stopped at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Emma Larson, at Beach, Ill., to invite her to go with them. When she declined the couple continued their journey alone. It is believed Ostermann, who was slightly deaf, did not hear the train's whistle.

Ostermann, a retired carpenter, had lived in Waukegan for 40 years. He and his wife are survived by six children—Mrs. Larson, Mrs. Hilda Butler, Mrs. Paul Hanlin, and Vernon, Alvin and Arthur Ostermann. At the family home last night Bobbie, a dog which had been with the couple for 17 years, stood on guard in their bedroom. Friends and relatives could not induce him to leave the room or to take food.

Pet Dog Stands Guard.

Two deaths in Cook county raised the 1931 auto toll to 308. The victims:

Mrs. Lillian Erickson, 30 years old, 11133 Vernon avenue. Died in the Burnside hospital of injuries received March 29 when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband collided with another car at 87th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Elish Peacock, 70 years old, address unknown. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered March 4 when he was struck by a hit and run driver at Van Buren and Morgan streets.

Revives After Being "Dead."

Pronounced "dead" by an amateur physician after an auto crash at Madison street and Damen avenue, Raymond Garrity, 5416 Washington street, a clerk in the city collector's office, revived in the patrol wagon taking him to the county morgue.

Mrs. Frances McAuliff, 37 years old, 4891 North Paulina street; her husband, James L. McAuliff, secretary and manager of the David Storage company, and Mrs. Clara Walsh, 32 years old, 4450 North Winchester avenue, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a street car at Walton place and State street. At the Augustana hospital it was reported that Mrs. McAuliff may die.

Miss Alva Johnson, 23 years old, of Forest Park, a stewardess for Boeing Air Transport, Inc., was killed last night, and Lloyd Schram of Cheyenne, Wyo., a co-pilot for the air company, was slightly hurt when their automobile overturned on the Lincoln highway 12 miles west of Cheyenne, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Miss Johnson was driving the machine and lost control when the car struck heavy gravel while descending a hill.

WINS TROPHY

MAJ. JAMES H. DOOLITTLE.

Cleveland, O., April 6.—(AP)—Maj. James H. Doolittle, popularly known as "Daring Jim" for doing such things as making a power dive from 4,000 feet and flying blind with all vision obstructed, will receive one of aviation's foremost honors here tomorrow. He will receive the Harmon trophy of the Ligue International des Aviateurs.

He will share honors with the late Myron T. Herrick of Cleveland, ambassador to France, whose relatives will be presented with the scroll of the Ligue for Herrick's promotion of the Lafayette esquadrille during the war, and his part in the reception of Lindbergh in Paris.

Doolittle will be given the trophy as the first pilot to take off, fly, and land in blind flight. The flight was made at Mitchel field in 1929, using radio beacon lights.

Other names on the Harmon trophy, first awarded in 1926, are Shirley Short, Lindbergh, and Ben Eilson.

Chief of Gang Which Slew Villa Returns to Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 6.—(AP)—Jesus Salas Barraza, leader of the gang which assassinated Pancho Villa in 1923, returned here today after two years in exile to seek a pardon for his revolutionary activities and the right to establish his home in Mexico again. He said he had lived in the United States recently, and had declined an offer to appear in a motion picture based on Villa's life and death.

AN ARMED GANG MURDERS 3 JEWS NEAR JERUSALEM

[Copyright, 1931: By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, April 6.—While the Holy City was congratulating itself today upon the peaceful passing thus far of the Nebi Musi pilgrimages, news was received here of the murder of three young Jews, two men and a girl, and the serious wounding of four others when attacked by an unidentified armed gang just outside Haifa.

The assault occurred last night when the victims, members of a communal farm, were returning home in a cart from a visit to a neighboring farm. A volley of shots killed the girl, Hinda Fishman, and a youth named Samuel Dishel. Jacob Zamir subsequently died in a hospital. The first shots were followed by a fusillade of others coming from the opposite side of the road. Five others on the cart also were hit, while the remainder succeeded in jumping off and hiding underneath.

The police found several cartridge shells fired, apparently with an English type rifle, and investigation is on in near-by Arab villages.

GANDHI MAY VISIT AMERICA SOON; SEEKS SUPPORT

Compares India with U.S. 150 Years Ago.

NEW DELHI, India, April 6.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, Indian national leader, is considering carrying out his long cherished desire to visit the United States, where he expects to find a sympathetic response to his fight for independence in India.

It became known today the mahatma may go to America either before or after the second round table conference in London, which he will attend. He would make the trip as a private citizen and without formal invitation and without commitment to any organization.

Compares India to U. S.

It is considered unlikely the British government will look with favor on the proposed trip. However, the leader's friends here believe he will carry out his intentions regardless of the official attitude in London.

The mahatma believes India's independence movement will increase its support throughout the world if he visits the country which 150 years ago faced a problem somewhat similar to that which confronts India today. He also is eager to bring to fruition, with the aid of eastern spiritualism, Woodrow Wilson's ideal of international brotherhood, which he declared was destroyed after the world war by European materialism.

Will Preach Nonviolence.

The principal message which India's "holy man" would take to America would be his favorite doctrines of nonviolence, passive resistance, equal rights for women, prohibition, disarmament, uplift of backward races, and removal of racial prejudices with a view of attaining universal peace.

While Gandhi would refrain from taking part in internal politics of the United States, his friends say he will not hesitate to speak his mind regarding American crime, bootlegging, and divorce.

Southern Chile Rocked by Quake; People in Panic

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 6.—(AP)—A strong earth tremor shook parts of the south central region of Chile last night, reports reaching here today said. In Curico, province of Talca, audiences in theaters ran into the streets in terror. The shock caused no damage.

MANAGUA COUNTS LOSS; PLANS TO RENEW BUSINESS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 6.—(AP)—With the most pressing relief work out of the way, business men of Managua took stock today of their material losses from earthquake and fire.

Many merchants were alarmed by a report that insurance on damage from the quake would not be paid. Some business men expressed the opinion that insurance policies without earthquake clauses and without clauses covering fire resulting from earthquakes might partly be paid in accordance with what they said the procedure was after the Tokio disaster. The agent of one British insurance company said his firm would honor all policies.

Under the direction of Ernest J. Swift, Red Cross official, the United States marines, the native National Guard and canal engineers are making great progress in cleaning up the city by conscripting all able bodied men. Milk is being systematically distributed to babies and food rationed off to the populace in return for their labor. Air mail is coming in regularly and is being distributed by the National Guard.

The government has started functioning again and has published its first official bulletin since the disaster giving general information as to the damage and the relief work.

Give Up Hope for Safety of Seven on Lost Air Liner

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 6.—(AP)—Not even the faintest clew has been found to the fate of the air liner Southern Cloud which disappeared between Sydney and Melbourne over two weeks ago. The plane belonged to a company directed by Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, who led a search which was continued until all hope was abandoned. It is taken for granted that all seven persons who were aboard the plane are dead.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & Co

MRS. M. H. FOSS, 5448 CORNELL AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.—"Faced with every landlord's problem of lowering rents, and increasing taxes, we decided to increase the revenue from our building by converting an otherwise unused space in the basement into an apartment. We furnished this space with furniture obtained through Tribune ads, and when the apartment was completed, advertised it. The third prospect rented it. All day and until 10 at night we had callers, many of whom were bitterly disappointed that the place was rented. The amazing thing to us was not only the quantity of callers, but their quality. The prospective tenants were, without exception, worth while, high class people, any of whom we would be glad to have in our building. Other apartment owners could well profit by our plan, as they would be certain to rent the space if they advertised in the Tribune."

E. F. J., 1415 FARWELL AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.—"Twenty-eight years ago, when automobiles were looked upon as 'horseless carriages,' I had an Oldsmobile 'runabout.' People at that time were skeptical about new cars to say nothing about used ones. However, I advertised it in the Tribune and received an answer from a man in Puxico, Mo., to the effect that he had written a friend of his in Chicago, who would look at it for him. I sold it to him for $375.00 and shipped it to Missouri. I had used the car for two years, a long time in that day and age. Your classified columns have grown considerably since that time and I have used them repeatedly in later years and always got the desired results.

A. SIEGEL, 6045 CHAMPLAIN AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.—"Left after renting season with several vacancies in a large building I was managing, I advertised simultaneously in the Tribune and in an evening paper. For purposes of check-up I made a record and found that not only were there two responses from the Tribune ad to one from the other, but, more important, out of every six flats rented four were to tenants obtained by the Tribune ad. Needless to say, I have since confined my advertising exclusively to the Tribune."

MRS. CORA CURTIS, 8636 S. DAMEN AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.—"On Friday, February 27th, I lost a bond—a loss which I could ill afford. Unable to dispose of the bond satisfactorily at the bank, I had put it in my handbag and departed for home, making a stop in a loop department store en route. It was not until evening that I discovered my loss. The next two days were spent trying to locate the bond, but without results. Late Monday, after almost giving up hope, I phoned an ad to the Tribune Lost and Found Column to be inserted Tuesday and Wednesday. Through this ad the bond was recovered, having been found in the department store by a lady who lived on the opposite side of the city. Lucky?—or the usual result of Tribune Want Ads?"

IRWIN L. BAUCH, 18TH AND "I" ST., LA PORTE, IND.—"The month of December is regarded by merchants as the poorest business month of the year. Two insertions of a small Tribune Want Ad in your Parcel Post and Express section turned this month into one of our most profitable months as it enabled us to market large quantities of small evergreens as live Christmas trees. Our advertising program included classified and display ads in other newspapers in Chicago and neighboring cities, but the small Tribune Want Ad, which was the least expensive, brought more orders than all of the other papers combined. This ad brought orders not only from the Middle West, but also from faraway states, including California. Needless to state, the Chicago Tribune will carry all of our future advertising."

LISBON SPEEDS TROOPS TO CRUSH ISLAND REVOLT

Rebels Defeat Loyalists in Madeira Clash.

LISBON, Portugal, April 6.—(AP)—Every seaworthy ship in the Portugese navy is being hurried to Funchal, Madeira, with troops to put down the military revolt which broke out there Saturday night. The first detachment of soldiers went out today in a destroyer and a cruiser. The gunboat Zaira is sailing tonight, and the old ironclad Vasco Da Gama sails tomorrow.

GEN. ANTONIO CARMONA. [A. P. Photo.]

The Fifth light cavalry refused to embark for service in Madeira today and their officers ordered the men on back to barracks and the Seventh regiment took their place. Gen. Antonio Carmona, president of Portugal, and in fact its dictator, tonight in a statement definitely saddled the responsibility for the revolt on political deportees.

While the Portuguese government was rushing soldiers, light artillery, and airplanes to combat the revolt, official circles today were studying reports of fighting on the island between rebels and loyalists. Although official reports were lacking, it was believed both sides had suffered casualties.

Loyalists Beaten in Battle.

One account was that the loyalists had been defeated in the first clash and their leader captured. Col. Cabacada, civil governor of Funchal, was said to have led the attack against the insurgents. Meanwhile, the central government has declared martial law throughout Madeira, although foreign diplomats in Lisbon were wondering how this could be enforced at present.

Two batteries of light artillery and 600 men from the Lisbon garrison sailed for Madeira on the transport Pedro Gomez this morning. They are due in Madeira Wednesday. There was speculation here tonight as to whether these forces will be permitted to land. The insurgents are known to be provided with ample arms and ammunition and it is believed the government flotilla would be unwilling to fire on the rebel position in fear of damaging foreign property or life. There is a large British colony in Madeira.

Thus far the rebels have ignored all attempts from Lisbon at conciliation. They have cut all cable communication between Madeira and the Portugal capital and refuse to deal with the government here. Late tonight word came from Funchal that a military triumvirate, composed of Gen Sousa Dias, Gen. Cardoso, and Col. Fereiria, had been set up as a junta government.

Army Men Revolt Leaders.

Actual leaders of the rebellion, which unseated and imprisoned the high commissioner and another high official, are said to be Lieut. Camoens and Silvio Pulido.

The government here has intimated all foreign ships proceeding to Funchal during the disturbance will do so at their own risk. However, reports from the island say foreign visitors are not being disturbed.

Col. Fernando Borges, a prominent military leader, has been put in supreme command of the expedition against the revolters.

PANTAGES SURE HE'LL BE CLEARED OF RAPE CHARGE

Los Angeles, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—The sensational trial of nearly two years ago of Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, on charges of raping Eunice Pringle, co-ed dancer, will be repeated.

BURON FITTS.

District Attorney Buron Fitts, whose conduct at the trial was criticized last week by the state Supreme court in awarding Pantages another opportunity to clear his name, said today after a review of the decision that he intended to prosecute again.

Pantages, who was convicted and sentenced to a prison term of one to fifty years, is at liberty on $100,000 bail. "If there is another trial," he said, "I am confident I will be acquitted."

In awarding Pantages another trial, the high court held the district attorney had prosecuted the case with prejudice.

The trial court was criticized for refusing to permit the defense to introduce evidence concerning the character of Miss Pringle.

Taxicab Driver, Arrested, Tries to Charge Cop Fare

New York, April 6.—(AP)—A taxi driver who tried to collect thirty cents for a ride to the police station from a patrolman who arrested him was fined $5 today for disorderly conduct. Patrolman Charles Carroll said he arrested the driver, Samuel Rosenthal, for refusal to obey his traffic directions.

VOTE FOR CHICAGO TODAY.

The election of Cermak by a majority of one vote would remove the strangling hold of the Thompson régime upon the city government. That in itself would be a blessing to the city and its people. It would open the way to better government, to a successful fight on crime, to better business, and more jobs for the people.

But it would not be enough. It would not be enough for two substantial reasons. Chicago and its self-respecting citizenship have suffered from the hurt done by the world-wide ill repute which Thompson has given the city. The reputable citizenship of our great community has been humiliated, its substantial interests have been injured by this ill fame. The recovery of Chicago's reputation should be restored by an emphatic and overwhelming repudiation of Thompson and his régime.

This calls for not the mere defeat of Thompson but his defeat by such a vote as will leave no doubt of the depth and force of the condemnation. Only a sweeping victory will restore Chicago's good name.

The weight of the verdict will also count heavily in the support of the needed reforms of government. It will give warning that the citizenship demands a new deal and proposes to have one. It will strengthen every honest effort to put the city's affairs to rights, to correct flagrant abuses, and to firmly establish proper methods. The momentum of a great victory at the polls will carry us so much farther toward good government.

These two considerations, one of civic self-respect, the other of immediate practical concern to every inhabitant of the city, ought to bring out every possible voter capable of thinking to cast his or her vote into the scales today.

THE LAW AND THE DOCTORS.

The American College of Physicians, meeting in Baltimore, voted a protest against the restrictive laws which interfere with their prescription of drugs and alcohol. The law, depriving the physician of discretion, denies reputability to the profession and endeavors to take from the patient the aid or relief which the doctor would give him. The restriction is based upon the assumption that the medical profession would go out of hand and become a social menace if it were permitted freedom of prescription.

If this assumption is not slanderous then the country is in a bad way, indeed, its sick being dependent upon professional men and women who would turn bootleggers and drug peddlers if the law did not police their medicine cases and prescription pads. In this respect the drug restrictions are even more barbaric than the whisky and malt limitations. They are the products of jaundiced minds gone quite off the handle in a voodooistic ecstasy.

The Wickersham commission hit the medicinal liquor restrictions as indefensible. The whole policy of interference with the physician at the sickbed is uncivilized. It is a part of the witch hunt, something out of an unbalanced mentality.

WHITE GLOVES FOR POLICEMEN.

The summer khaki for policemen has been discarded. Blue will take its place. Though blue, no doubt, has advantages, it has one drawback, at least for men assigned to traffic duty, that should be remedied. Blue is hard to see. In the evening traffic the policeman often is almost invisible amid the glare and confusion of lights and motion. Often he is in an exposed position. That he is not injured more often than he is is only his good luck.

In the interests of good traffic direction and of whole policemen, officers on traffic duty should wear white gloves at night, or use other means to make themselves visible. A complete policeman is far more serviceable to the city than one separated into diverse parts by an automobile.

SPEED ON HIGHWAYS.

The New York and New Jersey legislatures are considering the repeal of specific speed laws as irrelevant to the real requirements of safety on the roads. The old theory was one of restriction to maximums provided according to the character of the road. The early limitations in Chicago was eight miles in what was called the business district. It is the new theory that speed should be related entirely to conditions and that the careful driver's judgment may guide him as to speed, but must also consider many other factors of safety, for himself and for others. Conditions will indicate what is reasonable speed at any time, and the driver's responsibility is established by them.

The dangers of the thoroughfare generally will be relative to speed. At sixty miles an hour a driver will not meet an emergency, mechanical or otherwise, with the same control he would have at forty, but the higher speed, with improved roads, is getting the sanction of usage to which law generally yields. It is true that road conditions and the vicinity furnish the main qualifications of speed and determine what rate is reasonable. The considerate and careful driver gives these conditions a due regard and his judgment is safe. It is the present day tendency to base responsibility upon such theory and give the driver the full use of the modern automobile, which has a potential far beyond the contemplation of the old style speed law.

The modern speed potentialities are supposedly for general use and not for reserve or for unused possession. It is not human nature to keep out of use a power which has been developed for use. High speed is available and a legal veto of it seems inoperative. It is necessary then to seek security in other ways, in the perfection of roads, the elimination of grades, etc. The engineer takes the place of the lawmaker. Conservative people will not approve of the trend, but it seems to be in the nature of things.

ARMED YOUTH.

In soviet Russia every youth is being taught to bear arms. At the same time he is being molded by effort of instruction and discipline into the form approved by fanatic communism. Every source of information of other ideas or ideals is being shut off from the mind of Russian youth. The result must be the preparation of an army of narrow fanatics, unquestioning, uninformed, hostile to all the outside world.

In Fascist Italy somewhat the same process is going on. If Fascist youth is not shut off as completely as the youth of Russia from outside realities, it is being intensively trained in Fascist ideas under cover of a censorship which discourages and suppresses criticism and inquiry. At the same time it is being armed and disciplined as a military body.

Thus two of the greatest powers in Europe are forging two great military weapons, to be wielded by a tyrannic control, when the fitting moment arrives, while most of the rest of Europe and America are working eagerly for disarmament. In the United States a well organized pacifism, supported by American optimism, hatred of war, and the impulse to save money, is bringing about a reduction of our defenses in almost every department. The navy is being reduced, the army is being cut down, and a widespread propaganda against military training, which advocates of adequate defense demand, is proceeding in the churches, in the schools, in the forum of public discussion. Dreams of world peace are treated as pending realities. Devices for international conciliation are being prescribed as reliable alternatives to military power and as justification for the sacrifice of self-defense.

This process has gone farther in our country than in any other. Its consequences are certain and they will be disastrous when the day of trial arrives.

AN ISLAND IN THE LAKE.

Mr. J. E. Cahill, assistant division manager of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, says that it is quite practical to build an island in the lake, say three miles off Devon avenue or two miles off Fifty-fifth street. There is eighteen feet of water at one spot and only eight at the other. The city dumps a half million cubic yards of spoil a year. In that time, said the engineer, an island of a hundred acres could be made.

Made land has made the Chicago water front, which is the city's distinctive feature. Thirty years ago Charles M. Walker, then corporation counsel under Carter Harrison, was patiently urging the desirability of bathing beaches on the virtually unused outer side of the city. Now look at it on a warm summer day. The water front is the playground of the middle west and for nearly fifty miles it is the pride of the Chicago area.

An island two, three or more miles out, wherever engineering would put it, would add immeasurably to the uses of the lake. The drawback of this shore is its lack of harbors for small craft. They haven't nearby objectives with water stretches reliable for boats which are unsafe in bad weather. The lake is too tricky. An island would offer an objective and a protection. It would provide a cool recreation ground, the larger the better, easily and quickly reached by speed boats, a location for hotels and playing grounds. It is obtainable at comparatively small cost, easily made and an attraction of great value. There seems to be no reason why it should not be undertaken.

YOUNG AND TOUGH.

A 17 year old thief was delivered out of the St. Charles state school by three hoodlums about his age. They appeared at the institution with guns, found the boy in the bakery, intimidated the head baker and carried off their friend to a waiting automobile. The inmate thus escaping was known as an incorrigible. He had been sentenced for automobile stealing. This is his third escape and it was not a mere runaway. It was a delivery from jail with firearms.

If hoodlums in their teens have learned that it is easy to set state authority on its head and break an associate out of confinement the problem of the adult criminal will get harder. If the state is not to admit that it cannot handle them, even when they are only of high school age, the authorities will get the fugitive and also his helpers with exemplary promptness. Otherwise law soon will be taking impudence from the criminal kindergarten.

The Other Side

CHICAGO LOSES.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

Chicago's tail feathers today are drooping and her dreams of coming supremacy in state legislative matters have turned out to be just another nightmare. Not once but many times has Chicago sought to have the state senatorial districts remapped so that Cook county's representation in the legislature might be increased. On each occasion the "nays" won.

Owing to the increase in Cook county's population in the 1930 census a redistricting of the state according to population would give Chicago a majority of members in both houses of the legislature. This would enable Cook county to rule the roost forever and a day, and the remaining 101 counties in the state would be mere back townships. The vote in the house yesterday was 90 to 57 against Chicago's demand.

There are no apologies to be made to Chicago by downstate, but there is an implied pledge that she will get all she deserves in matters of legislation.

DYED SHOES POISON BABY.

In spite of all that has been written about poisoning from shoe dyes, we are not getting away from the trouble. Reports of cases continue to come in. The Journal, American Medical association, recently had a report of another case. Dr. S. J. Levin reported having attended a baby eight months old who was unconscious as a result of shoe dye poisoning. When the physician was called he noticed a sweetish odor and suspected that the child had a severe attack of acidosis.

Examination did not confirm this. He removed the child's shoes and noticed that they were the cause of the sweetish odor. He also noticed that they were damp. The mother told him that baby's cloth top shoes were soiled and she dyed them black with some shoe dye. She let them dry for about an hour and then put them on. After the baby had worn the shoes for about an hour he fell forward unconscious in his high chair. She noticed that his lips and nails were blue and his skin was dusky. As soon as the child was on the way to recovery the physician took the dye to a chemist for analysis. He found that it contained 20 per cent orthotoluidine.

The trouble with shoe dyes is in the solvent rather than the pigment. When the subject first attracted attention in America it was found that the manufacturers were using metrobenzene as a solvent and that it was this chemical that was causing the trouble. In Europe, where poisoning was being frequently reported, the solvent used was aniline. The conclusion was that both of these solvents were poisonous and neither should be used.

Experiments were made with other solvents. These showed that a solution of orthotoluidine was satisfactory from the standpoint of the trade. They also showed that adults would not be liable to poisoning as long as the strength of the solvent was kept below 30 per cent.

Dr. Levin's conclusion was that there is danger in going as high as a 20 per cent solution when the dye is to be used on a baby's shoes. Since no manufacturer can know whether the dye he sells is to be used on the shoes of a child or not, or whether it will come in contact with the skin of a supersensitive adult, somewhat less toxic solvent must be found. The trade must use it, else the people cannot afford to run the risk encountered in wearing home dyed shoes.

L. S. B. writes: I have been slightly crosseyed for many years. At 14 years of age it began to trouble me considerably. At 19 I had an operation to straighten my eyes. After four or five months the eyes began crossing again. What shall I do?

I see nothing to do but have the eye specialists decide whether wearing glasses will overcome the trouble. If not, have him operate.

CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACTS.

Chicago, March 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A party dealing with a chattel loan company, payments made monthly, mailed to them their monthly payment on the date the money is due. 1. Is not one contract the same, generally, as another? 2. I buy a house on contract and have usually known that if the money is in the mail on the date due it is considered legally paid in time without extra interest. Is this right? 3. How long can a person live in a foreclosed house? Can they dispossess him before the 15 month limitation of redemption? R. J. P.

1. The construction of contracts depends upon their wording. There is no rule that all contracts would be treated alike for the purpose of the question that you ask.
2. If the contract authorizes payment by mail, then in general putting the money in the mail would be regarded as a compliance.
3. Ordinarily the courts are reluctant to dispossess an owner during the 15 months if the taxes and repairs are kept up. Rights depend on the wording of the trust deed.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, March 28.—[Friend of the People.]—1. If the father of a foreign born child becomes a citizen of the United States, do the children when they reach twenty-one years of age automatically become citizens of the United States? He became a citizen in 1929. 2. If an American citizen marries an alien, does the citizen lose his citizenship?

1. The minor children of the father, if dwelling in the United States, become citizens at the time of his naturalization.
2. No.

UNDER FALSE COLORS.

Monticello, Ill., March 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some days ago a man came to this city representing that he was in the advertising department of a railroad and was going to put up time table cards in the depot with the advertisements on the border of the card, which he sold at $5 per space. Before the card was put up it was learned he had no authority from the company. He collected for four ads and when taken before the state's attorney he was released upon the ground that he had violated no law. What recourse have the four who paid him, and what legal authority had the state's attorney for his action? R. M. M.

If he was collecting money under an express or an implied understanding that he would secure consent from the railroad and put up the signs, then breach of such undertaking would be a basis for civil proceedings, but not the criminal proceedings.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS THING LOOKS FISHY!

The government is stocking the streams and lakes of our truly magnificent country with 400,000,000 trout and 10,000,000 bass. And what is a trout compared to a bass? Up, you, who have felt the mighty tug of a four pound small mouth black bass on your straining line, up and cry aloud for justice. And you who have peeled and hollowed out a bass and pasted cornmeal over it and put it into the sizzling pan over the camp fire—rise up and tell Washington that no trout ever cooked has half the flavor and savor of bass.

The government is seeking to abridge our inalienable right to catch and eat bass. Bass, the gamiest, the liveliest, the hardest fighter, the best eating of all the fish that ever wet a gill. Look at the bass even after you get him into the boat. And before you get him that far he will put up a fight that will make the battle of the Marne look like a social hour at the Old People's home. Then when you get him in the boat and tell him he's licked and it's all off, what does he do? Roll over like a trout and say, "All right, boys, you've got me; I'm licked."

Not Mr. Bass. He makes a dive at the guide and tries to bite off his foot, and he gives the fellow that caught him a wicked stab with his left dorsal fin and he yells, "Stand back, you dirty assassins, and come out there in the water and fight like a bass!"

That's the bass every time, and here down in Washington they're trying to put him out of business and supplant him with trout. There's dirty work at the crossroads, you bass fishermen. Sing the words of your favorite marching song and march shoulder to shoulder against these trout champions.

"The black bass dived to the bottom of the pool,
And he said to the wall-eyed pike:
'There'll be hell to pay in the lake today,
For I've seen your Uncle Ike.'"

And the poem itself brings out the attitude of the bass towards trout. This particular black bass didn't speak to a trout about Uncle Ike. He spoke to a wall-eyed pike. A respectable black bass wouldn't be caught dead speaking to a trout. Up, then, bass fishermen, on to Washington!

THE HUMANIST.

I shall not pass by beauty here
In search of loveliness remote;
I must not miss the melody in men
For some celestial note:
I need no harps beyond to bring
A music that the angels sing.

I who have seen the velvet rose
Upon a bush, above a breast;
I who have seen the mother bird
Above the nectar of the nest,—
I know of nothing more divine
Then life in it and in the vine.

I crave no city past the sun
Of jasper walls and golden gate;
I only need the river road
Beyond the town when day is late:
For distant worlds I do not yearn
While fireflies near me softly burn.

I do not stand in fear and awe
Of all the planets in pageantry,
For I possess the warp and woof
Spun by the spider and the bee:
And I am heir to a lovely earth
Where once a god did come to birth.

ABORIGINES.

MR. CERMAK will make a most excellent mayor of our great and glorious city, but he is proving very difficult for the poets. They are struggling nobly, however, and not a mail but brings us a half dozen or more poems dedicated to the Democratic leader. But it seems exceedingly difficult to find a rhyme for Cermak. But, cheer up, poets; remember, Mr. Cermak will remain mayor for a long, long time, and you will have abundant opportunity to hunt up what now eludes you—the word or words which rhyme with Cermak.

GOOD-BY, SILK HAT, old faithful friend! Back you pop into the box for another year. But when another Easter rolls around once more you will again march solemnly down the avenue in the church parade. Other things may wax and wane, old Easter hat, but you are as bright and new as when we bought you away back in 1920. Or was it 1916? It makes no difference, for, as Cleopatra said to Marp Antony, "All changes, silk hats alone endure."

MR. RASKOB says the Democrats must not straddle the prohibition issue next year; the platform must be either wet or dry. Which pleases one and all, the wets saying it shall be all wet and the drys saying it shall be all dry. Wonderful! Mr. Raskob, how in the world do you manage to please everybody?

MAYOR JIMMIE WALKER spoke a message into the microphone for his fellow citizens when he came back from his western vacation. "I returned with renewed health and vigor," said Jimmie, "to the cleanest and best city in the world." What Jimmie should have said was "the best cleaned city in the world." Oh, it's been cleaned all right, and how! (Tammany Hall, please write.)

Lagniappe.

AND OAK PARK is voting today on whether the pauper golf courses shall be continued or not. Oh, so it's Oak Park? Well, we just knew there must be some place where that fool thing was still played.

NO, NO, NO! And, indeed, you shall have no last time today. If you had one you would dally with it and talk it over with the rest of the family and ask for another cup of coffee instead of rushing right over to the polls and voting for Mr. Cermak. Of course, we cannot advise you about whom you should cast your ballot for, but at least we will not make you loiter. So, on your way.

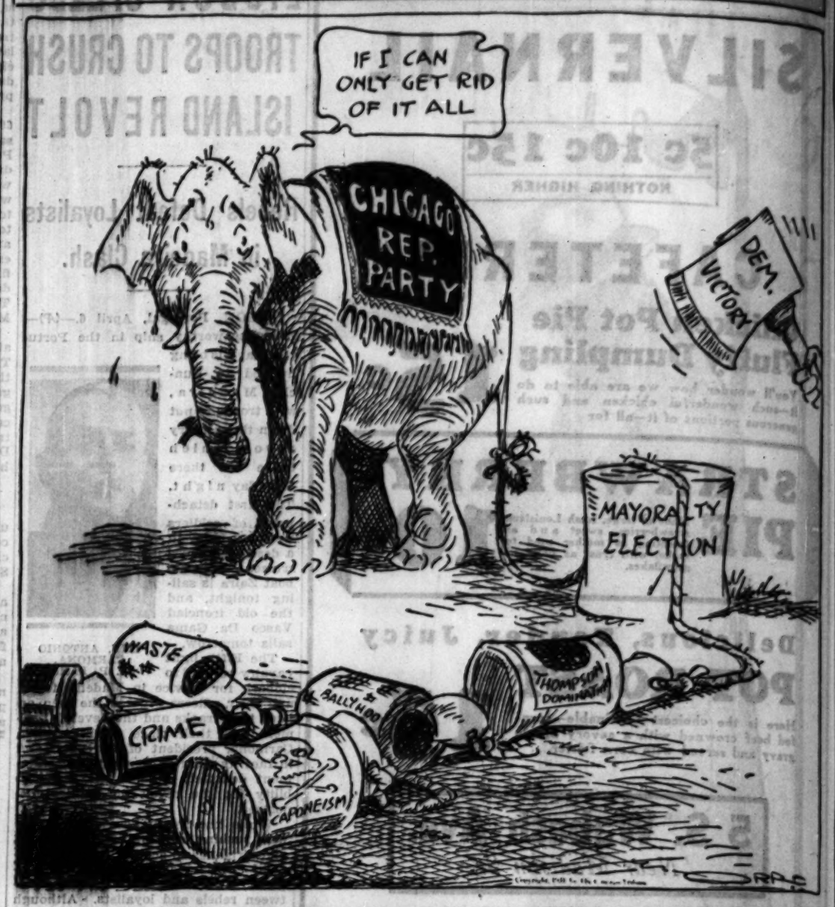
WHERE A LOSS WOULD MEAN A VICTORY



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 7, 1915.

CHICAGO.—William H. Thompson, Republican, was elected mayor of Chicago by the greatest plurality ever given any candidate for a major office in the history of the city. He defeated Robert M. Sweitzer, the Democratic nominee, by a plurality of 139,624. His total vote was 330,933, representing 246,293 men and 144,640 women. Sweitzer's total was 241,309, of which 162,155 were men and 89,154 were women. Seymour Stedman, the Socialist candidate, received 23,826 votes. For city treasurer, Charles H. Sergel, Progressive, was elected by a plurality of 85,722, and John Siman, also a Progressive, has an estimated plurality over his Democratic opponent of 94,873. The Democrats also lost control of the city council, which will stand 34 Republicans, 29 Democrats, 3 Socialists, 2 Progressives, and 3 Independents. The two Progressives and two of the three Independents are expected to vote with the Republicans.

CHICAGO.—The first formal utterance by Mayor Elect Thompson was: "The crooks had better move out of Chicago before I am inaugurated. This town will be cleared of criminals so completely before the new administration is in power many weeks that the whole world will for once understand that Chicago is a safe place to come to."

CHICAGO. — Three counties were put into the "dry" column when about 60 saloons were put out of business as a result of the wet and dry elections yesterday in downstate towns. The counties to banish the saloon were Franklin, Jasper and Marion, the drys thus increasing their lead from 52 to 55 of the 102 counties in Illinois.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 7, 1901.

CHICAGO.—John R. Jeffreys, whose greatest boast was that he had "beaten the railroad company," died at the age of 73. Jeffreys was injured in a Michigan Central wreck at Jackson, Mich., in 1872. Suit was brought for damages and the company, as Jeffreys told it, believing he would die in a short time, offered him an annuity of $1,000 for life as a compromise. Instead of dying he grew better and lived to draw $22,000 on the annuity. He came to Chicago 15 years ago and lived in lodgings at 211 State street.

CHICAGO. — Consolidation of Chicago's taxing bodies was the chief remedy advanced at the Union League club in discussion of Chicago's revenue problem. Lawrence Y. Sherman, speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, was the most vigorous advocate of the step. He declared the city is living in a "state of municipal tribal laws," likening the twenty distinct and separate taxing bodies to twenty tribes. City Controller Kerfoot also spoke in favor of consolidation.

BERLIN.—A St. Petersburg dispatch says that hard fighting is reported to have occurred between the First, Second, and Third East Siberian Rifle regiments and several thousand Chinese troops between Kobantsy and Sin-Min-Ting. Both the czar's men and the Chinese lost heavily.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 7, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The widow of John Brown, who was hung at Harpers Ferry, Va., is in the city. She is in destitute circumstances and desires a position under the government. She is a middle aged lady of fair complexion, is prepossessing in her manners and still dresses in mourning.

WASHINGTON.—President Garfield nominated Hiram Price of Iowa to be commissioner of Indian affairs. He was suggested for the place by Secretary of the Interior Samuel J. Kirkwood of Iowa.

SYRA.—Continued shocks of earthquakes at Ischia are destroying houses injured by the first shock. The extent of the appalling disaster on Ischia has been underestimated. It is now thought that deaths alone will reach 5,000. Trustworthy information gives 30 villages as almost or wholly destroyed.

LONDON. — Lord Beaconsfield passed a bad night and the immediate attendance of his physician was found necessary.

PROPERTY RIGHTS.

Chicago, March 28.—Your editorials in defense of private rights are extremely able, being, in my reading experience, comparable in quality only to the Federalist papers of Alexander Hamilton.

However, I wish to protest against a particular editorial of March 24, "Abolish Billboards in Illinois." You advocate in this essay discriminatory taxation or total prohibition of billboards in general, not excepting those on private property. Legislation to this effect would be an unjust confiscation of the rights of the private property concerned. It would bring on that property a value destruction of the same nature, if not so violent, as that which your newspaper would suffer if advertising on its pages were prohibited.

Aside from the question of fundamental justice in this case, there is one of business ethics. For your newspaper to advocate legislative restriction of billboards is decidedly unbecoming. Inasmuch as the destruction of one advertising medium, the billboard, would tend to increase the business of another advertising medium, the newspaper, your editorial can be construed as an effort by your newspaper to persuade the state of Illinois to destroy a legitimate business so that your business might profit.

If the attitude which you manifested in this editorial should grow into a policy, it would shake my faith in the integrity of your editorial page, which is at present one of the few editorial pages I enjoy reading. I beg you to drop the question.

FREDERICK S. CRAIG.

BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Chicago, March 31.—In his letter of March 24 to the Voice of the People Frank H. Vizetelly, editor of the new Standard Dictionary, asks in regard to THE TRIBUNE'S editorial on words, "May I trespass upon your erudition to the extent of asking you to favor me with the titles of Jespersen's and Craigie's contributions to the anatomy of words, by which I presume you refer to some work from their pens on English etymology—the one rock in English linguistry on which theorizing devotees have wrecked their reputations?"

The editorial no doubt referred to the well known works of Jespersen on the English language, including his chapters on English in his "Progress in Language," and to Craigie's work at the University of Chicago and as joint editor of the Oxford English Dictionary. This latter work particularly should be called to Mr. Vizetelly's attention.

WOMAN'S PLACE.

Chicago, April 1.—For R. A. B.'s benefit I will state the facts. 1. The average intelligence of men has proven to be greater than that of women. 2. The lowest men are less intelligent than the lowest women. 3. The most intellectual men are superior to the most intellectual women.

All the greatest women of history were sirens and vamps, and that's woman's best business. As long as she stays in her stall and keeps to that racket she's doing her part on this earth.

ROBERT H. BURNSIDE.

SO THERE.

Chicago, April 1.—On April 1 R. A. B. stated that "A woman's mental ability and intelligence has been proven to be superior to that of man." I suppose that we shall next be told that Cleopatra's or Salome's mental ability and intelligence was superior to that of Newton, Einstein, or Archimedes; that Mme. Curie or Sonya Kovaleska was greater scientists than Aristotle, Bacon, Galileo, Pasteur, Darwin, or Copernicus; that Sappho was a greater poet than Homer, Dante, Shakespeare, or Whitman; that George Sand and George Eliot were greater authors than Cervantes, Goethe, or Tolstoi; that some female composer was greater than Beethoven, Wagner, or Bach; that some feminine philosopher surpassed Plato, Socrates, or Voltaire; and so on into every field of endeavor where mental ability and intelligence are prime requisites. Woman's nature is not mental nor intelligent, but emotional, instinctive, and affectionate. Woman was born to love, and sometimes bear children. She was not born to think; therefore she can not. STAN LEE KAPUSTKA.

THE CAT CAME BACK.

Chicago, March 27.—Last summer we decided to take our cat with us to Europe. We lost her somewhere in southern France. It seemed that she slipped out of her basket; at any rate, we did not see her again during our tour. Imagine our surprise when, day before yesterday, we opened the door and in she walked, none the worse for her swim across the Atlantic. C. L. K.

WHO PAYS THE TAXES!

Chicago, April 4.—I have read and enjoyed McCutcheon's cartoons ever since I was able to read. However, in today's paper part of the cartoon is both misleading and unfair. I refer to the unthinking landlady passing on the increase in taxes to her tenant. From my own experience, I know that rents are lower this spring from $2.50 to $5 per small apartment than last fall. There is a proportionate decrease in larger apartments. Therefore there is no passing on of increased taxation to the tenant, but, on the contrary, there is a lowering of rents; and the owner stands the entire brunt of increased taxation.

RUSSIA LAUNCHES DRIVE TO FLOOD WORLD WITH PIGS

Women Best Stock Raisers for Swine Trust.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, March 15.—[By mail.]—Russian women are 100 per cent more efficient as farmers and stock raisers than men, according to the consensus of a score of American college graduates, employed to superintend the organization of a colossal pig industry by the state swine trust.

The Americans are controlling operations on more than 1,000,000 acres and this area will be doubled this spring in the intensification of the soviet government's project—part of the five year plan—to flood the world market with 30,000,000 pigs next year.

Iowa Man Organizer.

Guy Bush of Greenfield, Ia., directs one of the largest farms of nearly 100,000 acres, which has 2,500 sows already.

"I will have 10,000 in 1932," he said. "I have 1,400 employes on the farm, nearly half of them women, and I want to take off my hat to them. They care for the little pigs like they were babies and it is almost entirely due to their efforts that we save such a large percentage of the shoats."

The loss of young pigs on Russian state farms is between 35 and 40 per cent. In the United States the average loss is 10 per cent.

"We aim to reduce the loss to 20 per cent," said Henry G. Zaveral of Hutchinson, Minn., live stock expert of the University of Minnesota, in charge of the American specialists here. "The average litter is about nine, about the same as in America. More labor is required here to raise the animals. Labor is about 12 per cent pork production in the United States. Here it runs to 40 per cent. However, wages are much lower in Russia than in America and the huge amount of additional labor, particularly since much of it is performed by women, means more individual care for little pigs."

American Methods Better.

Zaveral asserted that American methods for handling pigs are considerably more advanced than the Russian system, due to mechanization, systematization, wire fences, motor trucks, good roads and a plentiful water supply.

"In Russia they have no fences," he explained. "Timber is too distant from the pig farms, and transportation is too congested to haul it from the forest regions. Eventually we will install wire fencing, but that will take time. When we get it, we will materially reduce labor. Now pigs must be herded with a man for every 100 or so.

"Many of the farms haven't even water supplies. The water is driven up in barrels on sledges. Frequently we have to send teams 35 miles to the nearest railway to haul gasoline drums for our tractors. It will take time to overcome these difficulties."

This spring the swine trust will enlarge one of its farms to 15,000 sows, making it 50 per cent larger than the largest hog ranch in the United States, which is the Fontana farm, near Los Angeles.

"We advised against too much concentration," said Zaveral. "It increases the risk from disease. If an epidemic hits a big farm like that there is an enormous mortality before it is stamped out. We favor scattering smaller farms, averaging about 500 sows each."

No American boars or sows have been imported by the soviet for their pork drive. English Yorkshire and German animals have been brought in, but the latter, which run to lard rather than bacon, have not the stamina to support the rigorous climate that the English hogs have. The native Russian breed is hardiest of all.

In all there are 500 pig farms fostered by the government, which insures a monopoly because private individuals are forbidden to possess more than one sow.

Considerable difficulty in obtaining feed has been experienced since last autumn, due to the lack of cooperation between the various branches of government controlled industry and agriculture.

"The grain trust garnered all the produce, even from regions where we had our farms," explained John Plonsky of St. Paul, who is in charge of feed lots. "We often had to ship grain back to the farms from hundreds of miles away after it had been collected from farms adjacent to ours.

More Garbage in Chicago.

"We get very little garbage for our farms near Moscow. Chicago can supply about ten times as much garbage for swill as this city, although the population is almost the same. There is no home garbage here. Everything seems to be consumed. We only get refuse from big cooperative kitchens and company restaurants and it is mighty slim pickings from there."

Foreigners, alone in remote sections of the country, and the American specialists enjoy the support and protection of the G. P. U., the military police, which has detachments scattered everywhere.

John J. Dalton of the Iowa State college, who operates a 25,000 acre farm with 3,500 sows near Kharkov in the Ukraine, recently had difficulty when his men lingered over placing boarding on the floors of pens where a number of shotes were quartered. In the cold weather Dalton realized he would lose a large percentage of the young pigs unless they could be protected from the icy earth.

When the hands refused to lay the wooden flooring Dalton jumped on a horse and rode twenty miles to the nearest G. P. U. detachment and two of the military police rode back with him on a bitter, snowy night. When the laborers caught sight of the uniformed troopers they turned out of their cabins and installed the flooring the same night.

Secret Police on Farms.

The G. P. U. militiamen are quartered on a number of the farms operated by Americans. These are cases where the peasants opposed collectivization of their properties and through ignorance blame the seizure on the foreigners in charge. In view of threats and mutterings it has been deemed expedient to keep armed guards handy, but thus far no incidents have occurred.

Last fall all men with experience in raising pigs were ordered to report to the authorities that they might be rushed to the newly created hog farms and help in the intensive pork production.

"We have found that these men do not work as satisfactorily as volunteer labor," said Manager Zaveral. "The brigades of young communists, the 'shock battalions' of labor as they call them, have tided us over many an emergency, though. These lads will work day and night to finish a rush job, through sheer patriotism."

Carl Zoerb of La Crosse, Wis., formerly a reporter at Madison, is manager of a large farm in the northern Caucasus.

"I think they are going to swing their five year plan, at least as far as the agricultural aspect is concerned," he said. "They are all pepped up to make it a success and on my farm they work harder than I have ever seen hands do anywhere else."

One hog farm is near a huge vodka distillery and the mash from fermented potato peelings and wheat is fed to the animals.

"The pigs are half drunk all the time," said the American in charge. "They stagger over to their troughs and guzzle away a while and accumulate a great degree of intoxication. Even the little shotes get tight from sticking their snouts in that high powered mash."

Pigs are slaughtered here at the age of nine to ten months, as compared to six and seven months in the United States, but despite the disparity in cost of production against Russia, it is believed by most of the American experts that the soviet swine trust will be able to compete advantageously against the United States, because of cheaper labor, single ownership by the state, and mass production.

BANANAS ORDERED, BUT NOT BIG SNAKE THAT STOWED AWAY

Buffalo, N. Y., April 6.—(AP)—A South American boa constrictor came to town today with a load of bananas. The bananas had been ordered. The snake was a stowaway.

While Charles Gaglione was unloading the fruit the five foot reptile crawled out and went for a stroll. Mr. Gaglione was very much upset and when he got his breath several blocks down the street he telephoned for advice and aid.

The society for the prevention of such things sent a fellow around, and finally Mr. Gaglione returned to the job of unloading bananas.

459,269 VOTE IN ARGENTINA; SEE RADICAL DEFEAT

BUENOS AIRES, April 6.—(AP)—A total of 459,269 persons, three-fourths of the total registration, voted in the provincial elections held in Buenos Aires province yesterday.

Conservative leaders, opposing Dr. Honorio Puerreydon, former minister at Washington, D. C., and radical candidate for governor, claimed a victory by 70,000 votes.

It was the first election in the Argentine since last year's revolution. One policeman was killed and a civilian wounded in a clash with firearms, practically the only disorder reported.

CONVICTS WHO WANTED TO DIE MOVE FOR DELAY

Plead Not Guilty to Firing Prison.

Columbus, O., April 6.—(AP)—Hugh Gibson and Clinton Grate, Ohio penitentiary convicts who confessed they were responsible for the fire of a year ago when 320 prisoners perished, today pleaded not guilty to three indictments charging first degree murder.

The pleas were heard by Judge C. J. Randall after he had named four attorneys to defend the men. Both prisoners said they were without counsel and without funds.

Gibson and Grate had announced following their confessions last week that they would plead guilty if the court would guarantee that they would be sentenced to the electric chair immediately. They asked to confer with Judge Randall Saturday, but he refused, holding that the consequences of such a plea were so great he would not listen to it until after the men had conferred with attorneys.

May Change Pleas.

An indication that the pleas might be changed was given when the attorneys informed the court they retained the right to make a change later if they thought necessary.

Date of the trial will be set after attorneys for Gibson and Grate decide upon a future course.

It was understood in legal circles that a technicality in the indictments might be questioned by counsel for the two convicts.

The three indictments name three specific victims of the fire as the persons murdered. One charges first degree murder with premeditation; the others charge first degree murder by arson.

In their confessions the convicts said they fired the prison with the idea of destroying unoccupied solitary confinement cells and to retard the building program.

Deny Premeditation.

They said they did not want to take life and had no idea men would be killed. If such a defense was upheld, lawyers said, premeditation would be out of the question.

The "arson" section of the other indictments was in question. The law defines murder by arson in a "dwelling" and does not specify that a prison is a dwelling. Some courts, it was said, have held that a prison is not a dwelling.

FLIES TO CAPE FROM LONDON IN 6½ DAYS; RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, April 6.—Commander Glen Kidston, millionaire sportsman, arrived here today, completing a flight from London in six days and ten hours. He broke the previous record for the distance by almost three days. He attributed the success of his flight to his Lockheed Vega monoplane, which was specially imported from America, for the record breaking flight.

Commander Kidston left England last Tuesday with two companions to prove that the proposed twelve day air mail schedule between England and Cape Town could be cut in half. He said on arriving today that if a private flyer, without proper organization, could make this trip in good time, a commercial company, using relays of planes, should accomplish it in quicker time.

TROOPS GUARD 9 NEGROES FACING TRIAL FOR RAPE

Northern Alabama Turns Out for Event.

Scottsboro, Ala., April 6.—(AP)—This mountain section of northern Alabama witnessed one of the biggest congregations in years today as nine Negroes faced trials for an alleged attack on two young white girls hoboing their way on a freight train.

After a day of much maneuvering, both in and out of court, a jury was selected to try Clarence Norris, 19, and Charlie Weems, 21. Their trial probably will last until noon tomorrow when five others, all younger than Norris, will be called.

The cases of two others was undecided, since they fall under the Alabama juvenile court laws.

Novelty to Mountaineers.

The Negroes were brought to Scottsboro from Gadsden before 6 o'clock this morning, accompanied by a hundred National Guardsmen, whose glistening bayonets were a novelty to the mountain folk already swarming into this small town.

They came from as far as seventy miles away, in automobiles—ancient and modern—trucks, buggies, wagons, by muleback, and afoot.

When court opened this town of 2,300 persons was entertaining an estimated 10,000 visitors. As the courtroom became comfortably filled guardsmen drove the crowds back into the nearby streets.

There was no disorder and no threats. Those denied entrance to the court enjoyed reunions with relatives and friends. Some found time to engage in good-natured horse swapping and other business.

The Negroes are charged with attacking the two girls, ages 17 and 20, on a train near Stevenson, Ala., on March 24, after throwing five white youths accompanying the girls from the train and knocking two others unconscious.

Stop Lights Operated by Pedestrian Given Tryout

Minneapolis, Minn., April 6.—(AP)—A pedestrian operated traffic signal went into service today. If it proves satisfactory others will be installed throughout the city. Stop and go signs on each corner of the intersection stand at neutral until a control button is pressed by a pedestrian, then the sign turns to "stop" and remains there 40 seconds. The signal automatically returns to neutral after the interval.

TWO ATTORNEYS SENTENCED FOR BANKRUPT PLOT

Attorney Lawrence M. Fine and Attorney Julius Rieger, the latter a brother of Attorney Louis Rieger, political supporter of Mayor Thompson, were sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $500 each by Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday on their conviction of conspiracy to conceal assets in bankruptcy.

The attorneys were found guilty by the court, who also imposed similar sentences upon George E. Roberts and Simon Falick, former officials of the Chicago Beaux Arts Gift Shops, Inc. The defendants executed and juggled chattel mortgages on the property of the stores, with the result that between $15,000 and $20,000 disappeared, according to the evidence presented by Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Struett. Judge Wilkerson assailed their activities from the bench.

Fine formerly was associated with Emmett Flood, former labor leader, in the Owners' Real Estate board, a tax adjusting organization, and is the law associate of Attorney Harry Curtis, son of the Vice President.

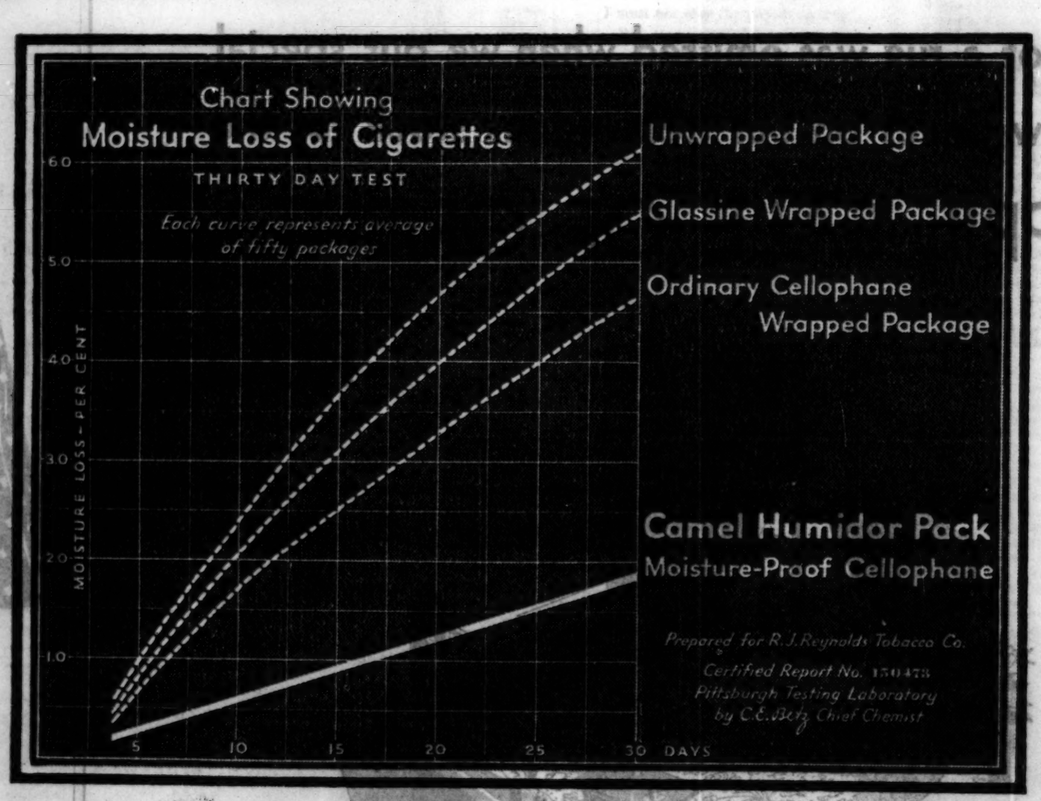
CAMELS are wrapped Only in MOISTURE-PROOF Cellophane



Cigarettes in prime condition have a moisture content of about 10%. It will be seen by the chart that cigarettes in the ordinary wrapped package lose more than half of their total moisture in thirty days and that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition.

THE whole country is talking about the throat-easy mildness and the factory freshness of Camel Cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack.

The above chart prepared by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory tells you why.

Please examine it carefully. It is an unfailing guide to cigarette selection and enjoyment.

As you can quickly see by the three upper curves on this interesting chart, cigarettes that lack the protection of the Humidor Pack lose their moisture rapidly from the day they are manufactured.

And day by day as this moisture disappears, the smoke from these cigarettes becomes harsher, hotter, more unkind to the smoker's throat.

Not so with Camels!

Factory-fresh Camels are air-sealed in the new Sanitary Package which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

● Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

Lean Years serve a purpose

LEAN YEARS give a new keenness to the vision of Business

Many an advertising spender of 1929 has become a thoughtful investor, today.

Manufacturers want essential facts on markets. "Can we sell, deliver and advertise there at a profit?" is the question the budget asks.

You can—in metropolitan markets, with well-planned newspaper advertising.

And especially in Philadelphia! Three million people in a compact area; economy of distribution and selling; tremendous retail buying—

PLUS... the outstanding economy of a single newspaper giving ninety one per cent. coverage of Philadelphia homes.

The Philadelphia Bulletin gives a driving force to sales plans; penetrating homes by the hundreds of thousands; reaching buying power by the millions.

Head and shoulders leadership in national and retail linage reflects the judgment of advertisers.

560,855 net paid daily, without prize, premium or contest, reflects the judgment of Philadelphia's 572,600 homes.

And sixty-five cents an agate line argues its own case with any advertising budget.

Concentrate in metropolitan areas. Use newspaper advertising to influence sales. And start in Philadelphia, where The Bulletin gives the greatest coverage at the lowest cost of any great market.

PLAN WAGE CUTS IN NEW ZEALAND ECONOMY DRIVE

Move to Slash General Pay Scale Started.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., April 6.—A slash in wages and salaries of state employés, special legislation to enable general rates of pay to be reduced by industrialists, and an invitation to the general employer to reduce wage scales are the outstanding features of an economy drive launched by the New Zealand government to check the financial drift following the slump in prices paid for New Zealand exports. The first step was taken last week when the house of representatives passed the bill reducing salaries of all federal employés 10 per cent.

Prime Minister G. W. Forbes has repeatedly indicated that the government is determined to apply the pruning knife in every direction in the attempt to reduce costs and minimize the financial burden. There had been talk of this for the last five years, for New Zealand has 80,000 public servants among her population of 1,500,000, and the annual wage bill has been growing with leaps and bounds.

The Railway Burden.

On top of the slump in trade has come the burden of the publicly owned railways and Prime Minister Forbes announced that parliament, at this session, must take up legislation to remove the control of the railways from political hands. This is expected to result in a saving in railway operations, for at present the $300,000,000 invested in dominion railways is failing to pay interest on the capital expenditure. The great burden under which the railways have suffered—concessions to the farmers and to other classes, and millions sunk in constructing new roads, which are doubtful financial propositions even when old roads are still failing to pay, is expected to be lightened if not removed by this action.

The prime minister has also promised increased taxation, an increase in postal rates, appointment of a special committee to overhaul the financial side of the education system and see if the country is getting value for the $15,000,000 yearly which it spends on education, a total overhauling of the system of highway finance which has given New Zealand more good roads than are possessed by any other country, and a reduction in pay to men employed by the government on relief works rendered necessary by unemployment.

A total of $22,500,000 extra must be raised before the next financial year ends—$17,500,000 on account of shrinkage of revenue from existing sources and $5,000,000 because of increased expenditures. The weakness of New Zealand finance is that as a borrowing country it finds the total, which has to be devoted to debt service (sinking fund, interest, and renewals of outstanding loans) steadily mounting each year.

Tariff Revenue Drops.

This and the sharp contraction of revenue from the tariff, which is New Zealand's main source of income, plus the fact that the railways have failed to earn what was expected of them by $2,500,000, or almost half the sum needed to meet their interest bill, have brought about the present position.

H. E. Holland, leader of the Labor party, has declared that his party will fight the cuts in the general wage scale, contending that expansion of credit is what is needed, and that it will not hesitate to put the government out of office if the chance arises. The united government's hope thus is that it will receive support from the opposition reform party, which it deposed from power two years ago, for the united ranks include less than one-third of the members of the house of representatives and the government so far has been forced to make concession after concession to the Laborites.

Another move, and the cause of much bitterness is the government's attack on the arbitration court, the industrial tribunal which was set up over thirty years ago to fix wages and conditions in industry. At present the court makes awards which run for two years, and has the power to fine both employers and workers if they fail to keep them. These awards can be revised only at the end of their term, or with the consent of both parties. The government proposes to pass a law to enable either party to go to the court and ask for a reduction or increase in wages. The court has already shown what it will do by a recent decision in the flax industry where the wages of the workers were reduced 30 per cent.

BRITISH INVITE BERLIN TO ATTEND LONDON PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 6.—It was officially stated here today that the British government has invited Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius to London for a Franco-British-German conference. The date of the visit has been set for May 1. The proposal is heartily welcomed by authorities, who see a general ironing out of all misunderstandings arising from the Austro-German customs accord.

May Set Parley for May.

LONDON, April 6.—(AP)—The British government has invited Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius of Germany to come to London soon for a general discussion of problems affecting the two countries. The real significance of the invitations was not disclosed.

When Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson was conferring with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand in Paris recently, it was said, he expressed regret that German representatives were not included because there were several matters he wanted to discuss with them. The invitation to the German officials then followed. Reports from abroad were that Briand also has been invited, but surprise was expressed, since it was felt Mr. Henderson had concluded his business with the French foreign minister during his Paris visit.

IT'S LESS BOTHER TO MARK PLACES YOU CAN'T GET IT

New York, April 6.—(AP)—One of the signs of the times says: "No speakeasy." It is posted on a door in West 52d street, where photographers found it today.

Mrs. Antonio Scalfani explained that she wasn't a prohibitionist, but that her family needed sleep at night. There was always somebody ringing the bell, she said, and wanting to get in, thinking it was a speakeasy.

"So many places are, nowadays," explained Mrs. Scalfani.

"They often would be insistent," she said. "We finally decided to stick out the sign, 'No speakeasy.' And we have had no further trouble.

TRACE MURDER RING TO COLLECT INSURANCE MONEY

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 6.—(AP)—Existence of a "murder syndicate" in the oriental section of this city for the purpose of benefiting from insurance policies on its victims was suspected by police today.

Following discovery of the body of Maskichi Watanabe, 49, who apparently had been slain with an ax, police said they had in custody a man who told them he had taken money from the alleged syndicate to kill three persons whose lives were insured, but that he fled the city without carrying out his assignment.

Police said they also had discovered a private hospital where insured persons were given treatment by a man without medical qualifications. They said two patients at this hospital had died and a third had disappeared.

A Great Newspaper Combination

The New York Herald Tribune, of New York, and its European edition, the New York Herald, published in Paris, form an international newspaper combination unequaled in influence and power.

Since the founding of the New York Herald in 1835 and The New York Tribune in 1841, these two newspapers, which were consolidated as one in 1924, have been a dominant factor in the political, industrial and cultural development of the United States.

From its new home in the center of New York, the Herald Tribune presents all the news of the day to one of the most important and responsive newspaper audiences in the world.

As the New York Herald Tribune has been outstanding in the gathering and presentation of news in the United States, so in Paris, the Herald, which has recently opened its modern plant in its own building, one of the finest business buildings in the French capital, has been the important American newspaper development of the Continent.

These two newspapers, published daily many thousands of miles apart, are nevertheless linked closely by common ideals, common policy and joint achievement.

The New York Herald Tribune is stronger in European news because of the opportunity afforded by the Herald in Paris, while the Paris Herald profits by the background, the influence and the resources of the parent organization in America.

As the Herald in Paris reaches the important Americans traveling or in residence in Europe, so in America the New York Herald Tribune appeals to the men and women who are at the forefront of achievement, who have most influence and greatest buying power.

VISIT OF NORMAN SUGGESTS WORLD BANKING PARLEYS

Britisher Consults with U. S. Financiers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—A system of periodical international conferences, involving the American federal reserve bank system and the central banks of Europe, may develop out of the practice of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, in making occasional trips to the United States to exchange views with American officials and bankers.

Mr. Norman today met with the federal reserve board, and Secretary Mellon attended a portion of the meeting. Eugene Meyer, governor of the reserve board, and George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, were present.

After the meeting Mr. Meyer indicated that there had been a wide range of discussion of many important world problems, such as would affect both the United States and Great Britain. These discussions, however, were general and, according to Mr. Meyer, could not be summed up in the light of any definite conclusions.

No Proposals from Norman.

No concrete proposals were submitted by Mr. Norman which would call for action by the reserve board, it was said. Rather, it was added, the conference was factual in nature, the views of the American officials and the British financial chief being exchanged for their mutual benefit.

Following the conference at the treasury, Mr. Norman was the guest of honor at a luncheon given at the British embassy by Ambassador Ronald Lindsay. Tomorrow Secretary Mellon will entertain Mr. Norman at luncheon, a number of high officials to be guests.

For the better understanding of general world problems, officials expressed the belief that annual or ever more frequent conferences of the character of that today might be helpful. These should not necessarily confine themselves to American and British officials.

Occasion was taken to emphasize the fact that through these conferences no commitments or "entanglements," financial or otherwise, have been made or will be made to involve the United States in the affairs of Europe.

APPEAL WINS

MRS. DOROTHY M'AVOY.

Responding to an appeal of his bride whom he deserted on their honeymoon, Thomas E. McAvoy, 25 years old, wanted for the theft of $2,000 from the Marbro theater, 4124 West Madison street, at which he was formerly assistant cashier, surrendered late yesterday to the Burns Detective agency. He will be arraigned in the Felony court tomorrow on a charge of embezzlement.

Last September, it was charged, McAvoy took the money from the theater safe. He left on the same night for Kansas City with his bride of three weeks, the former Miss Dorothy Mendell of 4149 Washington boulevard.

They journeyed to Douglas, Ariz., and there McAvoy deserted his bride when he learned that detectives were seeking him, according to the Burns agency. He then went to Texas. Mrs. McAvoy returned to Chicago, and recently wrote to him urging him to surrender.

ADMITS CAUSING TRAIN WRECK IN WHICH 13 DIED

Sought to 'Get Even' with Boss Who Fired Him.

Henryetta, Okla., April 6.—(AP)—The desire of George Darnell, 38, section hand, to "get even" with the foreman who discharged him, sent 13 persons to their deaths in a St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train wreck here Aug. 18, 1929.

Darnell confessed in court today and pleaded guilty to a murder charge. He will be sentenced Wednesday.

Darnell said he became enraged when he was discharged and "cocked" a rail switch on the outskirts of Henryetta about the time he expected a freight to pass.

"I thought the freight train would jump the track, but that no one would be hurt. I believed the foreman, Mr. King, would get the blame and he, too, would lose his job." Darnell said, sobbing.

Most of the thirteen died in agony after being scalded with steam from the wrecked locomotive. Among them were the engineer and fireman. The rest were Negroes from the Jim Crow car behind the baggage coach.

Darnell was arrested by operatives of the railroad and officers of Parsons, Kas., last night and brought here today.

4 Cats Loose in Bird Store Slaughter 75; Parrot Lives

San Francisco, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—Four cats got loose in Arthur I. Morie's bird and pet store last night. Here is the list of dead: Rabbits, 17; chickens, 48; ducks, 6; canary birds, 3, and white rats, 1.

A parrot with claws and terrible language was holding a cat at bay when rescued.

LINCOLN VOTES ON ABOLISHING CITY GAS MART

Lincoln, Neb., April 6.—(AP)—Lincoln residents will vote tomorrow on whether to abolish the municipal gasoline station established here in 1925 when Gov. Charles W. Bryan was mayor.

Private dealers started the movement to abolish it, saying it does ten to fifteen per cent of the retail gasoline business in Lincoln and is wiping out profits for the dealers. Gov. Bryan issued a statement today that abolition of the station would cost every automobile owner here $25 a year.

Two other propositions are before the people. One would authorize a $2,300,000 bond issue to bring water from the Platte river near Ashland, 30 miles away. The other would legalize the playing of miniature golf in the city on Sunday.

The voters will nominate ten candidates for city council and four candidates for the school board.

Doris Blake Advises Girls Affairs of Heart and Home

A Pre-view by Fanny Butcher

"FLAMENCO," by Lady Eleanor Smith [Bobbs Merrill], is only a few days old and it already promises to be a lusty contender for the best seller title. It is the kind of book in which many readers find surcease from the pain of life or its boredom or its too lavish excitements.

LADY ELEANOR SMITH.

For "Flamenco" all happens in the early nineteenth century, and to a great many readers anything that pictures a life far enough removed from their own has a rich allure.

Another attraction which "Flamenco" exerts is inherent in the contrast between any slight lack of comfort which might be the lot of any modern reader and the physical discomforts which in those days high as well as low accepted as part of daily living. A reader who wants to may loll in his cushioned arm chair before his radiator [stoked automatically] with his glass full of a fluid made musical by tinkling cubes [frozen automatically] and read about the rainy season on the moor and the nobility of the house at its edge and have himself by contrast a few moments of gorgeous luxury.

And "Flamenco" is certain of its popularity, besides, because it has all of the things that the formula calls for—romance, passion, strange, incredible human relationships.

The book opens with the expulsion of a gypsy murderer from his clan and his wandering in search of a home for his family. During his wanderings a daughter was born. She is the heroine of the book.

With a heritage like that the daughter, Camilla, became, by the right of purchase, a member of a strange dour household on the moors in England. For six guineas she was bought by a Rogue Herries sort of man to spite his wife. Camilla grew to womanhood hated by the elder son, adored by the younger, and tolerated by the daughter of the man who had bought her, while she was loathed and ill treated by his wife. Their childhood was pleasant but wild. When Camilla matured, the father of her foster brothers and sister cast covetous eyes upon her. When she refused to become his mistress, he hired a gypsy to pretend to be her brother by presenting a supposed message from her dying mother. Thus she was given into a passionate and terrible slavery. That changed her completely from a quiet, docile, well behaved child. When she returned, after a year of horror, she was a fury in the familiar household. One of these silent, terrible furies that say nothing, but wreck lives. That's what the author intimates that she was. She married the younger brother, although her own active adoration of him had changed to a passive acceptance of his devotion, and she spent a good deal of active energy in hating his older brother.

The brothers are a perfect contrast. The younger is beautiful to look upon, golden haired, mild, gentle, with an almost ethereal charm. The elder is almost gypsylike in his form and coloring.

You know what always happens in a book when a passionate woman is married to a pale lover. She always—I have rarely known it to fail in any books—finds herself, against her will, in the arms of a more virile gentleman.

What happens after that you will have to find out for yourselves. But all of the tense situations are not past by that time. Some of the most intense of them still are to come.

"Flamenco" seems to me a bizarre romantic-historical novel, with a good deal of atmosphere, quite a flair for the exotic in character delineation—written in good modern English without—thank God—a spurious attempt to ape literary mannerisms of the period which it depicts. But it is far too long. Four hundred pages isn't insurmountable in some books. In a very few it is only a pleasant beginning which you wish prolonged indefinitely. But in "Flamenco" 400 pages is a couple of hundred too long. The book isn't an epic, and it shouldn't have been written as one. Its tempo should have been more animato for its material.

The author is only 25 years of age.

DEATH OF CZAR LENIN'S AMBITION, OSSENDOWSKI SAYS

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Ferdinand Ossendowski, in a book entitled "Lenin, God of the Godless," to be published tomorrow by E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., asserts that Lenin himself ordered the execution of Czar Nicholas II.

Ossendowski says that after the execution Lenin was calm and his mind was at ease, although "curses and prophesies of disaster from the whole world raged around him." The execution of the czar and his family, says Ossendowski, fulfilled the "only personal ambition" of Lenin's entire life.

Lenin placed the whole matter, Ossendowski relates, in the hands of the Ekaterinburg chekist yurovsky [the council in Ekaterinburg] and directed that telegraphic notification be sent to Moscow as to the time set for the execution.

so she probably will strike her stride. That is, unless her tremendous success with "Flamenco," which is already a furor in England, added to her success as the author of "Red Wagon" last year, doesn't jelly her in her present technique. Being Lady Eleanor Smith, and being the daughter of the earl of Birkenhead, and being beautiful, and being popular, isn't any of it particularly chastening. And nobody especially likes to do the chastening, anyway, so "Flamenco" will probably be heralded by a vast popularity and the author may never know—unless she happens to read this column—that any one thinks she has a talent inherent in "Flamenco" for something really fine and much more artistically sound.

The author has her whole life long [if 25 years can be called a long life] been entranced with gypsy lore. Her great-grandfather was a gypsy and she is said to have the large dark eyes, the fine forehead, and the beautiful hands usually associated with gypsy beauty. "Flamenco" was the April choice of the Book League of America.

"Lenin, God of the Godless," by Ferdinand Ossendowski [Dutton], published today, is a life of the man who died the czar of all Russia written with the fire of the author's "Beasts, Men and Gods."

Sells-Floto Circus Arrives Here Today; Season Starts Saturday

Shortly before 8 o'clock last night, the Sells-Floto circus bade farewell to its quarters at Peru, Ind. There the show had spent the winter. Two train loads of performing elephants, camels, as well as cages of lions, tigers and other jungle beasts pulled out for Chicago. Early this morning the highly decorated cars arrived in the New York Central yards at 18th and Clark streets.

Unloading is scheduled for 8 a. m. and possession will be taken of the Coliseum within two hours. For the next twenty days the Wabash avenue structure will be the home of Sells-Floto. The season opens Saturday afternoon, and continues twice daily until Sunday, April 26.

Huge truck loads of earth was moved into the building during the early hours of the morning. Several hundred riggers, carpenters and mechanics will be busy today installing the paraphernalia. Rehearsals open tomorrow, concluding with a special invitation affair for members of the press and profession on Friday night.

Readings from Burroughs, Whitman for Her Burial

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Before she died Dr. Clara Barrus, 68, author and biographer of John Burroughs, made arrangements for her own funeral.

There will be no religious service, no eulogies by a clergyman. Instead, selections will be read from the writing of Burroughs and Walt Whitman. The funeral will be held tomorrow in Scarsdale.

Shortly before her death Dr. Barrus completed corrections for a book, "Burroughs and Whitman, Comrades," which will be published next month. She took her degree in medicine at Boston university in 1888.

Good Morning!

"Hot Heiress" is one of those jazz fairy tales in which upper crust weds lower crust and everybody lives happily forever after.

The chauffeur-rich girl situation is not a new one. In real life the outcome usually is unfortunate—which is saying nothing against the chauffeur. Oil and water don't mix and are equally indispensable in their own spheres.

Psychology aside, "Hot Heiress" is an entertaining enough comedy drama. It is punctuated with songs which reveal the fact that Ben Lyon has an astonishingly pleasing voice and is at home in this type of film. He presents an engaging portrayal of the noble young skyscraper riveter desired ardently by an unblushing member of the creme de la creme, who eventually lands him.

Ona Munson, who can also carol delectably, makes the heroine a likable person—with a distinctly common touch. Pretty girl!

You'll enjoy Tom Dugan and Inez Courtney! The former plays a pal of the hero. The latter's the pal's girl friend. They're both mighty funny! Miss Courtney, in appearance, is a composite of the late Alma Rubens and Mabel Normand. Her clowning is reminiscent of Miss Normand's. Other acting is satisfactory, and direction, etc., pass muster.

"Hot Heiress" has a merry, take-it-or-leave-it, good hearted, bouncing way that's rather provocative.

"A TAILOR MADE MAN."

Directed by Sam Wood.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

"Clothes make the man!" and "Talk prosperity and there'll be prosperity!" are his slogans. And the lowly pants presser in due time becomes chief mucky-muck of the business of the great Abraham Nathan.

Mr. Haines has had better pictures and has had worse ones than "A Tailor Made Man." Personally I don't find him very funny as John Paul Bart—but you may. You will, I believe, feel that the exaggerations of this number are not clever enough to put the piece in the front ranks of smart farce comedies.

The story is silly, and with the exception of Joseph Cawthorne's splendid work none of the acting is extraordinary. Summed up, "A Tailor Made Man" appears to be just another of those unnecessary movies that are glutting our screens at the present time.

See you tomorrow.

IOWA GRANDMOTHER WINS DOCTORATE AT UNIVERSITY OF PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 6.—Mrs. Mecca M. Varney, a Glenwood, Iowa., grandmother, has just received a doctorate from the famous University of Paris with high honors. Faced with the necessity of learning French, she did the job so well that she defended her thesis orally before the dean and professorial jurors.

After overcoming the handicap of French she wrote her thesis in that language. Her subject was "The Influence of Women on August Compte."

The university professors find that her thesis on that social philosopher not only reveals keen and sustained research, but was handled with sensitiveness and understanding. They held that her thesis has merit as literature. The thesis has already been printed by the university press and will be issued in book form tomorrow.

Mrs. Varney arrived in Paris four and a half years ago with her son, Charles E. Varney, and her daughter-in-law. All three enrolled in the university. She told THE TRIBUNE today:

"When I was first given August Compte as a subject for my thesis I was disappointed; but I grew more and more interested. I was compelled to learn French to carry on research work. I wrote the book myself and did not make the mistake of employing a French scholar to polish off the phrases."

Mrs. Varney was graduated from the University of California and Ryder Divinity school and is an ordained minister of the Universalist and Christian churches.

Ethel M. Dorrance, Heiress to Millions, Engaged to Broker

Philadelphia, Pa., April 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel M. Dorrance of Radnor today announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ethel Mallinckrodt Dorrance, to Tristam C. Colket of Haverford, Pa.

Because of the recent death of Miss Dorrance's father, Dr. John T. Dorrance, president of the Campbell Soup company, the wedding will be private.

Miss Dorrance, one of five children who share in Dr. Dorrance's $150,000,000 estate, receives $10,000 a month and in the final division she will receive an income from one-eighth of the estate. Mr. Colket is a broker.

Mrs. John Ringling Sees Circus for First Time

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Well, Mrs. John Ringling has seen a circus. Mrs. Ringling, who married the chief owner of the Barnum & Bailey-Ringling Bros.' outfit a few months ago, never had seen a circus until Thursday night. She saw the 1931 New York opening with her husband.

Ruth Fesler Will Wed; Aid of Mrs. Hoover

Secretary Is Engaged to Western Lawyer.

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—A romance which began on the campus of Stamford university, alma mater of President and Mrs. Hoover, will take from Mrs. Hoover next month one of her two secretaries, Miss Ruth Fesler.

Announcement of Miss Fesler's engagement to Robert Lockwood Lipman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lockwood Lipman of Berkeley, Cal., was made today by her parents, Judge and Mrs. Bert Fesler of Duluth, Minn.

The wedding, to be a quiet affair with no attendants, is scheduled for about May 22, at the home of Miss Fesler's twin sister, Mrs. James A. Nyswander of Ann Arbor, Mich., whose husband is a University of Michigan faculty member.

Miss Fesler was a student at Palo Alto when Mr. Lipman came there to visit his sister, a friend of Miss Fesler. The romance was renewed when Mr. Lipman, now a San Francisco attorney, spent several months here this winter in connection with a case before the Supreme court.

With Miss Mildred Hall, Miss Fesler has shared secretarial duties to Mrs. Hoover for the last three years, first in the S street home and later in the White House.

Wherever the President's wife has made a semi-official appearance either Miss Fesler or Miss Hall usually has been close at hand.

Under Mrs. Hoover's guidance Miss Fesler and Miss Hall shared credit for a crowded but brilliant social season. The secretary usually supplied by the state department as a guide through the mazes of red tape was dispensed with, and the two girls with the S street tradition of Hoover hospitality carried the season through.

Invitations by hundreds to issue, delegations innumerable to fit into the day's schedule, shopping, helping prepare for those on-the-spur-of-the-moment trips to the Rapidan camp—such are the duties of a secretary to the President's wife.

Daily association with Mrs. Hoover brought Miss Fesler many high lights of experience.

Notable was the exciting campaign trip across the continent to the familiar Stanford campus for Mr. Hoover to cast his own ballot in his own election.

Miss Fesler also went with the Hoover party on the pre-inauguration trip to South America.

Art Dealers Favor Installment Selling as General Practice

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—Culture, along with radios and automobiles, is now available on the installment plan. The practice of selling works of art on time payment was officially approved today at a meeting of the American Art Dealers' association here.

F. Howlin Price, president of the association, said a survey determined installment selling of art is a thoroughly sound practice.

Installment selling formerly was limited to a few old and tried clients, collectors of important and expensive works, Mr. Price explained. The survey shows, he continued, that among the galleries that make installment selling a general practice, fully 85 per cent of such business is done with clients whose yearly purchase averages not more than $5,000 and sometimes less than a few hundred.

Among those galleries whose volume of business is done with young collectors, chiefly of contemporary work, more than half of the sales are on the installment plan.

"Only a few years ago," Mr. Price said, "art collecting became an important interest in a man's life only after he had retired from business and settled down to a life of leisure. Nowadays, however, the purchase of paintings and sculpture is a part of the interest of every intelligent person from his college days onward. This fact has helped to make the installment plan an imperative part of the art business."

Peaches and Cream Complexions Called Vogue for Summer

Sun tan complexions, made such by the use of dark powder, will not be in vogue this summer. They are definitely out of style, and will be replaced by a complexion of peaches and cream, or the sort of skin that women by all traditions are supposed to have.

This was the forecast given yesterday by Mrs. Florence E. Harris, president of the National Association of Boards of Beauty Culture, representing 21 states, which opened a three day conference in the Sherman hotel.

In keeping with this mode in complexions, the latest fashion in hairdress is meant to give a most feminine effect, according to Max Hoefer, president of the Illinois Association of Hairdressers, which yesterday opened a three day midwest beauty trade show in the Sherman hotel.

"Paris decrees short bobs. They are not simple, however, but elaborately artful, with dips and curls and soft lines, clinging to the shape of the head," he said. "Hair is to be seen on the forehead again. Last year's hats demanded a bare forehead and a rather bald look. This year's demand that some hair show. Hair dressing is more of an art than it has been in years."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE Theater Guild's notable staging of "Elizabeth the Queen," rich with Tudor trappings and vibrating to a fantastic note of historical romance, began its engagement at the Illinois last night. It represents the season's highest point in brilliant stagecraft. It is a lustrous, fascinating show, focused upon two impressive, firmly engraved character studies. These are, of course, the queen of Lynn Fontanne, faithful to the bizarre findings of contemporary research into the character; and the impetuous, presumptuous Essex of Alfred Lunt.

Maxwell Anderson has written the legendary story of these half-mad and wholly mismated lovers as a vivid chronicle play; the Guild has steeped it in opulent, authentic atmosphere; and the Lunts, Alfred and Lynn, have employed their consummate technique to prove that modernism can surpass the obsolete "grand style" in the art of historical portraiture.

Elizabeth steps out of her portrait galleries and comes to life, gorgeous with the spangles and brocades of Tudor royalty, in Miss Fontanne's interpretation. She is a monarch of fantasy to the eye; and an amusing, fascinating Jezebel, an old woman grasping at the fires of youth, to the mind.

But Elizabeth also emerges from the pages of her recent biographers, especially Strachey, in this interpretation. The dramatist has put into the dialogue, and Miss Fontanne into her points, every vivid and eccentric phase of the character. Even that old wives' tale that Elizabeth might have been a man is adroitly recalled in a brief, hinting line.

As for the earl of Essex, who tried to blend affairs of state with an affair of the heart to his ultimate disaster, there is no familiar tradition to follow. But Mr. Lunt brings him into persuasive incarnation as a stalwart and martial figure, flaming with Elizabethan ardor and recklessness—the kind of courtier who is confident that an amorous queen wants to be embraced without consideration of her regal dignity. He suggests also the romantic, misguided weakness of the ornate, swaggering favorite who dared to pit his ambition against the trickiest mind in Europe.

Both Miss Fontanne and Mr. Lunt have been so intensive in their zeal for characterization that they seem, at times, to be speaking in a form of Tudor dialect. I found myself occasionally regretting that I had missed a word, or a part of a line, out of Mr. Anderson's admirable, often poetic, English. In diction, I should say, these characterizations have been overstudied. A little simplification of utterance would bring these brilliant figures into clearer focus for the audience.

"Elizabeth the Queen" has distinction, thrill, and glamour. A kind of ecstasy, an Elizabethan fever, burns in this sumptuous performance. It has strangeness, tragic power, and imaginative splendor.

Egg Rolling Delights Kids Despite Drizzle

Mrs. Hoover Is Hostess to Thousands.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Thousands of little children who had never heard of the egg rolling tradition, kept it going today on the White House lawn in a drizzle of chilly rain. While hundreds of mothers, balancing umbrellas over chocolate Easter bunnies that melted in the rain, tried to persuade their offspring to call it a day and come home.

But the children refused to leave. They sloshed around the soggy sward and they chased eggs that smashed into a mash of bright yellow yolk and bright red dyes until the 3 o'clock chimes sent them home to dry clothes and warm memories.

A bachelor President, James Buchanan, started this egg rolling custom on the Easter Monday of 1853. Then the party was informal and small. For Washington was small. The troubled days of the civil war stopped the children's ceremony. But Grover Cleveland reestablished the day, while White House gardeners groaned.

This year rumor had it that Mrs. Hoover, a grandmother who knew more than any mere man about the effects of egg dye on juvenile digestion, wished to substitute folk dancing for egg rolling. What a protest went up from the children. Instantly came official reassurance that she had no intention of substituting, that she merely wanted to add folk dancing.

And so today her own grandchildren, Herbert Hoover III., whom they call Peter, and Peggy Ann, walked down to the band stand and told the talkies about their own colored Easter eggs. Later they were led back to the south porch by Boris, their grandfather's colored valet, whom they have dubbed "Uncle Charlie," and told the same story to the children of Washington officials who were invited into the White House as special guests.

Every child thought himself a special guest today. He romped about the gardens, he fell down the hills, he looked up at the porch and waved to the President, he heard the President's wife tell him she was glad he was there. And for the first time in his life he found himself more important than his mother.

For admittance to the White House grounds was denied adults, unless they were accompanied by children. This led some enterprising youngsters to sell their services to childless visitors at a quarter, a dime, or even a nickle entrance. They'd escort their temporary mamma past the guard in safety, then slide back to the sidewalk to look for another customer.

Yes, there really was the engaging little pickaninny who brought in several white mothers on a purely business basis.

One child, 10 year old Sammy Jackson of Muskegon, Mich., entered into the holiday spirit so boldly that he climbed up a White House pillar, only to fall back to earth with a broken arm; and with a broken heart when he was hustled off to the hospital.

But the rest of the crowd—it numbered 30,847 as against the 48,700 record of last year—had no casualities save wet feet for everybody and a good old fashioned spanking for a few.

The egg rolling ritual is this. You bring your own basket of eggs in as festive a basket as you can find. Then you select a desirable knoll. Usually ten or twelve other children have selected the same knoll. But you proceed to pick out a pretty egg from your basket and roll it down the hill. Then you tumble down after it, pick it up, and run up to the top of the hill, to throw it down again. Even the most hard boiled egg can't weather many of these toboggans. The average life of a rolled egg is five trips.

Then if it hasn't smashed to an omelet you peel off the vivid red or purple shell and eat the inside; or you retire the egg to your basket and pick another one. Frequently, of course, your egg rolls into alien territory. That's what makes the day so sprightly.

By 3 o'clock the green, green grass was a mosaic of red and blue and purple and the gravel paths were bright with yellow yolks. By 3 o'clock weary mothers were inclined to be tart.

"Hey, Janice," shrilled the lady with the rain soaked spring bonnet, "if you don't quit eating that egg I'll tell Mr. Hoover."

Dr. Return J. Meigs Dies at 60; Name Recalls Concord Battle

Lowell, Mass., April 6.—(AP)—Dr. Return Jonathan Meigs, 60 years old, an eye and ear doctor and the fourth bearer of his unusual first name, died today. He was the son of Joe Meigs, inventor of the Meigs elevated railway system, predecessor of the present system.

The Christian name Return Jonathan came into being right after the battle of Concord bridge during the revolutionary war. Jonathan Meigs had gone to stand with the other embattled farmers by the rude bridge and a child was born during his absence. As he neared home Meigs mused on his return but his wife cried to him, "return, Jonathan." The patriotic Meigs decided that such a greeting after such an historic event should be the name of the child and since that time three others, including the man who died today, have had it.

Wise Parent Is Never a Paragon to the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Are you a paragon to your children? Do they think of you as perfection? Do you foster that opinion?

Of course, deep in our hearts we all want our children to admire us. We probably all want them to think we're kinder, nicer, smarter and braver than we are.

And usually they do glorify us. I mean, children just naturally tend to love and look up to their parents, if they're given half a chance. "My mother" and "my father" are really written with capital letters in their hearts.

So we don't need to "build ourselves up," as the advertising people say. Our children think well enough of us already. So much so that I think we should be careful not to let them think too well of us—make paragons of us.

When our children get well past their babyhood we should give this subject some consideration.

A good example is, obviously, what we should be to them. But not perfection. Paragons and perfection are apt to be put on a pedestal. And when, as a parent, you're on a pedestal, your usefulness to your child is lessened.

Can't you imagine a boy saying, "Gosh, I wish I could talk this over with dad! But dad probably never did such a thing in his life. I'd be ashamed." Or a girl saying, "Mother's so wonderful I don't believe she ever had such thoughts or feelings. I really need her advice—but she would not understand."

Don't get up on a pedestal! If you are up on one, come down. Even if you don't try to be a paragon and the children adore you so that they make one of you—don't let them. Be folks. Let them know you make mistakes, too. If they've seen you do something you wouldn't want them to emulate, admit the error of your ways. If you've wronged them, apologize. You can really be more help to them if they think you're human than if they think you're a paragon.

Bright Weather Stirs Society to New Activity

BY THALIA ——.

YESTERDAY was a veritable renaissance of social gayety after the sober Lenten days. The bright, sunny weather and the awfully pretty new spring hats to be seen about aided and abetted the general atmosphere of pleasant activity.

There were three gatherings during the day to start the spring affairs: the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids' luncheon at the Drake to discuss their annual spring benefit; the Lake Shore League of Women Voters' dance revival at the Casino; and the Bryn Mawr scholarship fund benefit theater party at the Blackstone in the evening.

Mrs. Clifford Templeton, president of the Lighthouse Aids, was taken ill with appendicitis on Sunday afternoon and had to be rushed to the hospital for an operation in the middle of the night, so Miss Virginia Villas, first vice president, took over the task of conducting the luncheon. There was talk about the date of this year's supper dance [Saturday night, May 9] and the place [the Bal Tabarin] and the price of tickets [$7.50 for individual tickets and $10 for a couple] and Miss Edith Swift of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind, which is, of course, the beneficiary of the party, told how much good is accomplished with the proceeds of the affair and how the workers at the Lighthouse like to have the Aids go over and help make toys.

Wilmin Society Editor Is Selected by Styles Displayed.

This was all very interesting, to be sure, but I, for one, was distracted by such concerns as Jeanette Peterkin's French blue suit and matching hat, Mrs. Wilbur Smith's brown ensemble with a big white fur collar and her brown hat with a band of little white ostrich curlycues and a gossamer half-veil; by Ann Elizabeth Walsh's dark red and black Russian-looking dress and Cossackish hat with the black fur trimming; by Mrs. Botsford Young's chic and very new hair "do"; by the black and white rolled scarf collar on Mrs. Taylor Strawn's black suit, and lots more sartorial details.

The same preoccupation with spring clothes was noticeable at the Casino. Between Ronny Johansson's lovely dances, women would be leaning over to their neighbors, saying, "I've been admiring your hat. It's SO smart!"

A black velvet curtain was strung at at one end of the ballroom as a background for the dancer, and the "scene" were little island groups of chairs placed immediately in front of the space where Miss Johansson reeled about in a variety of bright costumes and choreographical maneuvers.

The audience included Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, president of the Lake Shore league, in wine colored dress and turban; Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, all in brown with an engaging coral feather in her hat; Mrs. John A. Chapman, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, Mrs. Wesley Dixon in a vernal green coat with a green blob on her shiny black hat, Mrs. Shreve Badger in a black suit with a red and white checked scarf [scarves are most awfully popular] and a red felt hat, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, Mrs. Clair B. Maw, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mrs. Wilhelm Baum, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, Miss Cornelia Conger, Mrs. Stuart H. Otis, Mrs. John E. May, and Mrs. Paul Moyer.

The Bryn Mawr benefit was gala and festive, too. A bevy of recent graduates, headed by Mary Elizabeth Johnson in a sky blue crêpe dress, and including Mrs. Lyell Ritchie, who wore a frock of a lovely rosy peach shade; Bertha Alling, Mrs. C. C. Haffner, and Mrs. Cyrus Mark sold candy and flowers, and Mrs. Anson Cameron, who was chairman for the benefit, greeted people as they came in. In the audience were the Morris L. Johnstons, the Howard F. Gillettes, Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Percival Hart, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, the Robert Morrissons, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor, the E. Harris Brewers, and the Paget Cadys.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Thomas Visiting Col., Mrs. R. R. McCormick.

Have you heard—that Mr. and Mrs. Jacob B. Thomas of New York City are in Chicago for several days as house guests of Col. and Mrs. R. R. McCormick (Mr. Thomas, you know, is M. F. H. of the Grasslands Hunt, and Mrs. Thomas designed the murals in the clubhouse, and has been very active in Grasslands affairs) . . . that the Kellogg Fairbanks' house at Lake Geneva, "The Butternuts," is being put in readiness for occupancy, and with Easter and the election over the Fairbanks will be going up almost every week-end until warm weather, when they will move in for the summer . . . that Barbara King and Dorothy Wilson are in the cast of "The Wizard of Oz," to be done this morning Saturday morning by the Santa Barbara Junior league at the Lobero theater in Santa Barbara . . . and that Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr. and the four Jelke youngsters have returned from Palm Beach?????

Either and you—Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Howard of 25 East Walton place have returned from several years in California and have taken a house in Winnetka for the summer months . . . Margaret Quan departed yesterday from Chicago and is to sail on Friday on the S. S. Roma with her aunt, Mrs. John Holland, for a six months' motor tour in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Hibbard are home from a two months' outing at Rancho Linda Vista in the Catalina mountains near Tucson, Ariz. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dunhams have been in New York City.

Happening soon — The Chicago Polo league is to hold its annual business meeting at the Blackstone hotel on Monday, April 20 at 2 in the afternoon, followed by a program of "Original Dramatic Sketches" to be given by Frances Homer. . . . Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Sumner Bacon, Mrs. Warren Everett, and Gerhardt F. Meyne are among those who are to take parties of guests to see Berta [it used to be Bertha, or "Jerry"] Ochsner, in her dance-concert at the Goodman next Monday evening. . . . The Chicago Teachers college will hold its seventh annual bridge benefit on Friday and Saturday, April 17 and 18.

DOUG FAIRBANKS, 180 SUITS OF CLOTHES, ALSO BRINGS TIGERS

BOMBAY, India, April 6.—(AP)—With a collection of tigers, panthers, and leopards and other trophies of his Indian hunts, Douglas Fairbanks arrived here today from New Delhi, where he was a guest of the viceroy, Lord Irwin.

With his 180 suits of clothes and many presents from Indian maharajas, the American film star amazed the crowd which fought before the station for a sight of him. The actor will sail from here for Caird, where he will be joined by his wife, Mary Pickford.

Fairbanks expressed disappointment that he was unable to see Mahatma Gandhi, nationalist leader, who was confined to bed with a cold and fever during his stay at New Delhi.

The Sweater Returns to Town Popularity

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS—[Special.]—The sweater has come back into style again, for town wear, but the new model is so changed you'd hardly recognize it. Gone is the plain jersey pull-over. The new sweater is made of lace or net jersey—a material that looks no more like the jersey we know than it does like sackcloth. The net jersey and the lace are as delicate and ladylike as these stuffs when made of silk, but they're all wool.

The shape of the sweater is as of yore a simple pull-over, usually with short sleeves, and it may be tucked in under the skirt top or worn over it. The newest sweater neckline is squared—not round.

Simple suits, as well as sweaters are often made of lace or net jersey, and the Chantal suit shown in our sketch, like its sweater-blouse, is made of the material—a jersey with a lace stripe, in leaf green and brown. The pull-over sweater of this model is made of creamy lace jersey, and can be worn inside the skirt, as shown, or over the top. The narrow scarf at the neck is made of brown lace; jersey, striped like the suit.

Please observe that the jacket of this suit is a straight cardigan cut, with pockets at the sides. This kind of sweater-jacket is back in the highest Paris fashion circles once more. The gored skirt of this model makes use of the striped lace jersey in opposed diagonals—the stripes of the skirt running one way and those of the buttoned hip yoke running another.

The three colors of this suit are excellent for spring sports and many smart costumes are made in green, cream and brown.

Two Skeletons Revive French Martyrs Story

Auriesville, N. Y., April 6.—(AP)—Two complete skeletons and the skull of a third have been excavated on the grounds of the Shrine to the Three Jesuit Martyrs near here.

The Rev. Peter F. Cusick, director of the shrine, said Dr. Arthur Parker, director of the museum at Rochester university, had been asked to come here and examine the skeletons to determine, if possible, whether they were the remains of white men or Indians. Dr. Parker, himself, is a Seneca Indian.

John E. Wyman, curator of the Montgomery County Historical society, who is directing the excavations, believes the bones are those of white men.

Father Cusick thought it significant that no Indian relics were found with the skeltons.

No relics of the three members of the Society of Jesus who were tortured and slain at Auriesville by Indians in the fourth decade of the seventeenth century ever were found. Father Cusick said the three, Rene Goupil, the Rev. Isaac Jogues, and Joseph Lalande, were canonized by the Roman Catholic church in June, 1930.

Goupil was a Jesuit lay brother and was killed by Mohawk Indians at their palisaded village on the south side of the Mohawk river. There the Shrine of the Martyrs now stands. Father Jogues later suffered martyrdom at the same place.

Two workmen were digging out a woodchuck yesterday when they uncovered human bones about three feet below the surface of the earth. A complete skeleton was unearthed. The bones were taken to the office of the Rev. Father Cusick.

Father Jogues and Goupil were sent from Quebec. The Mohawks, most warlike of the six nations of the Iroquois confederacy, tolerated their presence for a time, but gradually became resentful. Goupil was killed after being tortured and his body thrown into a ravine. Father Jogues also was subjected to torture, but was not slain at the time. Father Jogues hid the body of his lay companion, but when he subsequently visited the place of burial the body had disappeared.

Later Father Jogues was taken by his Mohawk captors to Fort Orange [not Albany]. Aided by friendly Dutch, he escaped to England and thence to France. Later, after being honored by the French king and queen, he returned to Quebec. In 1646 he again was sent to the Mohawk town, his mission being largely political. On his second trip to the Mohawk town Jogues was accompanied by another lay brother, John Lalande. Jogues was slain October 18, 1646, and Lalande was put to death the next day.

DURING COLDS

HANDKERCHIEFS ARE A PUBLIC MENACE

Doctors Advise KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

THERE'S good reason why science warns against handkerchiefs during colds . . . why doctors advise Kleenex for safety.

Tests reveal that ordinary handkerchiefs used during colds contain millions of living germs. As many as 240,000 in a handkerchief used only once! These handkerchiefs self-infect the user time after time. Serious complications often follow.

No wonder colds are dangerous when people protect millions of vicious germs in their purse or pocket. When they carry them back to their mouth and nose every time they use a handkerchief.

Now there is no reason to endure this dangerous practice.

Kleenex solves problem

When you use Kleenex, there's no possible danger of self-infection from handkerchiefs. You use Kleenex just once, then discard it. Germs are discarded, too. Each tissue that touches your face is absolutely clean.

Kleenex is a soft, immaculate, super-absorbent tissue. The size of a handkerchief. So gentle, so soothing, that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that each tissue may be used just once, then discarded.

The use of Kleenex will materially reduce your laundry bill. It is ideal for children.

Other uses

Kleenex has many other uses. Beauty experts say these absorbent tissues are the safe, sanitary way to remove cold creams and cosmetics. Being powerfully absorbent, Kleenex picks up all dirt and powder along with cleansing cream, leaving pores really clean.

Ask for Kleenex Tissues at any drug, dry goods or department store. In three sizes: 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Comes in white and pastel tints. If you have not tried Kleenex, send in for a free trial package to the Kleenex Company, Lake Michigan Building, Chicago, Illinois.

Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 240,000 germs per handkerchief. The organisms involved are those associated with colds.

2. That organisms associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soapy water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

These reports are based on tests performed in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Fobe, Chicago bacteriologist.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity. John's sister, Gertrude, became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war-invalided brother, Hugh, who had just died, away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister, Christine, and brother, Stephen, a better chance. Hilary's stepfather is the only sympathetic member of her family.

Shortly after their return John and Hilary become engaged.

Judith leads a lonely life in her aunt's home. Her cousin Prue is her only friend. She has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children. When Aunt Gertrude hears of her brother's engagement she sends Judith to the country. John is uneasy about Judith not being in school. He thinks it unfair to drag Hilary continually into the question of the child and Hilary feels that he has had enough interference in caring for Judith. John writes Gertrude for the truth. She replies that she cannot, as a decent citizen, send a waif of dubious parentage among other children.

Judith, at the farm of her former nurse Tracy's brother, is badly treated by the old servant. She has had no mail since her arrival. She meets Clive Harpenden, the little master of the home where she delivers cream for Tracy. Judy writes secretly to Prue.

Prue meets Hilary for tea and tries to enlist her aid for Judith. Hilary's vow not to interfere makes her rebuff Prue. They run into Tim de Morreville, whom Hilary and John met on the boat home. Tim drives Prue home and makes an engagement to drive her next day to visit Judith.

Falconer leaves town on a business trip.

Prue sees and talks to Judy and is indignant at Tracy's treatment of the little girl. Hilary, thinking over the problem of Judith, decides to write to John about her, and her letter is a great relief to him.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

CRUEL ACCUSATIONS.

A car drove up the road and stopped. . . . Tracy, flying to the window, caught only a glimpse of it and called Judith sharply, flinging the white dress to her as she came.

"Run and put that on and make yourself tidy now. Look sharp about it, and see that your hair is brushed and your hands clean."

Judith took the white frock lovingly, and hurried to obey in great surprise. Could it be a visitor . . . ? Not a visitor for her. . . . O, surely!

It couldn't be her father. She said so over and over to still her beating heart. Prue couldn't have found him yet in such a little while.

"It might be Aunt Gertrude," said Judy faintly to herself, and wished all her fingers were not thumbs so that changing into the white frock might not take so terribly long.

She was ready at last, but almost unable to go and see. A paralysis of anticipation was upon her and she felt cold as she went unsteadily down the stairs, straining her ears for the sound of a voice, familiar or unfamiliar.

It was not her father and it was not Aunt Gertrude. The voice she heard was strange to her, but she knew the tone. The visitor was not one of Tracy's friends.

Hesitating at the kitchen door, Judy saw a lady with short gray hair just showing beneath her hat and a young face with a pretty color and very pleasant eyes. She seemed to be talking to Tracy about a setting of eggs, and Judy was just about to slip away disappointed, when the visitor saw her and held out her hand.

"Now—so you'll run after young gentlemen as are your betters, will you, like your mother before you!"

"Why, you must be Clive's little friend I've heard so much about. Won't you come and speak to me, Judy?"

Judy did not even see Tracy's scowl, for her eyes were upon the face of Clive's mother, who was so pretty and looked so kind.

"My son and your little guest have struck up quite a friendship," said Mrs. Harpenden to Tracy. "You must let her come over to tea with us sometimes. I understand she is to be with you till her father comes home."

"Father?" said Tracy, trying to control her rage. "She has no father, ma'am. They don't have, her sort, begging your pardon, I'm sure. Of all the lying little . . ."

Tracy broke off and whirling upon Judith, thrust her from the room, banging the door in the little girl's face.

"I wouldn't have had such a thing happen, not for the world, ma'am," cried Tracy, shocked and psychophantic, "to think that evil, good for nothing would dare go after Master Clive . . . taking advantage of me giving her a little outing to carry the cream across, and always so careful to tell her to take it to the kitchen door and come right back."

"She looks a nice, gentle little girl," protested Mrs. Harpenden, bewildered.

"Nice? Yes, she looks nice, because it's not my way to have a girl around the place not looking nice and tidy, however bad. Why, if she's got clothes to her back, that's only thanks to my dear late mistress, an angel if ever there was one, as took her out of the gutter where she belongs. Wasn't I with her at the time and seen it all? The child of a woman of the streets, begging your pardon for mentioning such creatures before you, ma'am, and as bad as you'd expect. My poor dear lady who had a heart of gold, left money to support the child out of her charity, and try and help her to a decent life, but she's that sinful, her guardians couldn't have her with their own children, and sent her to me to watch her and keep her busy. If I'd 'a thought she'd dare. . . ."

Tracy burst into noisy tears.

"But is this story of her father pure imagination, then?" asked her visitor.

"Lying, that's what it is. She never had no father and knows it well enough. She's bad all through and as full of sins . . . O, I know her."

"Poor child!" Mrs. Harpenden was shocked and uncomfortable, disliking the farmer's sister very thoroughly and bitterly sorry for the little girl. But what could she do? It must be true, she supposed. The woman would never dare . . . and Clive, after all, was a mere boy. How could his judgment be trusted? "Then you'll speak to Tracy about that setting of White Leghorns, and let me know. Say Mr. Harpenden would be glad of his advice." The visitor prepared to go and smiled faintly. "And please don't scold the little girl, for if it is as you say, she can hardly be blamed, can she? We must only be sorry for her."

With a nod, Mrs. Harpenden departed, ignoring the woman's anxious assurances of the farmer's service and her bowing and scraping, in the hope that she would be warned and ponder this advice.

Tracy, however, was in no condition of mind to take it, for her rage had passed all bounds, and even her own self-interest could not hold her now; nor would she even think of danger there. She had the whip hand over the lot of them, and she would use it.

Father indeed! Tracy would tell her all about fathers. The very fact of her own blunder in having supposed Mrs. Harpenden to be a visitor for Judith and having sent her off to dress, drove her on, and pulling open the door, she seized the little girl standing white faced outside it, as if unable to move, and flung her across the room.

"Now . . . so you'll run after young gentlemen as are your betters, will you, like your mother before you . . . you child of the gutter, talking so fine about your father! Lying and sneaking, that's what you've been doing, just let me catch you at it again! You never had a father. Make up your mind about that! Your sort don't have fathers, my girl, so don't you go putting on airs because you been better treated than you had any right to expect. Decent people don't have nothing to do with mistakes like you, and you'll learn it before you're very much older."

Judith did not move and did not speak. Dead white in her white frock, she stared at Tracy as if she had been hypnotized, and something about her for the first time frightened the woman. She began to justify herself.

"What do you suppose you were sent here for to scrub and clean and learn to be useful? Because it's all ye're fit for, and gentle folk don't want you near decent children. Well, can't you speak? Can't you answer a civil question . . . ? Clear out, then, and go to bed!"

Tracy turned and flung out of the kitchen. Judith, feeling her way as though she were blind, crept upstairs, stumbling as she went, and walked into her room. She looked 'round her very slowly. She did not know what she was seeking. It was something she had to do and she could not remember. The door creaked behind her and as though awakened to life, she flung herself against it frantically and turned the key. Yes, yes, she must lock the door! They should never come in again, never.

Safe at last to face her misery and shame and such horror and fear as she had never dreamt of, she fell on the bed and buried her face from the light.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

N. M.: COFFEE IS NOT HARMful to the average person if used in moderation and if it is freshly prepared. If taken to excess, indigestion may result. One cup of coffee with each meal should suffice.

I. D.: RAPID EATING IS, IN many instances, the cause of those red blotchy rashes on the face. When the digestion is overtaxed it is bound to result in skin disturbances. My booklet on the skin may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Fondness, Not Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are good friends but in love with the same fellow. He takes us both out. How are we to know which one he really loves? L. J. and S. M. M."

He's equally fond of you—and in love with neither.

Widower Likes Two Women; Can't Decide Which to Choose

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a widower, 39, with two children. I have been going out with a young woman, 28, who seems very fond of me. Also, there is a widow with a girl, 6, who cares for me and I like her, too. I don't know which one to marry.

"The business girl has little experience with housework, the widow has had a lifetime of it. Both the girls are anxious to marry. The widow, like myself, has a good home complete, and the other girl will come into money in time. UNDECIDED."

I take it the decision wouldn't be hard to make were the two youngsters not to be considered. But what an embarrassment of choice! "John," a poor lonely, who can't get a girl at all, would certainly envy you. Mr. Widower. The sentimental answer would be to marry the one you care the most about, regardless of her financial assets or prospects. But widowers of 39, with children, have to bring a little harder sense into a second mating than into a first. Isn't it so?

The older people get the less reckless are their gambling instincts, whether its romance or real estate they're after. But who could advise you, knowing only that the widow had a girl of 6 and a good home complete, and her rival was a business girl with money in prospect. Much as the home and money aspect of the respective women are not, in our very material day, to be sneezed at, still the character and disposition of the women count more on a married life endowment policy.

Especially where children's welfare has to be reckoned in on the marriage idea, the disposition of the women toward children is pretty important, or the comforts of a "complete" home and money in prospect isn't going to mean a thing. Even the matter of being a trained housewife isn't more important than the companionship the woman can furnish, along with an amiable disposition. If a business trained girl cares enough for her man, she manages to conquer the housekeeping technique readily enough. The widow, of course, has had her training in man handling, which is agreed to be one of her great assets.

But widows, after all, are women like business girls, and it is the woman that counts most in widowers' choices.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My niece, aged 4 years, and I were taking a short nap in a darkened room, and hearing preparations being made for the evening meal, I shook her gently, and told her we had better go downstairs to our supper.

Rather sleepily, she demanded to know what we were going to have to eat, and I told her that it would probably be meat and vegetables. There was silence in the room for several minutes and then out of the darkness came her petulant voice:

"Meat, meat, meat! That's all my mother thinks of. Never pork sausages, always meat!" G. T.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Committee Trait.

Recently I was on the refreshment committee at a woman's club meeting. We had ordered what we thought would be sufficient ice cream, but when the time for serving came we found the quantity so limited that we were obliged to serve small slices.

After the last guest had been served one of our committee discovered three extra bricks in an out of the way place. Therefore we enjoyed a most lavish helping of ice cream as we ate our lunch in the kitchen.

Imagine our embarrassment when four of the guests entered to consult us relative to some club work. We each felt their eyes glued to our plates. J. E. C.

NOW, SHE ENJOYS FOODS THAT USED TO MAKE HER ILL

"For over five years it seemed like everything that I enjoyed eating would disagree with me," says Miss Helen S. Darosz, 4645 S. Wood Street, Chicago, Illinois. "I would suffer from indigestion until the gas would crowd my heart.

"I had very severe pains at times; got so I had very little appetite and was almost afraid to eat. I did not get any real help until a friend persuaded me to get some Pape's Diapepsin. Now I eat candy, or anything I want; even foods that used to make me ill. If I feel the least discomfort a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin makes me comfortable in a minute."

When thousands like Miss Darosz are coming right out in public to praise Pape's Diapepsin, there seems no reason to doubt that it does what is claimed for it to help people who suffer from acid-dyspepsia, and the heartburn, gas, nausea, belching, headaches, dizziness, etc., caused by this common ailment. But those who wish further proof before buying may easily have it. The makers agree to send anyone a trial package absolutely FREE. Just write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va.

PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN

NEW! You can now get Diapepsin in the new, handy size to carry with you at all times. Just ask for the new pocket box.

Food Talk.

Mrs. W. N. M. writes: "Will you tell me how to prevent the crust of custard pies from becoming soggy? Is a soggy crust caused by the custard separating?"

One reason why the crust of a custard pie becomes soggy is that it has not been baked at a sufficiently high temperature. The filling may also cause sogginess. The crispest, tenderest, driest crust will become wet and sodden if it is exposed very long to a watery filling. The perfectly baked custard pie has a crisp, tender crust free from any sogginess, and a filling that is tender yet firm and jelly-like without the slightest trace of a livery texture or a broken watery curd. Success in baking custard pie depends entirely upon temperature control. An egg-milk mixture coagulates at a low temperature. But pie crust to be good must be baked in a hot oven [about 450 degrees F.].

In previous discussions of custard pie we have described two different methods of obtaining a good crust and an ideal custard filling. The nature of the custard pie makes it necessary for the crust to be baked at one temperature [450 degrees F.] and the custard at a low temperature [300 degrees F.]. One way to do this is to bake the crust first at the usual high temperature. When the crust is done leave it in the oven and pour into it the custard mixture that has been heated scalding hot in the top of a double boiler. Then the baking of the custard can proceed at a low temperature [300 degrees F.] until the custard is firm.

An unpricked crust, then, is necessary. It must be baked between two pans to keep its shape. This is done by lining a pie tin in the ordinary way with pastry. Trim the edge and put another pie tin of the same size inside the pastry lined tin. This means that the pastry is between two pie tins, one tin fitting inside the other. Now invert these two tins with the pastry between them and bake in a hot oven for about 12 minutes until the crust is brown.

At the end of this time turn the pans right side up and remove the inside tin and pour in the filling as we have described. The baking of the custard requires from 23 to 25 minutes, depending upon the thickness of the filling. Remove from the oven and cool. A pie baked in this way will have a good crust free from sogginess and a firm, tender custard.

Some cooks prefer the old way of putting the filling into the unbaked pastry lined tin. Good pie can be made in this way, but it is more difficult than the first method described. A very stiff pastry is required. Line the pie tin with the pastry and place in the oven. Then add the filling. Bake at 450 degrees F. for about 12 minutes, then reduce the temperature to 300 degrees F. to finish baking until the filling is a firm custard. Both methods require about the same amount of time.

SHRIMP COCKTAIL.

3 cups fresh cooked or canned shrimp
1 cup tomato catsup
1 tbsp. chili sauce
¼ tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. white pepper
Juice of 1 lemon
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. celery salt
1 tsp. pearl onions

If fresh shrimp are used cook them 15 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain, remove shell, intestinal vein, and chill. Break in pieces and mix with cocktail sauce made by combining the rest of the ingredients. Place in cocktail glasses or green pepper cases. Surround with crushed ice and garnish with sections of lemon.

Why Not Indulge in an Overhauling, for Beauty's Sake?

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I met a friend just emerging from a Fifth avenue beauty salon the other day. She was carrying a package which she disclosed had left her with only the ten cent bus fare to get home with. In it was a cleansing cream, a tissue cream, an astringent, and large pore treatment lotion.

"You know," she laughed, "it takes a stranger to tell you your faults. That dame in there" [meaning the saleswoman] "certainly called me to a turn. I'm the girl that nobody ever told. I didn't think my skin was so bad. Of course, she was trying to sell me goods, but she wouldn't have had the nerve to tell me what she saw wrong with my face if the faults had not been there. That wouldn't have been good salesmanship.

"Well, anyway, dearie," she breezed on, "next time you see me, speak if you only think it it's I. Nobody's ever going to floor me like that again—not if there's anything to the stuff in these here bottles."

The moral of which is that we may be able to kid ourselves and our friends into silence—but not the stranger's eye that may happen to light upon our faces. Anyway, if you can bear it, financially and psychologically, maybe it's a good idea to turn yourself over, now and then, for an honest consultation. Why not with beauty—as with the state of your health? Why not periodic examinations to determine whether you're good for another five, ten, or twenty year run? To discover, too, if there's anything wrong at the moment that might be cleared up, preserving thereby a good complexion well on into the middle years.

I remember sitting in, one day, in a beauty salon and hearing a tactless salesgirl tell a customer bluntly she ought to take treatments for "that neckline of hers."

The customer replied: "How about taking some, yourself?" which wasn't a fair retort, under the circumstances, though the sale tactlessness deserved a reprimand. But I'll wager that neckline that night got a scrutiny and in every probability a treatment it needed. For it was, as the sales attendant hinted too broadly, in need of care.

GAS relieved

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no harmful after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips. It is always a liquid; never used in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All druggists—25c and 50c.

MAYOR WHO FLED MILLION SHORT BACK FOR TRIAL

Faces 30 Charges at Hearing Today.

West Point, Neb., April 6.—(AP)—Paul Wupper, who for years ruled nearby Beemer, Neb., as its mayor and bank president and was known as "the Little Kaiser," today sat in a cell in the county jail here awaiting arraignment in connection with the embezzlement of approximately a million dollars from the Beemer State bank.

PAUL WUPPER.

While in custody in Philadelphia for bigamy he admitted to officers that he was wanted in Nebraska in connection with the bank failure. Nebraska officers returned him here early today.

At his arraignment tomorrow he will face men and women whose savings were wiped out by the bank's collapse. Scores crowded about the courthouse eager for a glimpse of the man who was known as a lavish spender before his disappearance in September, 1928.

Faces Hearing Today.

This afternoon County Attorney Harvey Ellenberger announced the preliminary hearing would not be held until tomorrow and the crowd dispersed. No demonstration was made and officers feared no mob violence, although they had carried a machine gun to the jail.

Wupper told two friends who visited him that he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. They were George Heilman, railroad agent who taught the German youth, Wupper, to speak English after his arrival from the continent, and Paul Bauer.

"Paul, now 54 years old, is completely whipped," Heilman said. "He confided that his second marriage, which led to his arrest in Philadelphia, was made because he needed money."

Prosecutor Ellenberger was preparing additional charges to be filed against Wupper. He said "30 or 40 counts of forgery and uttering" would be filed.

Said to Plead Guilty.

Wupper told officers he would plead guilty and "get it over with," and District Judge Clinton Chase of Stanton has agreed to come here Wednesday afternoon, take the plea and sentence the former banker, who now faces only one charge, embezzling $67,000.

The maximum penalty for embezzlement is 10 years, but for forgery the maximum is 20 years.

Wupper told officers that all money which disappeared from the bank had been spent in speculation before he disappeared and that he left with only 75c. He was penniless when officers brought him to Nebraska.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Gone, but Not Beyond Recall

MINISTER TELLS WHY HE KILLED AN EVANGELIST

Nevada, Mo., April 6.—(AP)—The Rev. J. A. Brown, 67, former Ozark blacksmith, was blamed today by a coroner's jury for the fatal wounding Saturday of the Rev. George Rider, 43, Kansas City evangelist, shot to death as the climax of his series of revival meetings at the Hailey's Bluff noudenominational church.

Webster Hallett, county prosecutor, said he would charge the minister with the first degree murder of Mr. Rider, who died Easter day praying forgiveness for his assailant.

Hallett ascribed as a motive for the slaying Mr. Brown's jealousy at Mr. Rider's success in reuniting a congregation divided before the former blacksmith resigned as pastor.

Mr. Brown, occupying a cell with a confessed and sentenced murderer, insisted he shot the evangelist when Mr. Rider resisted efforts to eject him from the Brown home. The former pastor of the Little Log church has employed an attorney.

ASHES OF CZOLGOSZ, M'KINLEY'S ASSASSIN, MOVED TO NEW PLOT

Auburn, N. Y., April 6.—(AP)—The remains of Leon Czolgosz, the man who assassinated President McKinley, and of Chester Gillette, whose murder of Grace Brown back in 1906 stirred the country and provided the basis for Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," were being moved today with those of twenty others.

The acting warden of Auburn prison, Frank L. Heacox, ordered the transfer, at the direction of the state, from potter's field in Fort Hill cemetery to Soule cemetery, adjacent to the prison farm. The order was issued after it was established the state did not own the land which has been used as a convict's burial ground, since the prison was built here more than a century ago.

Czolgosz fired the shot that took McKinley's life in Buffalo in 1901 and was electrocuted for the crime on Oct. 29 that year at Auburn prison. The identity of the others, it appeared today, remains the secret of Jacob O. Lee, superintendent of Fort Hill cemetery. He decided to let the memory of most of these sinners against society sleep on undisturbed.

HIT VOLPE STORY IN HIS BATTLE ON DEPORTATION

The airplane manifest made out when Volpe landed at Key West from Havana showed the entry of one alien. The government has produced evidence that Volpe claimed citizenship, and the defense yesterday sought to show that he was the alien of the party, thereby clearing him of falsification. But Immigration Inspector John Phillips of Key West testified that the alien was the Cuban consul.

Volpe's fellow passengers included City Sealer Dan Serritella, Capone lieutenant, former Ald. Albert Prignano, and Ald. William Pacelli.

When You CAN'T QUIT
A headache is often the sign of fatigue. When temples throb it's time to rest. If you can't stop work, you can stop the pain. Bayer Aspirin will do it, every time. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and carry-on—in comfort.
Don't work with nerves on edge or try all day to forget a nagging pain that aspirin could end in a jiffy! Genuine aspirin can't harm you; just be sure it's Bayer.
In every package of Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. Carry these tablets with you, and be prepared. To block a sudden cold on the street-car; quiet a grumbling tooth at the office; relieve a headache in the theatre; spare you a sleepless night when nerves are "jumping."
And no modern girl needs "time out" for the time of month! Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for periodic pain.
Take Bayer Aspirin for any ache or pain, and take enough to end it. It can't depress the heart. That is medical opinion. That is why it is only sensible to insist on the genuine tablets that bear the Bayer cross. The pocket tin is a convenient size. The bottle of 100 tablets is most economical to buy.

WOMEN OF JAPAN CLAIM VICTORY IN SUFFRAGE DEFEAT

Say Proposed Bill Was an "Insult."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 6.—Far from being disheartened by the recent rejection in the house of peers of the woman suffrage bill, leading suffragettes declare they are frankly delighted over the squelching of the bill. This serves to increase interest in the paradoxical situation, for both the opponents of the entrance of women into politics and supporters of the woman suffrage movement now claim a victory in the defeat of the bill.

MME. FUSAE ICHIKAWA. [Acme Photo.]

"We are glad the incomplete woman suffrage bill was defeated," Mme. Fusae Ichikawa, prominent woman leader, said. "What we want right now is a prefectural franchise and not the half hearted proposal which the government had offered us."

Calls It "Humiliating."

Far from restricting the rights of women, any bill seeking to grant suffrage rights to the feminine sex should place the advantage with the women as far as the age limitation is concerned, because girls mature earlier than men, in the opinion of the Fusen Kakutoku Domei, or the Woman Suffrage league. In a statement the organization declared it sincerely rejoiced over the defeat of the bill.

"We are glad the limited woman suffrage bill, aiming at placing us in a humiliating position, has been voted down," it says. "We seek absolute equality with men and we will get it. Our goal is complete national franchise for women."

Opponent Tells His View.

Upholding the action of the peers in defeating the proposed legislation, Baron Toshihide Ki of the Koseiki, a stern opponent of the bill, defended the action of the legislators.

"Woman's place is in the home," he said; "and it is her natural duty to remain there. Woman suffrage is just another foreign fad, like short skirts and bobbed hair. Just because others have adopted such fashions is no proof that it is right. In fact, I feel that the granting of suffrage rights to the women of the United States has retarded, rather than advanced civilization in that country.

"If woman wants equality with man she should assume equal responsibility and take up military service, for instance. I voted against the bill, not because I do not thing much of women, but because I think a great deal of them and respect them too much to have their unique virtues, unseen in their foreign sisters, ruined by their participation in politics.

French Ship on Maiden Voyage Runs on a Reef

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, April 6.—A message from Mombasa, on the east African coast, said the new French ship Jean Laborde, 1,100 tons and on her maiden voyage, ran on a reef this morning at Ras Serani, at the entrance of Mombasa harbor. The spring tide was blamed for the grounding of the ship. The passengers were all safe, the message said. Efforts to refloat the ship were to be made this afternoon.

TELLS NEW JURY TO PRESS SHORT WEIGHT INQUIRY

CRIMINAL COURTS.

John Thomas, Jacob Wise, Logan Morris, and Dave Woods, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

The April grand jury, which was impaneled yesterday, was instructed by Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court to carry on the investigation into the alleged short weighing conspiracy, which resulted last week in a raid on the city hall office of City Sealer Daniel Serritella, Capone lieutenant. Assistant State's Attorney Harold M. Keele, in charge of the investigation, said he hopes to be able to present evidence to the new jury later in the week.

"For months evidence has been accumulated which will be presented to you, disclosing that dealers and consumers alike have been the victims of an organized conspiracy, far reaching in scope, whereby millions have been mulcted from the public," said the judge in his charge.

"This evidence should be carefully considered by you and such further investigation made as may seem to you necessary in the furtherance of justice and the public interest."

The judge, in appointing F. W. Grapperhaus, 7136 Paxton avenue, a real estate dealer, foreman, also instructed the jury to keep up the war against racketeers.

RICH OIL MAN FACES KIDNAPING CHARGE IN TEXAS

Laredo, Tex., April 6.—(AP)—Indictments charging kidnaping, conspiracy to rob, assault with a prohibited weapon, and carrying an unlawful weapon were returned by the grand jury today against C. C. Julian, California and Oklahoma oil operator.

Julian, at liberty under $15,000 bond, indicated he planned to take action himself against his accuser, Lamar S. Boling of San Antonio and Oklahoma, former publicity director for Julian. The indictments here charge Julian attempted to rob Boling of $50,000.

At Oklahoma City Lewis R. Morris, county attorney, was considering a demand by O. A. Cargill, counsel for Julian, for the filing of a complaint against Boling, charging him with embezzlement of between $100,000 and $125,000 which Julian declared he gave Boling last year to be held in trust for him.

The indictments were the first returned in Texas under a new kidnaping statute making it possible to assess a death penalty.

The rough woolen coat fabric fashions the scarf collar, galyak trimmed, on the coat left above. A wrap-around style, it is tailored to a nicety, giving the silhouette the "fitted and only slightly flared" lines it should have. In women's and misses' sizes, $85.

Scarf collars are smarter than ever in galyak. This one is detachable, may be worn high or open. The coat above, center, is tailored to swathe the figure, and buttons at the hipline for further accent. Tucks flare the sleeve. In women's and misses' sizes, $85.

In this day of flattering necklines, the wide rever collar of galyak is a favorite. The coat on the right wraps around in the straighter silhouette of this spring season. Sleeves flare from the wrist. In women's and misses' sizes. $85.

And so the three coats featured illustrate how distinctively the collection here brings you this new fashion—which every day is growing greater—"Galyak fur—on the new Spring coats."

SOX RALLY IN NINTH TO DEFEAT GIANTS, 6-5

SIX GAMES TO WIND UP CUBS' SPRING SERIES

Hornsby Thinks All Should Be Won.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

El Paso, Tex., April 6.—Manager Rogers Hornsby, who predicted at the outset of the 1931 training season that the Cubs should and probably would win all their 1931 exhibition games, amended his theory during the 24 hours' ride across the desert today. Hornsby now says the Cubs should and probably will win all the six games remaining on the spring schedule, thus proving again that hope springs eternal in the human bosom.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

In Fort Worth tomorrow afternoon Guy Bush will seek to demonstrate, against the Texas league team of the Cow city, that he has not faded from the peak of his spring conditioning. Malone, Root, and Blake all were pretty contrasty with their earlier efforts the last time they attempted to throw baseballs past batsmen. Guy, a proud and spirited young athlete, was greatly grieved by the retrogression of his mates and announced that his aim of the morrow is to inspire his fellows that they may persevere and forthwith regain their talents.

Players Eager for Pay Day.

While there was a certain amount of self reflection during the long trip, relative to the fact the Cubs lost 14 of their 29 exhibition games on the coast, the voyage was just like most other desert voyages going east. The players have been operating without pay, you know, and most of the fellows are getting eager to see dough production get under way. This, of course, caused them to focus their thoughts on the future which begins April 14 rather than the past which began Feb. 14, the date on which they pushed off for spring training.

The trip east was made by the smallest squad of athletes that the Cubs ever brought back from the coast. The roster now carries 28 names, only three over the midseason limit, and only 26 of these were on the trip. Blair previously had gone to Texarkana to attend the funeral of a sister, and Bob Osborn, who lives here in El Paso, was given permission to come on ahead of the club. All of the players are in excellent physical condition, according to their own claims and the diagnosis of Dr. Andy Lotshaw.

Hurlers Ready Soon.

Despite their mediocre showings their last times out, there was nothing about the performances of Malone, Root, and Blake to indicate they won't be back in stride when the season gets under way. Smith hasn't had a let down at any time, and Bush has had his low fast ball favorite under control in his last three or four games, which is equivalent to saying he has been at his best.

Hartnett has been going great, both afield and with his extra base bat, and Zack Taylor has been an able relief performer in the catching job. Zack has been hitting the ball harder than in recent years. At first base, Charley Grimm has been delighting his friends with his renewed agility and pep, and Charley has been doing more than his accustomed share of hitting. Hornsby at second hasn't been so brilliant in his fielding because he's slowed down considerably, but he has been hitting as of old and is almost sure to bat in many more runs than he allows to be scored by balls that trickle past his aging shins.

Bell Leads the Hitters.

Bell is negligible as to fielding class at third base, but he has been leading the club in hitting. He has hit safely at least once in each of the last 22 games and in several games had as many as four hits. English suffered a little by the program which kept Jurges in the lineup throughout the majority of the exhibition games, but in recent contests he has been regaining his batting eye. His frequent vacations did not interfere with his fielding or throwing skill.

Riggs Stephenson hasn't come up with any of the aches and spavins that hindered his work last year and from all indications Johnny Moore and Dan Taylor, reserve outfielders, will have to wait many days before they have a chance to edge in on Stevie's territory. No one except Hack Wilson worried much about Hack's recent hitting slump, but just the same there was an element of puzzling when the pudgy one snapped out of it in his last two games on the coast. Hack has been training well and will be a big factor in Cub doings from the start of the season.

Cuyler has had several rather spotty days, but he's ready for a great year. He has completely reconciled himself to the bad-ball job, a spot that he once resented. He says he still would prefer to bat down in the batting order, but is quite eager to do his best as the first Cub batsman.

HELENE MADISON.

Seattle Swim Stars Oppose Chicago Girls

Breaks Record

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 6.—(AP)—Helene Madison, 17 years old, Seattle swimmer, set one new world's swimming record and aided in establishing another at the Minneapolis A. C. tonight. She streaked 50 yards in :27.1 to better by 2-10 second the mark held by Ethel Lackie, and then helped to create a new figure in the 400 yard relay.

Helene Madison, 18 year old holder of 12 world records for free style swimming and 30 out of 54 American marks, will lead a team of four Seattle, Wash., girls to Chicago tonight to meet the Illinois Women's Athletic club in a dual meet in the I. W. A. C. pool.

The two squads will clash again tomorrow evening at Loyola university. During the two meets Miss Madison hopes to add two more records to her long string, including that for 500 meters. It will be her first appearance in Chicago.

The 160 yard relay race is labeled as the feature event in tonight's meet. Dawn Gilson, Lucy Schacht, Edna McKibbin, and Miss Madison will swim for the Washington A. C., while Betty Quinn, Marion Dose, Emma Shamaitis, and Marilyn Lapin have been nominated for the I. W. A. C.

Georgia Coleman of the Los Angeles Athletic club, who holds several national women's diving titles, will appear in an exhibition.

The Central A. A. U. low board diving championship, now held by Jane Fauntz of the I. W. A. C., will be decided in conjunction with the meet tonight, while the C. A. A. U. 220 yard free style race will be held as part of the Loyola university meet.

Miss Fauntz will be unable to defend her diving title because of a scholastic examination, and honors will go to one of the three remaining contestants, Ruth Fauntz, Evelyn Kennedy, and Jane Frye.

CALZA THROWS JOHN DE LONGE IN EXCLUSIVE SHOW

Hank Bruder Wins Debut Performance.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

George Calza, the Italian tooth paste advertisement, disposed of a Frenchman by the name of John De Longe in two straight falls of the most exclusive wrestling performance of the current season, as presented by Promoters Joe Coffey and Jim Mullen at the Coliseum last night.

The show was so select that the wags among the customers found plenty of opportunity to have their quips heard by all present. The athletes in the various matches were somewhat disturbed to hear somebody in the farther reaches of the house bellow out such advice as "Your shoelace is untied," and "That's your own foot you are holding."

In addition to the comparative privacy which the entertainment was conducted, a large consignment of collegiate culture was presented. Notable among the former campus athletes was Hank Bruder, captain of the Northwestern conference champions. The luckless Henry met up with no casualties last night and demonstrated the value of his football career in subduing Rudy Hoffman of De Paul university in 3 minutes and 38 seconds.

McCoy Beats Judson.

Other former collegians on the card included Buck Weaver, once of the Maroon eleven, whose flying tackles finally downed Able Kaplin, announced as the Jewish champion. Then Frank Judson, who once taught head holds and such to Harvard wrestlers, found a match in one Robert McCoy, former all around athlete at Holy Cross college. The McCoy party has the fatal "I've got you" stare perfected by Jim Londos, but runs somewhat to blubber, which, however, did not prevent him from displaying an agility strange in one built so close to the ground. If there was a wrestling match on the program last night, it was the Judson-McCoy effort.

The feature match attracted the majority of the customer's insults, due to the cuffing and slapping tactics introduced by De Longe. During the course of the first fall, which he finally won with a body slam and a half nelson, Calza continued to display an amazing array of teeth, which flashed every time the Frenchman would connect with a left hook or uppercut. In the second fall, however, George seemed to be irked somewhat and made several spirited returns, the while forgetting to flash those dazzling molars and bicuspids. A body slam finally put John in his place in 7:23.

Bruder-Hoffman Match Fast.

The Bruder-Hoffman match was the speediest of the evening. Immediately after they had received their instructions from Referee Bob Managoff, Rudy returned to his corner, turned and made a lunging tackle at Hank's middle. The former Purple leader sidestepped him and Rudy sailed through the ropes on to the concrete floor, whence he came up limping from a twisted right knee. Two flying tackles and a wristlock then brought Hank victory.

In the first match of the evening, Zack Malakov, the north side motorcycle cop, gave a ticket to Jack Sperling with a body slam in 21:45.

Bushy Graham Wins by Technical K. O. in 8th

Columbus, O., April 6.—(AP)—Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., former bantamweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Farr, Cleveland, in the eighth round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight. Referee Jack Dempsey stopped the bout after Farr had been floored eight times in the round.

Meyer Londons Whip Drivers Five for Title

The Meyer Londons last night won the championship of the Jewish basketball league by defeating the Drivers Big Five, 17 to 14, in the final at the Boys' Brotherhood Republic. Franklin Park defeated the J. A. Schillers, 20 to 19, to take third place.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

SCHMELING AND STRIBLING.

THE WAKE has had no comment to make during discussion of a site for the impending Schmeling-Stribling bout for the heavyweight championship. Ordinarily, prospects of a title bout in our midst would inspire enthusiasm. Instead, we felt only indifference, despite personal liking for both principals.

There were several reasons for this apathy. In the first place, the contest, as originally contemplated, was to be held with New York charities as part beneficiary in the event of profit. That, on its face, did not seem fair. Why should any overplus of receipts over expenses from a middle western fight assemblage return east?

Even so, we grant and concede the original sponsors for this charity showed the energy and initiative to secure signatures of the boxers. Thus they were entitled to the mill, if they wanted it—but why here, when they could not hold it at home because of New York commission rulings? Now this agency announces withdrawal from all plans. Nevertheless, the opinion may persist in some quarters that it is a withdrawal of "convenience," with what that implies.

Furthermore, the bout, if held here, was to be conducted by an Illinois corporation, with local men as officers, but this corporation, in reality, is a subsidiary of the New York Garden. Having the boxers and holding articles of incorporation, it no doubt possesses legal right to hold such a bout. Yet with this setup and subterfuge, one can hardly be excused for feeling that Chicagoans ought to be able to finance and manage their own title fight, if any. Perhaps such feeling is provincial, but it certainly exists in many quarters.

So, since we felt no particular desire for Chicago to have this battle under conditions then existing, The Wake refrained from comment rather than be characterized as a "knocker."

If, eventually, the Schmeling-Stribling bout is awarded to Chicago under conditions fair to this city, which now is improbable, it will draw as well here as anywhere else. Wherever it is held in this time of business depression, gate receipts are not likely to compare in magnitude to those bouts of two and three years ago.

JOHNNY RISKO RALLIES TO GIVE HEENEY BEATING

TORONTO, Ont., April 6.—(AP)—Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, avenged his recent defeat at the hands of Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight, by decisively outpointing the "Hard Rock from Down Under" in a grueling 10 round bout here tonight. Risko weighed 191½; Heeney 209½.

The bout was the first between heavyweights here in more than two years, and it filled to make a hit with 5,500 fans, brought up for years on a flyweight diet.

Risko won with a rousing rally in the closing rounds. Outweighed, the Clevelander started cautiously, and as Heeney was just as careful, the first three rounds were extremely dull. Heeney took the upper hand in the fourth and fifth with hard wallops to the head and body and had Risko holding on.

In the sixth, however, Risko suddenly came to life and had the better of it the remainder of the bout. He staggered Heeney with a hard right in the ninth and had the Hard Rock missing continuously at the last.

The Oilers need only one more victory to clinch the pennant, having captured the first game of the series here Saturday night, 2 to 1. The two teams will move to Kansas City for the third game Thursday night.

Chicago Boxers Take Over Stage at New York Show

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—Chicago's championship Golden Gloves team stopped the show for ten minutes tonight at the Palace, New York's biggest vaudeville theater.

The Chicago fighters, who are in New York on a sightseeing trip, were in the audience at the Palace when Phil Baker, comedian, who was on the program, called attention to them and asked the crowd to "give them a great big hand." The applause and cheering was so prolonged that Baker finally called the boys to the stage and introduced Fred Caserio, captain of the team, who in turn introduced the other twenty-three members of the squad. The cheering continued for ten minutes before the audience permitted the show to continue.

The Chicago team left late tonight for Washington, where the boys will visit the capitol tomorrow, returning to Chicago Wednesday night to begin training for their international bout with the French amateur champions at the Chicago Stadium on May 12.

Matt J. Winn was reelected president of the American Turf association at a meeting of stockholders here yesterday. All other officers of the association also retained their places. The directors were reelected except James B. Brown of Louisville, whose resignation was accepted. No one was named to fill his place.

The other officers reelected in addition to Mr. Winn were Stuyvesant Peabody, vice president; Maurice L. Galvin, secretary, treasurer, and general counsel, and Johnson N. Camden, chairman of the board of directors.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 6.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, Philadelphia, 179, light heavyweight champion, took things easy too long in a ten round fight here tonight with Billy Jones, Negro, 176, also of Philadelphia, and Jones was given a referee's decision. The champion's title was not involved.

BRUNDAGE QUITS C. A. A. POST IN POLICY DISPUTE

Balked in Effort to Get Outside Competition.

Avery Brundage, president of the National and Central A. A. U., yesterday tendered his resignation from the athletic committee of the Chicago Athletic club. The resignation will be acted upon at a meeting of the club directorate, of which Mr. Brundage is a member, this week.

AVERY BRUNDAGE.

Mr. Brundage's action is the result of a factional split over the question of outside athletic competition for club teams. Since the election of David B. Gann as president the organization has given up its hockey and swimming teams. Track was abolished shortly before Mr. Gann took office. The older men contend the club should confine itself to social activities, while the younger element support Mr. Brundage in his stand in favor of outside competition.

Cites Club Constitution.

"I took this step in view of the present policy doing away with competition," Mr. Brundage said. "I feel the club should maintain the position it has held for so many years in the athletic world, but the present administration is not so minded. The constitution calls for our teams to compete in authorized meets, and I feel we should live up to the constitution or change the name."

Mr. Gann said he had not been informed of Mr. Brundage's resignation. "I am unable to understand Mr. Brundage taking such a step," he said. "There has been no trouble of which I am aware. I do not believe he has tendered his resignation from the committee."

The athletic committee as appointed by President Gann is in a majority opposed to competing with outside teams. The members, besides Mr. Brundage, are Peter J. Reynolds, chairman; George J. Williams, J. E. Bennett, and Richard Gambrill. Of these, Mr. Gambrill is the only one who has supported Mr. Brundage in his stand.

Brundage Ally Not Appointed.

Sheldon Clark, for the last five years chairman of the athletic committee, was not reappointed by Mr. Gann. He is known to be a strong supporter of Mr. Brundage in his fight to place the club in the athletic position it once held, and is one of the group that has sought to have a definite decision on the situation. The athletic question has been before the directorate twice and each time was deferred, in the last instance to Friday night.

MASSEY BEATS MILLER TO TEN ROUND DECISION

Philadelphia, Pa., April 6.—(AP)—Lew Massey, Philadelphia Italian, won a ten round decision over Ray Miller, lanky Chicago lightweight, at the Arena tonight. Massey weighed 130, Miller 132.

Massey surprised the fans by his boxing skill against the flashy and hard hitting Chicagoan. Miller's left hook, which in recent months had flattened two Philadelphia battlers, landed on Massey's tough jaw repeatedly, but the Italian shook them off.

Massey used a stiff left jab effectively, but the punch that did the most damage was a stinging right. They went into action at the opening gong and there was little letup. There were no knockdowns.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., April 6.—Willis Clough, Pittsburgh's recruit pitcher from Tucson, keeps on writing:

"This is the last letter you will receive from me from Frisco and by the time you receive this letter we will be on our way east and expect to reach Kansas City Wednesday along with the Detroit Tigers who we have got five more games to play with them in Kansas City and Decatur and Detroit before we go to Chicago to open up the season with the Cubs. Frisco is not as big as Los Angeles but bigger than Paso Robles or Tucson. It is a funny town as so many of the streets runs pretty near straight up hill but Paul Waner says they built them that way on purpose so as to offset the streets that runs straight down. The other day I asked George Grantham why they call Captain Traynor Pie Traynor and he says it was on account of him training on pie but last night Manager Ens balled me out in the dining room when he seen me eating pie à la mode with ice cream on top for desert so I reminded him about Traynor and he says it was all right for him to get fat because he would not always be taking up room on the bench. He says Brooklyn would have win the pennant last year only their manager Wilbert Robinson was so big that the players had to stand up between innings and was all worn out by the middle of September.

Health Forces Jack Dempsey to Seek Rest

Columbus, O., April 6.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, here to referee a bout between Bushey Graham and Johnny Farr, announced tonight that after tomorrow night he is going into retirement from public life for at least two months on the order of his physicians at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Dempsey's decision necessitates cancellations of more than 95 engagements to referee boxing bouts in all sections of the country. He will referee tomorrow night at Wheeling, W. Va., and after that will retire.

A nervous condition and loss of weight make necessary the rest, according to Drs. D. M. Berman and Louis A. Buie of the Mayo clinic, who examined Dempsey a few days ago.

Routine Too Strenuous.

Although Dempsey appears in perfect health, he admitted that he does not feel well and that the difficult routine of one night stands, which he has been pursuing as a referee of boxing and wrestling contests, is the most trying work he ever has experienced.

"I will go to the country for at least two months, longer if necessary," said Dempsey. "There is nothing seriously wrong with me, but I intend to follow the doctors' orders. I always listened to my seconds in the ring, so I guess I had better listen to the doctors who are in my corner this time."

Mum on Country Place.

Neither Dempsey nor Leonard Sachs, his business manager, would divulge the "country place" where Dempsey would spend his enforced vacation.

The doctors' report characterized Dempsey's illness as a "nervous condition, irritable, sleepless, and very restless." The doctors recommended the rest and warned him that he was facing a "state of complete nervous exhaustion."

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 6.—(AP)—Frankie Wine, 178, of Akron, O., scored a knockout victory here tonight over Jeff Carroll, 184, of Biloxi, Miss., in the seventh round of a scheduled 10 round fight.

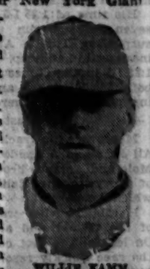
Cleveland, O., April 6.—(AP)—Joey Ross, New York bantamweight, took an easy six round decision over Ollie Bartlett of Detroit in the main bout of a boxing program here tonight.

KAMM'S DOUBLE WITH 3 ON BASE BRINGS VICTORY

It's Fourth Hose Win Against N. Y.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson, Miss., April 6.—The White Sox showed their New York Giant touring companions a good time this afternoon and the latter didn't suspect any trickery was involved. For eight innings the National leaguers were permitted to bask in the rôle of victor, but in the ninth the Chicagoans suddenly scored three runs and ended the tenth of the spring series with a score of 6 to 5 in their favor. It was the fourth win for the Pale Hose since the two teams started collecting loose change around the sunny south.



WILLIE KAMM.

The hero of today's rout of the pride of the Polo grounds was Willie Kamm. After the bases had become loaded in the ninth on Bill Walker, one of McGraw's best southpaws, Fred Fitzsimmons took charge with hopes of calming the budding riot, but Kamm broke loose with a double that drove in two mates and the third followed them across when Fitz, trying to relay the throw from the outfield pegged wide to the plate. Until this happened the Sox had been more or less futile as hitters against Clarence Mitchell, as well as Walker.

Reynolds Starts It.

The final inning started with Reynolds leading off in the face of a score of 5 to 3 in the Giants' favor. Carl had failed in previous pinches, but this time retrieved himself by singling to center. Eichrodt, serving in the place of the ailing Jelley, whacked a double to left field, Reynolds stopping at third. A pass to Appling filled the bases. Then the show was halted to permit Boss Bush to match his wits against those of Dave Bancroft, who was acting for Mr. McGraw. The latter does not dignify many of the exhibitions by his presence.

As soon as Walker had loaded the bases Bush selected Jeffries, a right handed hitter, to bat for Watwood. In real big league fashion Bancroft yanked Walker for Fitzsimmons, a right hander. To prove to the 2,500 folks present that he, too, knows a few league tricks, Bush recalled Jeffries and substituted McKain. The latter bounced to Fitzsimmons and Reynolds was forced at the plate. Then Kamm drove a double down the right field line, Eichrodt and Appling scoring.

McKain Keeps Going.

Bush endeavored to halt McKain at third, but the young man was for going places in a hurry, and he kept on legging it for the plate. He did the right thing, because Fitzsimmons made his aforementioned bad relay on Lindstrom's throw and the game was over.

The game looked like a Giant affair right from the start because of the way in which the New Yorkers greeted Braxton, the slatilike southpaw. In the opening inning singles by Allen, Lindstrom, and Terry and Ott's long fly scored a pair.

In the second another run was scored on a double by Verges and a single by Hogan. Meanwhile the Sox were having their customary trouble with Mitchell. They didn't reach him for a run until the fourth, when Appling singled and Kamm doubled. In the next chapter Mitchell quit, thus extending his spring record against the Sox to a skimpy allowance of three runs in seventeen innings.

New York's representatives moved farther out in front in the sixth when Ott took hold of a pitch by Frasier, who had started in the fourth, and sent it over the wall in center. The Chicagoans also picked up a run in this inning, which marked Walker's entrance. Grube, who had been hit in the ribs, scored this on a single off Simon's hat.

VIC FRASIER.

The Giants added their last run in the seventh because of a bad throw by Appling and Allen's single. This was the second of three hits off Frasier in six innings of work. The New Yorkers don't favor his fast ball, and if he continues to improve there will be several American league teams holding him in the same high esteem.

Play at Atlanta Today.

The circus train, with its high priced managerie, moved along tonight to Atlanta, Ga., where the spring show will be resumed tomorrow. The day will be doubly important from a gen standpoint because Lu Blue, the new first baseman, is due to report. Whether he'll play isn't known. If Blue has had some spring work Bush will send him into the lineup. If not the veteran will be permitted several days in which to

OLD SANDY WINS STRETCH DUEL FROM GERARD

Runs Fastest 7 Furlongs of Bowie Meet.

Bowie, Md., April 6.—[Special.]—A head and head duel from the top of the stretch to the wire brought the spectators rushing out from the shelter of the stands into the rain here today to watch the outcome of the clash between Sandy and Gerard in the Aspirant purse, the day's feature.

There were three others running, but Sandy and Gerard went into a deadlock far up on the bend and it remained for the judges to find Sandy first at the end of the seven furlongs. The others never were in the hunt, Thistle Fyrn finishing a distant third.

Sandy's Victory a Surprise.

Sandy's victory was a surprise to many as he has failed to win in his previous ten starts and had about convinced every one that his eight years had taken their toll of his speed. However that may be, there is nothing wrong with his courage, for he stood a hard drive gamely to just get his head in front.

His time of 1:25 1-5 was the fastest seven furlongs run at the meeting, surpassing Thistle Ann's 1:26 in the inaugural handicap, and Mynheer's 1:26 1-5 in the James Rome memorial, both $5,000 stakes and the outstanding races decided here thus far.

Track Just Good.

Moreover, the track was only good. All in all, the gelded son of Sand Mole and Affiance brought a good deal of glory to the Rolling Plains silks which he carried.

Harold Thurber was in the saddle of the winner and although Battling On led for the first couple of furlong, the race quickly resolved itself into a two horse affair.

ALBERTI FIVE TAKES LEAD AT AURORA MEET

Aurora, Ill., April 6.—[Special.]—The Alberti Jeweler five of Chicago shot their way into first place in the main event of the Interstate bowling tournament for women here today with scores of 864, 940, and 855 for a total of 2,659. They replaced the Finnucane Ladies of Chicago, national and state champions, who have been leading with 2,606.

A Chicago pair, Marie Smith and Dorothy McQuade, landed on top in the doubles with 1,190, replacing Edna Smith and Ida Stockmore, also of Chicago, who have been leading with 1,142.

While other leaders were toppled during the day Mrs. A. Rice, Chicago's 60 year old bowler, held her place at the top in the singles with her score of 635, shot Sunday.

Eight Maroon Cagers Given Major Letters

Director A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago announced the awarding of seventeen major "C's" yesterday to members of the basketball, gymnastic, swimming, and water polo teams.

Of the eight letters awarded to the basketball squad, went to men receiving their first major "C" in that sport. Capt. Marshall Fish and Harry Ashley, the two previous letter winners, and Scott Rexinger, Art Cahill, Keith Parsons, Kenneth Fraider, Paul Stephenson, and Sidney Yates were the recipients.

Five members of the championship gymnastic team were honored, Capt. Everett C. Olson, Herbert Phillips, Allan Kolb, Werner Bromund, and James Hutchinson, the latter being the only one who had not previously won a major award.

Letters in swimming and water polo went to Capt. Donald Moore, Donald MacMillan, Cornelius Oker, and Gordon Rittenhouse.

CANADIENS AND HAWKS RESUME PLAY THURSDAY

MONTREAL, Que., April 6.—(AP)—A great crowd of hockey enthusiasts was at the station tonight to welcome the crippled Canadiens on their arrival from Chicago, where they split the first two games of the Stanley cup series with the Chicago Blackhawks.

The same crowd Thursday night will cram the Montreal forum for the third match of the championship series. The Blackhawks are scheduled to arrive tomorrow and both teams will take it easy for two days before resuming the battle.

Les Canadiens' chances in the remaining games appear to depend upon the ability of Howie Morenz, Albert Leduc, and Johnny Gagnon to take the ice. Morenz, the team's outstanding star, suffered a severe shoulder injury in last night tilt at Chicago, and Leduc still is in the hospital with a concussion received in the Boston series last week.

Gagnon left tonight for Chicoutimi to attend the funeral of his father, who died while Johnny was at Chicago.

File Rockne's Will Today in South Bend

South Bend, Ind., April 6.—[Special.]—The will of Knute Rockne, drawn March 14, 1923, will be filed in Probate court here tomorrow. The will leaves his estate to his widow, Mrs. Bonnie Rockne, and four children.

Its value will not be determined until an inventory is made later. One trust is created for his family. His business associates and attorneys conferred here today, arranging the details of the estate.

Efforts by Notre Dame alumni and friends of Knute Rockne to create a national fund for a monument were taken under consideration by university officials here today. A committee will be appointed this week by the Rev. Charles L. Donnell, president of the university; Frank E. Hering, president of the alumni association, and James E. Armstrong, alumni secretary.

SUGGESTS ROCKNE TRIBUTE.

Columbus, O., April 6.—(AP)—In a letter today to officials of Notre Dame university, Representativ. Lawrence Welsh, Republican, representing Jefferson county in the Ohio general assembly, suggested that during the football season next fall, all fans attending opening games throughout the nation wear small black ribbons and that the grid battles be halted for two minutes in memory of Knute Rockne.

Terming Rockne the ideal of the American boy, Welsh commended the late coach for his manner to others, his ability to gain and hold the respect of all who knew him, whether they were his own boys or his opponents.

MARK SITE OF ROCKNE CRASH.

Strong City, Kas., April 6.—(AP)—The spot where Knute Rockne lost his life in the crash of an Air Transport plane is to be marked for posterity. Seven other persons besides the Notre Dame football coach were killed in the accident, which occurred last Tuesday.

Marking of the site of the crash was authorized today by vote of the board of county commissioners.

Iron bars will be placed in the ground where the three motors of the big plane gouged deep holes. S. H. Baker, on whose ranch the plane fell, has given permission for the marking.

Erection of a monument also is under discussion.

CHICAGOANS WIN 4 OUT OF 5 BOUTS IN AMATEUR MEET

Boston, Mass., April 6.—(AP)—A dozen battlers from the Boston district battered their way into the semi-finals of the junior national amateur boxing championship tourney here tonight after five hours of glove swinging with title aspirants from fifteen other cities.

The Chicago team made a remarkable showing, gaining four victories and but one setback. The New York delegation piled up four victories and as many defeats. Washington boxers won three bouts and lost one, and two of the Montreal team placed in the semi-finals as four of their mates were ousted. The other cities strong enough to place single representatives in the second night's battling were Homestead, Pa.; Waukegan, Ill.; Detroit, Uniontown, Pa., and Cincinnati.

George Haberski, Waukegan, Ill., 118 pounder, defeated Sam Julian of Uniontown, Pa., piling up a winning margin on points without serious effort. Paul James, Chicago, heavyweight, knocked out Charles Druce, Montreal, in one round; Steve Dusek, Chicago, knocked out Larry Dillon, Cincinnati, three rounds; Haywood Store, Chicago, middleweight, defeated Michael O'Connor, Washington; Abe Schulman, New York, defeated Solly Dukelsky, Chicago, welterweight.

SHARKEY TO FACE CARNERA JUNE 10 AT BROOKLYN?

Plan Fifteen Round Fight for Charity.

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight whose title bout claims were rejected by Max Schmeling, the champion, will battle Primo Carnera, Italian giant, in a fifteen round bout for the benefit of charity on June 10 at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, if present plans materialize. Terms for the match have been approved on behalf of both boxers and the date and place likewise have been agreed upon, it was learned today.

James J. Johnston, who recently acquired the outdoor boxing privileges at Ebbets field, will promote the match. An arrangement whereby 50 per cent of the proceeds from the bout is to be divided among several worthy local charities is understood to have influenced the signing of the match.

The bout is contingent upon the approval of the state athletic commission and involves the reinstatement here of Carnera, his European manager, Leon See, and Bill Duffy, American representative of the foreign combination. Another contingency is the success of the proposed withdrawal of Carnera from a contract which gives the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois exclusive rights to his services for a proposed bout in September against the winner of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling title bout now tentatively planned for Cleveland on July 3.

That this withdrawal will be fought, perhaps in the civic courts, by the garden corporation was indicated today. William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of this city, declined to discuss the situation, but it is understood he has instructed the corporation's lawyers to launch steps to frustrate plans for the bout at Ebbets field. Carnera has been under suspension here since last June as an outgrowth of his bout in California against Leon Chevalier.

Michigan Nine Adds Dayton to Spring Trip

Like Color . . . the best Gasoline is Blended
THE artist stands before his canvas with color-laden palette. Blues, greens, white and touches of warmer tones are blended by his inspired brush as the waves of the seascape take form. His genius tells him that only through the blending of just the right colors is the ideal result achieved. Otherwise his most painstaking effort could only result in a monotone, wholly lacking in brilliance.
Artistry and genius have their place in the making of CONOCO Gasoline. CONOCO engineers long since have found that the ideal gasoline is a balanced blend of the three types containing the elements most desired in a motor fuel. There is highly volatile Natural Gasoline, to give quick starting. There is Straight-run Gasoline, to give power and long mileage. There is Cracked Gasoline with its well-known anti-knock quality.
Like the artist with his colors, CONOCO refiners take these three types of gasoline in balanced proportions and blend them. The result is as pleasing to the car owner as is a Rembrandt to the art connoisseur. Of course the genius of "knowing how" is the vital element and it is here that CONOCO refiners excel.
Convince yourself of the merit of CONOCO Blended Gasoline. Try it today. You will find this triple-test motor fuel wherever you see the CONOCO Red Triangle.

IMPRACTICALITY, GOOD INTENTIONS MARK BIRD BILLS

Legislators Seek to Save Waterfowl.

BY BOB BECKER.

As the water fowl which have been wintering in the south slowly wing their way northward to their nesting grounds, state legislatures which are in session are seeing a wild hodgepodge of proposed laws designed to "law" back the depleted flocks. Legislators who have good intentions, but know little about the science of game breeding, the relation of wild life to agriculture, and the actual needs of ducks and geese, are proposing all kinds of regulations which they hope will act like magic and restore our vanishing wild life.

One state legislature in the middle west is asked to do away with all permanent blinds, as if the question of blinds were intimately related to the problem of disappearing nesting grounds in the north, one of the basic reasons why our ducks and geese are not keeping up their numbers.

Quit Need Farm Lands.

All of these impractical suggestions handed out by lawmakers and affecting the sport of hunting are indicative of the way America is floundering around trying to find some way to maintain many forms of wild life. The idea has prevailed that we can make a law and thus grow ducks or quail.

As a matter of fact the lack or presence of permanent blinds in any state doesn't hit at the root of the problem. The trouble with our water fowl situation is that the ducks have lost their homes in Canada. They can't hatch out a family on dry wheat fields or drained sloughs, and they can't migrate southward on empty stomachs and worn out wings. According to authorities refuges, nesting grounds, adequate feeding grounds, and sensible shooting laws are ways to save the birds.

Are Far from Solution.

When it comes to tackling the American quail problem, game breeding authorities say that all we need is a "back to the farm" movement. The country has the land and we should have scientific machinery to maintain quail. The farmer is the keystone of the quail production structure and it is a hopeful sign that conservation organizations, sportsmen, and states are hooking up with the farmer in a program that benefits both.

G. T. DUNLAP'S 72 LEADS FIELD IN PINEHURST MEET

Pinehurst, N. C., April 6.—(AP)—Defying a drizzling rain that sent the scores of some of his opponents skyrocketing, Geofre T. Dunlap Jr. of New York shot a 72 today to take a five stroke lead at the end of 18 holes in the 36 hole qualifying round of the 31st annual North and South amateur golf championship.

The Princeton golfer and intercollegiate champion went out in 38, after trouble on the first and ninth holes caused him to go one over par on each. Getting his bearings at the turn, he swept down the last nine in 34 for his total of 72, one over par.

The final eighteen holes of the qualifying round will be played tomorrow.

Seventy-seven was the best any of the others could do on the first 18 holes. T. Suffren Tailer, Newport, R. I., another Princeton player, and Richard S. Tufts, Pinehurst, were tied at this figure for second place. Tailer was out in 39 and back in 38, while Tufts reversed these figures.

PACIFIC COAST PENNANT CHASE TO START TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—Baseball's 1931 race for the Pacific Coast league pennant gets under way tomorrow, with the eight clubs more evenly matched than last year. Elaborate ceremonies will usher in the national pastime with opening games in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, and Sacramento.

Hollywood's stars, 1929 and 1930 champions, will open the season at Sacramento. Los Angeles' Angels, runners up last year, will stay at home to entertain the Seattle Indians. The San Francisco Missions will oppose Oakland's Acorns on the latter's home lot, while Portland's Ducks will help the San Francisco Seals declicate their new $1,250,000 home—Seals' stadium.

With the exception of Sacramento, all of the clubs have strengthened for the flag chase. Sacramento sold Myrll Hoag, young outfielder, to the New York Yankees and Fay Thomas, fast ball pitcher, to the Cleveland Indians.

LONDOS BEGINS PREPARATION FOR KWARIANI BOUT

Now that Jimmy Londos is to wrestle Kola Kwariani, Russian contender, in a title match, he is taking every precaution to protect his crown. He has shipped out a program of preparation that is virtually the same as when he prepared for his victorious match against Dick Shikat in which he won the championship.

Londos and Kwariani are matched to meet in two falls to a finish struggle at the Chicago Stadium on the night of April 21 under the promotion of Don Kroms. Londos won what is generally conceded a doubtful victory over Kola after one hour and 24 minutes here a month ago. Kwariani was leading the champion as points until he clutched the ropes while Londos was swinging him overhead, and fell to the concrete. This so weakened the Russian that he lost unnecessary after scrambling back into the ring.

Campbell's Car Locks Wheels; He Escapes

BROOKLANDS, England, April 6.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, world's automobile speed champion, had what he described himself as the narrowest "shave" of his life today in a race at the opening meeting of the famous Brooklands race track. He escaped death only because of his own superb skill as a driver.

While his car was doing well over 100 miles an hour on the first lap of the opening race of the day, a 12 mile handicap, the tie rod holding the front wheels in position snapped. The wheels locked and the car zigzagged madly from side to side on a track slippery from recent rains.

Spectators Endangered.

With death threatening Campbell and the spectators who lined the rail on either side, the pilot managed somehow to get the car under control.

"I was braking, preparatory to making a turn," Campbell said, "and suddenly I heard a terrific crash and the front wheels locked. I was doing well over 100 miles an hour and I don't know how I held the car on the track. Somehow I managed to pull her in. I suppose my luck holds good."

Campbell, who is 46 and one of the oldest racing drivers still active, set the world's speed record at 245.73 miles an hour for a straightaway mile last winter on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla. He broke a record set by another Englishman, the late Sir Henry O. D. Segrave, at 231 miles an hour the year previously at Daytona.

Close Ones Don't Count.

Campbell, who has had many narrow escapes from death piloting racing cars, is a fatalist and does not count the close ones.

"I've seen death in front of me so many times," he said during his recent trip to the United States to break the Segrave record, "that I'm a fatalist. You never go before your time. If my time is up I'm ready to go. There's no use grousing."

Evans Refuses to Consider Heading American League

Cleveland, O., April 6.—(AP)—William G. [Billy] Evans, former umpire and now manager of the Cleveland American League Baseball club, tonight removed himself as a possibility for the league presidency, left vacant by the death of Ernest S. Barnard of Cleveland ten days ago.

Evans issued a formal statement saying he is not a candidate for the presidency and that he will remain as general manager of the local club.

Evans said he "keenly appreciates the consideration given me by the American league magnates and the press in connection with the matter."

Many baseball men have considered that Evans could have the title role in the league if he would accept.

TRIMDON WINS QUEEN'S PRIZE FROM COASTER

KEMPTON PARK, England, April 6.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Charles Lambton's Trimdon won the Queen's Prize handicap at two miles today from a field of sixteen. Sir Hugo Hirst's Coaster was second, three lengths back, and Mrs. V. D. Sainsbury's Lopear third, two lengths behind Coaster. The race was worth $5,750.

Trimdon, 5 year old by Son-in-Law out of Trimestral, raced only three times last year, his sole victory being in the Ascot Gold Vase over two miles. He was the favorite today at 7 to 2 against, with Coaster at 100 to 8, and Lopear at 25 to 1.

Hawkeye Nine Hands Luther 3-2 Beating

Iowa City, Ia., April 6.—[Special.]—A timely single, clouted by Lawrence Reedquist, first baseman, in the last half of the eighth inning, gave the University of Iowa baseball team a 3 to 2 victory in the season's opener here against Luther college of Decorah today.

Deprived of their spring training trip because of weather conditions, the Hawkeyes exhibited poor fielding and generally weak hitting.

Aase, lanky Luther hurler, held the Iowans to three safeties, while his own mates were collecting four safe hits from Johnny Ingraham and John Carlsen.

Iowa will play Luther again tomorrow and will complete a four game series at Decorah Friday and Saturday.

CATHOLIC YOUTH CHAMPIONS MEET NEW YORK FIVE

With a record of 58 straight victories in the last two seasons, St. Joseph's H. N. S. Juniors, the 1931 Catholic Youth organization champions, will meet the St. Nicholas of Tolentine quintet of New York, in an intercity basketball championship game tomorrow night at De La Salle gymnasium. A return game will be played in New York in 1932.

The St Joseph club, central division champions, won the city title Sunday by a 17 to 14 victory over the St. Theodore south division titleholders at De Paul gymnasium. The eastern club has won the metropolitan title in New York for four successive years.

Paddy Driscoll, coach of St. Mel's Catholic High school champions, will send a team of all-stars from that league against a picked group from the Catholic Youth league, coached by Johnny Bordes, Notre Dame star, in a preliminary game. Games will also be played between grammar school boy and girl teams.

Many Win $5 Cash Prizes for Best Letters

Reprinted here are three True Want Ad Experiences from among the many which have won $5 prizes in the Chicago Tribune's True Want Ad Experiences competition:

Sells an Auto!

Mrs. F. Fitzgerald, 1403 Jarvis Ave., Chicago.—"When my son went to California he decided not to sell his Packard car and placed a want ad in the Chicago Sunday Tribune offering it for $2,100. On Sunday morning, just as we were leaving for church, our bell rang and a man who had seen the ad inquired about the car. After testing it out he offered $2,000 cash and in twenty minutes the deal was arranged. I think this was a quick sale."

Swaps a Radio!

Harry Feine, 5607 W. 63rd St., Chicago, Ill.—"In looking over the Tribune want ads on Sunday under Barter & Exchange I came across an ad that I had been looking for for some time. It was a 1929 Chickering baby taurian in exchange for electric radio. As I had an electric radio, I called to find out the details. They gave me the details of my radio and he came out with his car and gave me a demonstration. We came to a satisfactory deal and I got a car that has given me a world of good service."

Finds Ideal Apt.

J. William Hertel, 2219 Cheo Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"My wife and I have been looking for an apartment that would provide a yard, allow children, and offer all conveniences that would be enjoyed if one were to own a bungalow. We wanted it in a fairly modern and in a good location, near a school, shopping and transportation. This was difficult until I read a want ad, as follows: '5 rm., sunny rooms, rear—steam—all transportation—$45.00.—see Mr. Arnold—Rogers Park, 0047.' On phoning we were told to come to 1631 Estes Ave., where we found the very thing we were looking for, and the rental was attractive. I am enabled here to live in a comfortable home, easily comparable with a $100.00 apt. in this vicinity."

Send in Your Letter!

If you have had a True Want Ad Experience of any kind, send in your letter today! You may win one of the $5 prizes awarded daily or one of the thirteen grand prizes. For complete details see the display advertisement, giving the simple rules, printed elsewhere in today's Tribune.

STOCK VALUES LOSE PART OF RECENT GAINS

All Shares Worth 53½ Billions.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Despite the decline in stock market prices last month and so far this month, they still will have to decline as much more if they are to sink back to the low level of last December. In fact, last month's recession in prices canceled less than half of the appreciation that took place in January and February and it is likely that even now not more than half of the appreciation since Dec. 17, 1930, has been wiped out.

The market value of all shares listed on the New York Stock exchange aggregated $53,336,394,495 on April 1, making a decline of $3,718,311,906 during March. But in January and February the aggregate value increased $9,034,888,022. On Feb. 1 the aggregate value was $52,061,956,700, an increase of $3,042,078,250 during January, while on March 1 the aggregate value had risen to $57,054,766,481, an increase of $4,992,809,772 during February. The aggregate market value on Dec. 31, 1930, was $49,019,-[illegible]

Average Share Price.

The average market value of all listed shares was $41.03 a share on April 1, compared with $43.96 on March 1 and $40.09 on Feb. 1, and $37.59 on Dec. 31, 1930. There were 1,300 listed issues aggregating 1,298,-492,276 shares on April 1, compared with 1,297,879,293 on March 1 and 1,291,794,480 on Dec. 31, 1930.

The average yield on all cash dividend paying stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange on April 1 was 5.43 per cent, according to the monthly compilation of Moody's Investment Service. This is a slight gain compared with a month earlier, when the yield stood at 7.29 per cent. The upturn came in the face of dividend reductions on the part of twenty-six stocks. Thirteen companies omitted their dividends, while two increased theirs.

Moody's points out that reductions in dividend rates in the past have usually been concentrated among those stocks having artificially high yields, while in March this tendency was less noted.

Utilities Weather Storm.

The ability of the big utilities companies to weather depression was again attested yesterday by the annual reports of the National Electric Power company, one of the Insull utilities, and the Utilities Power and Light corporation, which is headed by Harley L. Clarke.

Gross earnings of National Electric Power last year totaled $65,951,965, compared with $63,732,569 in 1929, and net income was $5,321,299, compared with $4,732,686. The company spent $8,757,433 on new construction last year. The company operates in the Atlantic seaboard states.

"Because of the non-metropolitan character of the territory served," President Harry Reid says, "the effects of the depression were less acute than in many other parts of the country and substantial gains were shown by the subsidiaries in nearly every phase of their operations. The most striking gains took place in the sale of energy to residential, rural, and commercial users."

Has Gross of $53,097,390.

The Utilities Power and Light corporation had gross revenues of $53,097,-390 in 1930, compared with $52,348,-617 in 1929. Net income last year was $7,326,840, equivalent after preferred dividend to $4.08 a share on the class A stock, compared with $7,617,657, or $4.19 on a smaller capitalization in 1929. The balance for 1930 after deducting class A dividends was equal to $1 cents a share on the combined class B and common shares, compared with $1.45 a share in 1929.

President Clarke points out that more than $30,000,000 was expended for new construction in the last 18 months in the United States, Canada, and Great Britain, where properties of the corporation are located.

"During a period in which nearly every other industry suffered a severe decline in gross revenue and net income," he continues, "the electric and gas industries have given a remarkable demonstration of their stability. On the whole they maintained the level of earnings of 1929."

Hotel Sherman Company Shows Decline in Surplus

The Hotel Sherman company's balance sheet just issued shows a decline of about $250,000 in its surplus account as of Dec. 31, 1930, as compared with the total at the close of the preceding year. Profit and loss surplus totaled $928,160 at the end of the year, as compared with $1,250,818 at the end of 1929. Cash totaled $264,234, against $155,716. The funded indebtedness was reduced $270,000. No income statement accompanied the balance sheet. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, the company reported a net income of $93,953.

Davis Store Reports Record Sales in Pre-Easter Rush

The Davis company loop department store had the biggest day in its history last Saturday both in point of the volume of merchandise sold and the number of customers who visited the store, officials said yesterday. Officials stated that the record breaking business was due to advertising and price reductions, which attracted an unusual crowd of Easter shoppers.

Auto Companies Step Up Output to 10 Mos. Peak

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—Automobile sales have received remarkable stimulus from the advent of spring and production schedules of the leading companies have been stepped up to the highest levels in ten months, according to advices today from various motor centers.

While substantially below the corresponding period of a year ago, each successive month narrows the loss from the same period of the previous year, and automobile executives predict that the sales curve will rise above last year's some time before the end of the summer months.

First returns from March automobile registrations show some sharp increases over February. In the first four states to report—Illinois, Wisconsin, North Dakota, and South Carolina—Chevrolet and Ford combined registered 19,278 new passenger cars, an increase of 31.3 per cent over 14,-678 in the same states for February. Chrysler registered 411, against 239 in February; Dodge 793, against 664, Auburn 418, against 373; Essex 511, against 357; Buick 772, against 640; Oldsmobile 735, against 538; Pontiac 595, against 572; Plymouth 297, against 210; Hudson 220, against 202; Nash 521, against 325; Hupp 196, against 168, and Willys-Overland 509, against 495.

Trade Closely Watched.

Gradually expanding motor production has been a major factor in the current moderate upswing in general business conditions. As a result automobile production and sales figures are being closely watched by business students for indications of the immediate trend in general conditions.

Reliable estimates place the number of persons in the United States dependent upon the automobile industry for their living at approximately 25,-000,000. This estimate includes industries dependent upon automobile production for their business. The automobile industry now consumes 32 per cent of rubber manufactured, 15 per cent of iron and steel, 80 per cent of gasoline, 55 per cent of plate glass, and 24 per cent of the lead produced. Nearly every other line is dependent directly upon automobile production.

Present estimates place 1931 automobile production well in excess of the 1930 output of 3,500,000 cars, which would indicate that general business would derive greater benefit from this source than during the preceding twelve months.

Up 26 Per Cent Over February.

So far this year automobile production, while showing consistent increases over preceding months, has been below a year ago. Figures made public by the National Chamber of Commerce show first quarter production this year at 465,854 units. March production of 187,843 units was 26 per cent over February.

April schedules of the principal companies show further increases over March. Chevrolet April production is scheduled at 10,000 cars over March, while Buick plans the production of 3,000 more units than in the preceding month. Definite figures on Ford are not yet available, but it is understood that the company is continuing at the March rate and may increase about 10,000 units, or to 105,000 units, in April.

NASH VIEWS REVIVAL

C. W. Nash, automobile manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., said yesterday upon his return to Chicago from the west, that the middle west is showing "definite signs of trade revival and should enjoy moderate prosperity by January, 1932."

"The Pacific coast has not felt the business slack which hit the east and middle west," he said upon return from the west coast. "Much of the population there is of the retired class, not so dependent on current conditions for its expenditures.

"The auto industry is showing more activity than during the last year. Most of it is due to revival of interest on the public's part rather than better weather. We are building sales gradually now rather than sensationally."

M'DONALD SAYS NATION'S ROADS ARE STRANGLED

Boston, Mass., April 6.—(AP)—Morris McDonald, president of the Maine Central railroad, today declared the railroads of the country are being strangled. The statement was made at a hearing before a special legislature committee investigating the New England railroad situation.

McDonald advanced as a remedy for the railroad ills the revamping of the transportation act, under which all roads are regulated. He said his road prefers to keep an open mind on the suggested consolidations or combinations whereby New England roads would work with western trunk lines.

He said the Maine Central had no great desire for a combination with any road, except, possibly, the Boston and Maine.

COTTON TEXTILE MARCH BUSINESS WILL SHOW GAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—March sales figures for the cotton textile industry will show a slight gain over February and, coupled with figures for January and February, will show a marked improvement for the first quarter, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York announced today.

"While the demand for cotton textiles has not as yet reached normal proportions," the association said, "the improvement has been so consistent that prospects for future betterment are distinctly encouraging."

WALGREEN SALES FOR MARCH ARE UP 2.2 PER CENT

Sales of Walgreen company and subsidiaries for March of this year were $4,498,565, as against $4,401,850 for March, 1930—an increase of $96,-714.29, or 2.2 per cent.

A. H. WIGGIN JOINS FOX FILM BOARD; STUART AND NIVER WITHDRAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—The first step in the long awaited financing of the Fox Film corporation to take care of the issue of $55,000,000 6 per cent notes which will mature on April 15 will consist of an issue of $30,000,000 6 per cent debentures to be offered first to the class A and B stockholders of the company.

The debentures will be convertible into the class A (nonvoting) stock at the ratio of thirty shares for each $1,000 debenture, according to plans now under consideration.

The Chase Securities corporation has replaced Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., as bankers for Fox Film for certain of the properties of Fox Film. Although several classes of securities are planned for the new company, it is not known at this time whether any public offering of them will be made.

At special meetings of the directors of Fox Film corporation and its parent, the General Theaters Equipment, Inc., held yesterday afternoon, important changes were made in the directorates, subject to the approval of stockholders. The Chase National bank interests will be represented by Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National bank, with Matthew C. Brush, president of American International corporation, who has heretofore represented the Chase interests on the board, continuing as a member.

C. B. Stuart and Ernest Niver of Halsey, Stuart & Co. will leave the boards of Fox Film and of General Theaters Equipment.

Harley L. Clarke, head of Fox Film, said the following men are proposed for directors: Albert H. Wiggin, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Philip Stockton, president First National bank of Boston; Philip R. Clarke, president Central Trust Company of Illinois, Chicago; Frank O. Watts, chairman board of directors, First National bank of St. Louis, and George M. Moffett, president Corn Products Refining company.

Pres. Hoover to Reappoint James to Reserve Board

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—It was announced at the White House today that George R. James of Memphis would be reappointed a member of the federal reserve board when his term expires on April 27.

Character of Occupancy Determines Realty Values

BY SCRUTATOR.

There is a certain district down along the East river in New York City known as Sutton place because a street by that name cuts through it.

A few years ago you could have bought a piece of property there for next to nothing. Sutton place was just another area of slums, neither better nor worse than its unimposing neighbors. Certainly, it was nothing for a real estate man to get excited about.

But a group of people got an idea. And shortly they began to tear Sutton place to pieces. Imposing buildings were put up. A more prosperous class of residents came to live there. Today Sutton place is one of the beautiful sections of the city. And the price of its real estate now is a different story.

Is Intangible Factor.

Ask a dweller in Sutton place why property values have skyrocketed there and he will probably point to the new buildings that have gone up and say something about improvements.

If he does, chalk it down that he sees the forest but not the trees. He has failed to take into account that intangible factor which may be termed "character of occupancy."

People who have a choice go to live there not because of pretty pink bathtubs and new plate glass windows, but because the kind of residents that they want to have for neighbors are living there. The bathtubs and plate glass are incidental.

It is easy to confuse cause and effect.

A generation ago South Michigan avenue was Chicago's show street. Separated from it only by an alley was Wabash avenue, but there was a sharp difference in property values on the two sides of that alley. Part of it was due to character of occupancy. South Michigan avenue itself underwent a change. People moved away and property values dropped long before the actual buildings were altered.

State Street's Example.

There is no better illustration than State street. North of Van Buren is the world's finest and busiest shopping center. Compare property values there with those south of Van Buren. The difference may be attributed largely to character of occupancy.

Small towns realize the value of specific enterprises to neighborhoods much more readily than do large cities. In the latter the theory that the mere presence of people make the values has been largely accepted. This theory has been followed in the handling of real estate belonging to the school board. Consequently, the development of that property has not been successful.

OFFER PENNSY POWER & LIGHT BONDS TODAY

A group headed by the Guaranty company of New York and including Harris, Forbes & Co., Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co., Bonbright & Co., Inc., Bankers company of New York, the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh and the Philadelphia National company is offering today $100,000,000 first mortgage gold bonds, 4½ per cent series due 1981, of the Pennsylvania Power and Light company, at 96½ and accrued interest, to yield over 4.68 per cent.

The proceeds of the financing will be used to provide for the retirement of all existing mortgage debt of the company and the payment of other indebtedness heretofore incurred in connection with the acquisition and construction of property. All of the existing mortgage issues [except $500,-000 noncallable bonds secured on certain minor parts of the property], are to be retired by redemption, and sufficient funds will be deposited in trust to provide for such redemption and for the payment of interest to maturity on and the principal of the $500,-000 noncallable bonds.

The bonds of the present issue are redeemable at the option of the company as a whole or in part, at any time on thirty days' notice at 105 up to and including April 1, 1933, the premium of 5 per cent decreasing ½ of 1 per cent during each four year period thereafter up to and including April 1, 1974, and thereafter until maturity at 100, plus accrued interest in each case.

FARMERS' NATIONAL GRAIN CORPORATION HAS $666,266 PROFIT

Officials of the twenty-eight stockholder cooperative marketing associations belonging to the Farmers' National Grain corporation will attend the second annual meeting of this farmer owned central sales agency, formed under the federal farm board's sponsorship, at the Hotel Sherman today.

Net profits for the corporation's operations during the fiscal year ending Feb. 28, 1931, were $666,266, according to the report of Walter I. Baum, treasurer, to the board of directors, which met yesterday in Chicago.

Attending the corporation's board meeting for a short time today Secretary of Agriculture Hyde stated that he was pleased with the progress being made in cooperative marketings of grain. He said that his reactions to visits with farmers on his western trip which ended yesterday indicated not only returning confidence among farmers, but a growing appreciation of the farm board's aid to them in its stabilization activities.

Samuel R. McKelvie and C. B. Denman, members of the farm board, also attended farmers' cooperative meetings in Chicago yesterday, which included a session of the farm board's advisory committee on coarse grains.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—That little prosperity picture which the bulls hung up in the stock exchange last Saturday was promptly turned to the wall when the place opened for business today. The bears said it was a daub, and to show their contempt they cut loose with another mild spree of short selling, tossing in some of the highest priced stocks in the list along with the more vulnerable issues with which they have been playing ball so assiduously for the last two weeks.

They sold United States Steel common, the leader of all group leaders, down to a new low for the year of 136⅜, off more than 3 points from the high it achieved in Saturday's short lived little rally. They beat Westinghouse down to 82⅝, within a small fraction of its 1931 low. They went at Eastman Kodak, Johns Manville, American Can, General Electric, American Water Works, American Tobacco, and other sometime pacemakers, and the finish found them off anywhere from 1 to more than 3 points.

It was the ninth day of the new reaction, and while it brought nothing like the "selling climax" which many think will be necessary to end the slow dribble of melting prices and turn the list once more toward healthier levels, it did serve to sink the averages still further toward the December lows now looming perilously close ahead of numerous hard hit issues.

News Not So Good.

Evidently the week-end upswing was based on short covering and nothing else. Outside of some improved figures from the automobile manufacturing centers, there was really nothing visible upon which to base it. On the contrary, with a fresh batch of dividend cuts and omissions ahead and an avalanche of poor first quarter earnings reports just around the corner, conditions in general were very obviously in favor of continued bear control of the situation.

Market house letter writers were prompt to point this out and to warn customers against letting the buying flurry influence them into anything rash in the way of commitments. Obviously, however, there were many who expected the rally to carry

INSULL UTILITY INTERESTS ENTER CANADIAN FIRM

Acquire Shares in Winnipeg Electric Company.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The latest expansion move of the Insull utility interests has taken place in Canada, where the group has acquired a substantial block of the stock of the Winnipeg Electric company, a $45,000,000 concern which controls the city's street railways and gas business and furnishes part of the electrical power.

This was disclosed yesterday with the news that two Insull representatives had been elected to the board of the Canadian company. The Insull representatives are Foster Hanneford, of Chicago, assistant to the president of the Middle West Utilities company, and J. A. McPhail, of Sault Ste. Marie, president of the Great Lakes Power company. Great Lakes Power is controlled by Middle West Utilities company through which the new purchase has been made.

Chicago Stocks Weaken.

Insull shares followed the general market in yesterday's dealings on the Chicago exchange. After a fairly strong beginning, the market weakened steadily as the selling grew, and final quotations in the main were below last week's final prices. The acute weakness in U. S. Steel on the big board was held responsible for at least part of the increased selling late in the session.

Early in the day announcement was made of the omission of the dividend on the common stock of A. M. Castle & Co. The firm, which is engaged in the merchandising of steel and iron products, has heretofore paid quarterly dividends of 75 cents. Until Aug. 1, 1930, the concern had also paid an extra quarterly of 25 cents.

Uncertainty of the length of time before normal conditions would be restored in the steel trade was given as the reason for the action. Dividends will be resumed when conditions justify such action, it was explained.

See Gradual Recovery.

"While it is thought the recovery to normal will be slow, it is believed that the depression in the steel business has passed the low point and that a gradual increase in volume during the year may be looked forward to with confidence," the company's statement said.

Trading started yesterday in Segal Lock and Hardware stock. The price held around 7 on volume of sales amounting to 1,800 shares. Trading will begin today in Pennsylvania Power and Light company 4½ per cent first mortgage bonds, due 1981, which were listed yesterday by special action of the board of governors. The listing, which consists of $121,000,000 par value bonds is the second largest issue listed on the exchange.

One of the first reports on first quarter business was issued yesterday by the Lindsay Light company. The firm report net earnings after all charges of $24,033, equivalent after preferred dividends to 24 cents a share on the common stock. This compares with $31,071 in the first quarter of 1929.

More interest developed in converters' contings and suitings for immediate delivery. Raw silk was unchanged at the opening, with more inquiry reported on silk goods. Rayon production was holding up well, the volume business being on 150 denier, 60 filament yarns.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Hammond Clock, selling ex dividend 50c, lost 3 points of last week's sharp rise in the week's initial session on the Chicago curb yesterday. Active stocks worked higher for the most part, with De Forest, Standard Oil of Indiana, Chicago Local Transportation A preferred, and International Rustless Iron making fractional gains.

See Gradual Recovery.

"While it is thought the recovery to normal will be slow, it is believed that the depression in the steel business has passed the low point and that a gradual increase in volume during the year may be looked forward to with confidence," the company's statement said.

Trading started yesterday in Segal Lock and Hardware stock. The price held around 7 on volume of sales amounting to 1,800 shares. Trading will begin today in Pennsylvania Power and Light company 4½ per cent first mortgage bonds, due 1981, which were listed yesterday by special action of the board of governors. The listing, which consists of $121,000,000 par value bonds is the second largest issue listed on the exchange.

One of the first reports on first quarter business was issued yesterday by the Lindsay Light company. The firm report net earnings after all charges of $24,033, equivalent after preferred dividends to 24 cents a share on the common stock. This compares with $31,071 in the first quarter of 1929.

BUYERS BECOME SELLERS, GRAIN PRICES DECLINE

Trade Feels Market Gives Good Account of Self.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Selling of wheat futures in Chicago against purchases at Winnipeg, representing tranferring of hedges from the American to the Canadian market against export sales made on Saturday, resulted in a lower range of prices yesterday, but when everything was considered the trade expressed the belief that the market had given a good account of itself, although the new crop futures finished 1@¾c lower with July, 61¾c; September, 64¾@65c, and December, 63¾c. May was unchanged at 83c.

Houses that were the best buyers on Saturday, when Winnipeg was closed, were the best sellers here yesterday. According to messages from Winnipeg shorts covered around 1,000,000 bu on Saturday in Chicago. There was a much less active foreign demand for cash wheat during the day, with sales of 500,000 bu Manitobas estimated in all positions, but Winnipeg closed 1¾@2c cheaper than on Thursday, with July, 60¾c, or only ¼c under Chicago compared with 1c under at one time on Thursday. Liverpool was closed, but will be open today and is expected to show an advance of around 1¼d in sympathy with North American markets.

Crop Reports Favorable.

Reports covering the winter wheat belt were generally very favorable, especially in the southwest, with some high estimates being made on the probable yield, based on conditions that prevail at the present time. There is ample moisture over the entire area, and the forecast suggested temperatures above normal for the next two days.

A few complaints of insufficient subsoil moisture were received from the American northwest, especially Montana, but in the more southern sections of the spring wheat territory field work is progressing, and seeding is now under the way in northern Illinois. It is expected that seeding will be well under way in the northwest with another week of good weather.

The greater part of the pressure on Chicago wheat futures was on the September, which went to around 1¼c under July, the widest difference so far. According to reports from Duluth the government agencies will load out around 1,500,000 bu durum wheat in the near future, presumably for shipment east via lake at the opening of navigation, although with Canadian durum quoted at a substantial discount under American the disposition of the grain is regarded as problematical. A decrease of 665,000 bu was shown in the visible supply for the week making the total 201,832,000 bu against 146,548,000 bu last year.

Locals Bearish on Corn.

Corn market showed a weakened technical position as the result of the sharp upturn on Saturday and, with locals inclined to be bearish and fair sellers, prices declined and closed 1¼@1¾c lower, with May, 60¾@60¾c; July, 62¾@62¾c; September, 61¾@61¾c, and December, 53¾@53¾c. Reaction in wheat had some effect. Buying on the break was by shorts and holders of bids.

A slow shipping demand for cash grain is regarded as the main depressing influence in the corn market. Sales for the day were only 66,000 bu, with the spot basis unchanged. A decrease of 101,000 bu in the visible supply for the week brought the total down to 20,447,000 bu against 31,116,000 bu last year.

Spreading operations were under way in oats, but the market was influenced largely by the action of other grains and prices averaged lower, finishing with losses of ⅛@¼c, May being 30¼@30¾c; July, 31¼c, and September, 30⅝@31c. A decrease of 38,000 bu was shown in the visible supply for the week. Seeding of the new crop is reported as making rapid progress. Trade in rye was light and the market ⅝@¾c lower with wheat. May closed at 36¼c; July, 37¾c, and September, 40c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Bearishness prevailed to an unusual extent in the wheat market, particularly toward the close yesterday. It was based largely on estimates from the southwest. A Fort Worth grain man who was here estimates that Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and New Mexico will have around 300,000,000 bu of wheat this year. There were crops of 200,000,000 bu for Kansas, and a Hutchinson, Kas., man is out with an estimate of 230,000,000 bu. Conservative people in close touch with Kansas said that the state has sufficient acreage to raise 200,000,000 bu. The acreage originally seeded was around 12,000,000 acres. On the basis of 20 bu to the acre, with 11,000,000 sown, which is regarded as high for an average, there would be 220,000,000 bu. The Kansas state report issued Saturday says the 1930 wheat crop of 131,982,000 bu has been exceeded only twice since 1920. A Kansas City man says it has been the practice of the trade to either make or kill the crop in April.

One of the largest Chicago traders says he can see nothing in the wheat market except moderate fluctuations from day to day, and he believes that unless the crop is materially damaged that wheat may sell at 50c or under. There is too much of it in all positions, he says, for a bull market even with a good reduction in the size of this year's crops.

Traders who are friendly to corn look for a decreased movement from the country and for an increased demand from consumers. The pit element, however, is largely bearish, and longs encounter too much opposition according to their belief for the market to materially harden.

Farm board interests are in the market for between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 bu storage room for wheat in Chicago and are willing to lease elevator plants of such capacity, and it might be that they would consider building elevators with a proper offer made.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 7,000; hogs, 20,000; sheep, 13,000.

Live stock markets were rather lifeless yesterday, although some classes moved slightly higher on short supplies. Cattle receipts exceeded trade requirements and all but top notchers ruled weak to lower. Light hogs recovered most of Saturday's loss, but medium and weighty stock finished weak. Lambs held generally steady most of the day.

Light weight hogs were comparatively scarce and advanced 10@15c on fair eastern support, the top at $8.25 being paid frequently during the first half of the day. The general average showed 10c advance at $7.75, but was equal to last Friday's average.

Hog receipts at Chicago at 42,000 were below the average Monday run during the last six weeks, but compared with 35,037 a year ago and with 28,813 two years ago. Only two Monday totals have been smaller since the middle of October. The slow movement of pork on the wholesale market restricted late buying, resulting in a weak finish. Larger houses obtained 2,500 at slightly lower bids late in the day.

Wednesday's Hogs Bid $8.25.

Light weight hogs for Wednesday's delivery were bid $8.25 on the "to arrive" market yesterday, while mediums carried bids of $7.75 and heavy grades were bid $7.50 for the same day. May light were bid $8.25 on the futures trade. June light were offered at $8.75 and bid $8.25, while September light were offered at $9 and bid $8.75.

Cattle receipts at 15,500 were about average for Monday, but compared with 8,739 last Monday, when supplies were far below normal. The few loads of cattle eligible to $10 and above were about steady with the close of last week, the top at $10.75 equaling the highest paid for cattle last week. Common to medium grades selling at $6.50@9.00, which made up the bulk of offerings, were obtained on a weak to 25c lower basis in mid-session and later. Butcher stock sold mostly steady. Calves were unchanged.

Price Range Narrows.

The spread between shorn and wool lambs reached the narrowest point of the year on yesterday's market, in face of reports that pelts have advanced some in price during the last few weeks. Lambs without fleece sold upwards to $9, a new high mark for the season, while top wool lambs to shippers reached $9.65 and to packers, $9.35. Most 90@100 lb wool lambs sold at $9.00@9.35. The first California spring lambs on the market this season sold at $10.00@11.50, but were poorer in quality than in 1930 when the first came April 14 and sold at $12.50. Odd lots of native springers sold at $10.00@13.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 7,000 cattle, 20,000 hogs, and 13,000 sheep, against 7,306 cattle, 21,476 hogs, and 18,902 sheep, the previous Tuesday and 5,902 cattle, 19,182 hogs, and 9,341 sheep a year ago.

LARD MARKET STRONGER

Buying by leading holders of July and September lard, with comparatively light scattered offerings, made a stronger market yesterday, with net gains of 2¼@3c on futures. Liverpool was closed. Export clearances of lard for the week were 9,403,000 lbs, against 9,580,000 lbs last year. Of bacon they were 7,255,000 lbs, against 7,005,000 lbs last year. Bellies were neglected and prices were unchanged. Hog prices were higher, with receipts larger than a week ago and a year ago. Cash trade was moderate. Prices follow:

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

E. F. Clarke, president, said March operations of Newton Steel company were the best since last spring, and April and May should show successive gains over March. He also expects the second quarter this year to show considerable improvement over the first three months. Newton is a large producer of sheet steel for the automobile and steel stamping industries. It is operating at present at about 70 per cent of capacity.

Interest to be paid on domestic, corporate, United States government and foreign dollar bonds in April aggregates $338,280,935, according to the monthly estimate of Standard Statistics. Maturities, call, or redemption of these same classes of securities in April total $213,884,653.

In spite of the depression, national wealth increased about 2 per cent in 1930, says the Alexander Hamilton institute. The nation is now about 50 per cent richer than in 1912. Per capita wealth is about 25 per cent greater. In terms of current money, however, wealth dropped about 8.9 per cent in 1930. National income was down 17 per cent last year.

Refrigerator bookings of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company are running ahead of output, it is announced. The current orders are sufficient to take care of the April, May, and June production, it was added.

Frank L. Dame, president of the North American company, said electric output of the company's subsidiaries for the twelve months ended March 31, 1931, was within 1 per cent of the output for the twelve months ended March 31, 1930, and was 6.5 per cent more than the output for the twelve months ended March 31, 1929.

LORILLARD HEAD ASKS PROXIES IN TOBACCO ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—Stockholders of P. Lorillard company have been asked by Benjamin L. Belt, president, to mail proxies authorizing ratification of the election of directors held March 10. The present management of the company is under fire by a minority group and the recent election is being questioned in court.

President Belt, in asking the stockholders to ratify the election, supports the bonus plan of the company which was made the basis of the complaint recently filed in Court of Chancery in Jersey City by Scott & Stringfellow, attorneys of Richmond, Va., representing eleven stockholders of Richmond.

Supreme Court Justice Campbell of Trenton last week directed the company to show cause on May 5 why the election of directors March 10 should not be set aside.
